"In addition to a straightforward name that would not be confusing to commuters, especially new ones, we needed something that can be abbreviated for radio contact between trains and dispatchers and control towers," said Metra Executive Director Philip A. Pagano. "Something like 'S-W-S' is quick and distinctive and will not be confused with other railroads operating in the same general area. Most of all, we wanted a name that used the word 'service' because that's the only thing we sell."

Memorial Day

By Roger A. Munson

The observance of Memorial Day offers an opportunity for all Americans to stop and reflect on the unique history of the United States and our rights and responsibilities as citizens.

As the national commander of The American Legion, I represent more than 3.1 million men and women who have served this nation during a time of war. We know firsthand the sacrifices that all of America's veterans have made to preserve our way of life.

Make no mistake, Memorial Day doesn't glorify war, for no one hates war more than those who've fought the battles. To the contrary, Memorial Day glorifies peace by reminding Americans that we are entrusted with remembering those who paid the ultimate price so that our great country would endure.

Their selfless sacrifice spans the history of America, from the Revolutionary War to Desert Storm. These patriots left their homes and families when their country called and gave their last full measure of devotion in defense of freedom.

Today, in tens of thousands of homes, a carefully folded and lovingly preserved American Flag rests in a place of honor—a token of a loved one's sacrifice for their country.

That flag, which once draped the coffin of a serviceman or woman, holds tears and a lifetime of memories. It offered pride to accompany the pain and sorrow of those whom the fallen had left behind.

It is fitting that we celebrate on Memorial Day the freedom that has been won and sustained by these fallen heroes. They answered their country's call, put themselves in harm's way, placed the welfare of their comrades ahead of their own safety, and put duty ahead of personal interests. Their sacrifice must never be forgotten.

As we pay tribute to America's fallen sons and daughters, let us realize that the United States remains the envy of the world.

What is it about America that has drawn citizens of foreign lands for more than two centuries? Why do people to this day leave their homelands and risk death aboard rickety boats on the high seas to reach our shores?

The answer, of course, is freedom. It's the freedom which the patriots of this country established with their lives. Freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom of the press, and our rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are unique throughout the world.

Our Constitution, our great democratic process, have survived over the centuries while the unsound governments of many other lands are but the dust of history. Our country has endured because it was founded on principles that are right and true and worth dying for.

Let us never forget that Americans have given their lives in defense of these fragile freedoms that we, in America, have the luxury of referring to as "rights." Let us never take for granted what America's patriots have died to preserve. Let us humbly celebrate these freedoms today. That is the best memorial.

Women In Construction

Women Construction Owners and Executives, USA, a national association for women who own construction firms or make executive decisions in the construction industry, has more than 300 members who promote the role of women in the industry. It estimates that there are over 94,000 women-owned construction firms in the United States, according to the U.S. Labor Department's "Occupational Outlook Quarterly."

Loan Defaults

Illinois student loan defaulters are continuing to lose their federal tax refunds through the cooperative efforts of three agencies. The Illinois Student Assistance Commission (ISAC), the U.S. Department of Education (DOE) and the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) have teamed up for the eighth consecutive year. As of May 7th, this successful program has withheld $11 million in 1992 federal tax refunds from 13,161 individuals.

ISAC has worked closely with the two federal agencies to collect defaulted student loans through the offset of federal tax refunds. Borrowers not paying on their defaulted student loans were notified last fall that their refunds would be withheld unless satisfactory repayment arrangements were made with ISAC. Loans not being paid were assigned to the DOE for certification to the IRS for offset.

In 1992 ISAC mailed notices to 76,153 borrowers notifying them of the possibility that their 1992 tax refunds would be withheld. Of those, 63,050 were certified for offset. "ISAC is committed to pursuing defaulted student loan borrowers. This successful program is just one example of that commitment," said ISAC spokesperson Bob Clement. Total offsets of Illinois' defaulted borrowers since the inception of the tax offset program total $68.3 million.

Borrowers who need assistance in repaying their loans or want to establish a satisfactory repayment arrangement should contact an account representative at 1-800-WEHELP2, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Apprentices

Most people learn a trade through on-the-job training or through an apprenticeship, which provides the most thorough training. Apprenticeships are administered by local employers, trade associations and trade unions. About 45 percent of all apprentices are in training for jobs as electricians, carpenters, plumbers, pipefitters, sheet metal workers and others in the construction industry. These programs usually last 3 to 5 years and combine on-the-job training with classroom instruction, according to the U.S. Labor Department's "Occupational Outlook Quarterly."

O'Malley Opposes Incinerator Subsidies

The Illinois Senate has passed a proposal by State Sen. Patrick O'Malley (R-18) to repeal state subsidies for garbage-burning incinerators. O'Malley's House Bill 979 repeals a law that provides interest-free loans for the operators of garbage incinerators.

"At a time when we are having a great deal of difficulty balancing our budget, how can we justify giving an unnecessary subsidy to businesses that burn garbage in Illinois?" O'Malley said. "By providing this subsidy, Illinois has become a magnet for garbage incinerators and out-of-state garbage. To my knowledge, no other state provides this subsidy."

The Retail Rate Law currently requires electric utilities to buy energy from incinerators at inflated prices. Because the utilities take a tax credit for these excess payments, the net effect is an interest-free loan for incinerator operators, courtesy of Illinois taxpayers.

Sen. O'Malley says lawmakers who oppose this legislation are allowing the continuation of a program that gives garbage incinerators an unfair advantage over other waste management options such as recycling.

"Under present law, taxpayers are having to subsidize an industry that is expensive, produces tons of hazardous ash waste and discourages recycling," O'Malley said. "If we Congressman William O. Lipinski (D-3) announced that he has re-introduced the 'Taxpayers' Right to View' act in the House of Representatives.

Lipinski, who originally introduced the legislation during the 102nd Congress, explained that this measure would prohibit pay-per-view charges for events held in taxpayer subsidized facilities as well as events sponsored by non-profit and public organizations.

"Media analysts have predicted that events such as the Super Bowl and the World Series eventually will migrate to pay-per-view," Lipinski stated. "Many of the facilities in which these events are held are funded through tax revenues. It is simply not right that taxpayers, who subsidize the construction and maintenance of these facilities, should have to pay an additional fee for these events."

In addition, Lipinski explained that non-profit and public organizations, including private educational institutions are exempt—from paying taxes on corporate title sponsorships and advertising, booster club support or royalties.

"Once again, it is the taxpayers who are footing the bill for the tax-exempt status these organizations enjoy," Lipinski noted. "Those who take advantage of this status to engage in pay-per-view telecasting are in essence asking taxpayers to pay again. If it is we the taxpayers, who are paying for their tax-exempt status, why should we be forced to pay an additional fee so that these sports teams and corporations can make millions in additional profits?"

"I believe that if taxpayer money is used to make an event possible, we have a right to public viewing access," Lipinski concluded. The 'Taxpayers' Right to View' act has been referred to the House Committee on Energy Commerce.

The Illinois Senate has passed and sent to the House a bill which would change the eligibility for and distribution of annual state library grants. The change was requested by Secretary of State George Ryan, who also serves as State Librarian. The program, called "Live and Learn" would provide additional revenues to supplement the only source of public funding other than local property taxes. Libraries have suffered from deep funding cuts in recent years, leading to difficult decisions about personnel and programs. Library hours have been curtailed in many cases, including in Chicago and in some neighboring suburbs.

Examples of money allocated to suburban libraries under "Live and Learn" include Oak Lawn Public Library, $70,227, up from $53,372; Acorn Public Library District, $39,621, up from $30,112; Alsip-Merrionette Park Library District, $26,806, up from $20,372; Evergreen Park Public Library, $26,092, up from $19,830; Chicago Ridge Public Library, $17,053, up from $12,960, and Worth Public Library District, $14,333, up from $10,893.

Senator Patrick O'Malley (R-18) was a co-sponsor of the measure in the State Senate.

Homosexuals are pushing to get Crestwood Mayor Chester Stranczek off the Pace Suburban Bus Agency Board. This, in addition to the board's problems with black groups which feel that Pace should have a black on the board. The black leaders point out that the board has 11 suburban mayors, all white, but the ridership of Pace buses is approximately 50 percent black.

Oak Lawn Mayor Ernie Kulb apparently has "someone up there who likes him." On May 12th, Kulb was entered in a golf tournament where he recorded a hole-in-one. The 143-yard ace earned Kulb a new set of clubs.

Newly elected Mayor Jim Richmond of Oak Forest has named Burt Odelson as city attorney.

Evergreen Park Mayor Tony Vacco urges all residents of the southwest suburbs to mail letters to him, not to the post office, supporting his effort to get a suburban (607) ZIP Code for his village. Evergreen now has a Chicago (606) ZIP, three of them as a matter of fact, and Vacco feels that 1993, the Centennial of the incorporation of his village, is the time for Evergreen Park to have its own identity, a suburban ZIP. Send letters to Mayor Anthony Vacco, Evergreen Park Village Hall, 9418 S. Kedzie Ave., Evergreen Park, IL 60642.

Since Norm Corsi was appointed Bremen Township Republican Committeeman by Cook County Chairman Manny Hoffman, organizational changes have been made. Ron Blackstone, who made an unsuccessful bid for Congressman last November is president, Bob Roberts is vice-president, Tom Hanna is secretary, Laverne Tancos is treasurer, and Larry Nolan is sergeant-at-arms.

must grant these subsidies, how much more constructive it would be to redirect them from garbage incinerators to meaningful and effective recycling programs."

House Bill 979 now returns to the House of Representatives for consideration of the Senate amendment.

Health Care Grant

The Suburban Primary Health Care Council, (SPHCC), a private, not-for-profit organization designed to help low-income suburban Cook County residents obtain primary health care services, recently received a grant of $10,000 from the Field Foundation of Illinois, Inc. Access to Care, the program administered by SPHCC, is a unique partnership uniting public and private organizations in an effort to help solve the escalating crisis of the medically uninsured. Members are able to see local physicians in their private offices for $5 per visit. The program also provides laboratory, radiology and pharmacy services for fees of no more than $5 per procedure/prescription medication.

Funded by both public and private sources, Access to Care will serve almost 5,500 individuals throughout the suburbs this year. It receives its primary source of funding from the Cook County Board of Commissioners under the leadership of Board President Richard J. Phelan. It is also funded by townships and municipalities as well as private foundations, corporations, service organizations and individual contributors.

The Access to Care program has been endorsed by the Institute of Medicine of Chicago, the Illinois Academy of Family Physicians and the Illinois Chapter of the American Academy of Pediatrics and supported by the Chicago Medical Society.

Barbara Crotty and Bill Horvath, members of the South Cook County Association of Life Underwriters (SSCALU), take a moment to show Wayne Kraft and Sylvia Kazecki, Park Lawn School students, the finer points of golf. Florence Bolster, 77, of Bridgeview, died Wednesday from injuries sustained last week when a truck accidentally backed over her. Bolster was walking in the 7700 block of So. Oketo Ave. on May 12th when she fell into the path of a truck backing out of a driveway, according to police.

It was stated that the truck driver could not see Bolster. He was flagged down by another woman. When he got out of the truck, he saw Bolster pinned under a rear tire. He tried to get the truck off of the woman with the help of several people but was unsuccessful. Police and fire department vehicles arrived on the scene and were able to free Bolster.

European Graduates A First For St. Xavier

St. Xavier University students Glenda Stephens and Kathryn Ennis will be two of the first European undergraduate students to be awarded bachelor of arts degrees from St. Xavier University at commencement ceremonies on Saturday, May 29th at 1:30 p.m. at the Oak Lawn Pavilion.

Glenda, 20, originally of Dublin and County Meath, Ireland, along with 22 year old Kathryn of County Meath, first came to the United States in August of 1989 as recipients of St. Xavier University scholarships.

"We were both very excited, yet scared. And leaving Ireland and our families was difficult," Ennis said. "But the opportunity for an excellent education, coupled with a chance for such an incredible adventure, was too good to pass up."

Both Glenda and Kathryn elected to pursue a degree in international business from the Graham School of Management. Kathryn, the oldest of a family of six children, moved in with the Obermeyer family of Beverly. "Living with another family was good for me and created a balance between home and school life. They are really wonderful people," she added.

Glenda, on the other hand, oldest of a family of seven children, elected to try "dorm life" at SXU's Regina Hall. "I really wanted independence, along with a 'fun' atmosphere among my peers," she replied.

First impressions of their new 'home' were mixed. "While I really missed my family and friends, I knew this experience would be good for me, and the people at St. Xavier made the transition a smooth one," Glenda said.

Their experiences at St. Xavier are not exactly what the two students had originally perceived. "Glitz television shows depicted a more '90210' type of college life. We were pleasantly surprised to know that St. Xavier was more people-oriented and really focused on providing an excellent education," said Kathryn.

Glenda observed, "I appreciated the one-on-one attention I received as a student. And being on a smaller campus enabled me to develop a number of great relationships with students and faculty. It really began a whole new chapter in my life."

According to Kathryn, it was the rich, ethnic diversity and cultural backgrounds of the students that made St. Xavier appealing to her. "Meeting students from other countries was a major source of support for me. I developed a strong bond with others who were experiencing the same 'newness' of America."

The idea to recruit foreign students began back in 1988 when St. Xavier University President Dr. Ronald Champagne, accompanied by Mary Hendry, vice-president for enrollment management, attended a conference of Mercy Schools and Colleges. During that trip, the need to provide more opportunities for foreign students, as well as to continue to provide St. Xavier students with a strong blend of ethnic cultures and heritages, became immediately apparent and a foreign scholarship program was created.

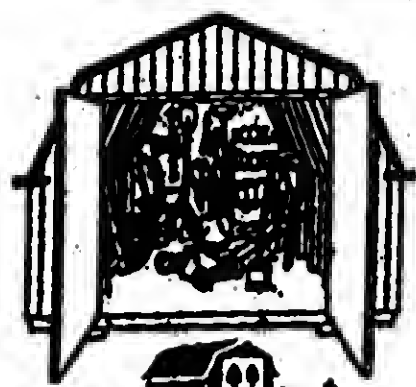

"Coming to Xavier and America was an experience of a lifetime," Glenda said. "I would highly recommend it to anyone who is willing to have an open mind, and is ready to take on more responsibilities for themselves."

Both Glenda and Kathryn plan on spending some additional time in America after graduation. Kathryn hopes to find a position as a fashion buyer at a downtown Chicago firm; Glenda, after a visit to Ireland for the summer, plans on returning to look for a job involving international business. They both hope that more travel opportunities will play a large role in their futures.

Caring for you. And about you.®

Room 1309 in the Daley Center, for many years known as "the children's room" was recently rededicated as "The Rhoda Bresler Children's Room" in recognition of the 20-plus years of service on behalf of children by Mrs. Rhoda Bresler.

Since the early 1970's Mrs. Bresler almost single-handedly ran, and was the driving force behind, the children's room. She began and completely funded the Our Children Foundation, designed to prevent innocent children from witnessing the often acrimonious testimony of their parents and/or relatives during litigation.

Recently, the foundation was renamed the Our Children in the Courts Foundation and is being funded by outside donations since Mrs. Bresler can no longer take as active a role as she had previously played.

Shown in the room at the time of the dedication honoring Mrs. Bresler are, Perry L. Fuller of the Illinois Humane Society; Mrs. Bresler, and Chief Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford.

The parade committee for the 25th annual Independence Day Parade met for the second time recently. One more meeting is scheduled next month to finalize plans for what General Chairman Francis X. Gallagher sees as "the best ever with more than 125 units saluting the Centennial Celebration of the Village of Evergreen Park." The parade, scheduled for 6:15 p.m. on Friday, July 2nd, steps off from 95th and Pulaski then continues east to Francisco, then north to 91st St. where units disband. Members of the committee include (seated) Robin Fullerton, Karen Sexton, Jeanne Callendo, Diane Allen, Linda Kosary, Ellen Thiele; (standing) Wayne Gutkowski, Bill Salamone, Dennis Duffy, Art Hornburg, Dr. James Cross, Francis X. Gallagher and Mayor Anthony Vacco.

"Everyone is welcome to join us for this grandfather of all parades," said Duffy, parade chairman, "you don't have to be a village resident to join in the celebration. This parade is the kick-off of a 16-day intense agenda of events for everyone. Come to Evergreen Park for a great time."

Hole-In-One Contests

Wouldn't it be great to go home $20,000 richer, or take a round-trip vacation for two anywhere in the United States? How about going on a three-day ocean cruise or driving away in a brand-new Cadillac Seville? It's even possible to spend three days golfing in a major resort.

Al Janus of Lexus Financial Services and Tom Shirey of Shirey Cadillac are sponsoring hole-in-one competition at the fourth annual Kennedy School Invitational Golf Tournament on Monday, June 7th at Crystal Tree Golf and Country Club in Orland Park. Proceeds from this event benefit children and adults with developmental disabilities at Kennedy School and Kennedy Job Training Center and abused and neglected babies and toddlers at the Caritas Children's Center.

Each of the five par three holes has a separate hole-in-one contest. If a hole-in-one is scored, the golfer receives the prize designated for that hole.

There will be two flights based on handicaps and a "Peoria System" for golfers without handicaps. The format for the tournament is better ball of two-person teams, and officially begins at 12:30 p.m. with a shotgun start. An optional practice round will take place between 8 and 10 a.m. Also, PGA professional Charles Coody will conduct a golf clinic at 10 a.m. The Kennedy Invitational is open to everyone.

For more information, call Barb Siwinski at (708) 448-6520.

Jailed For Stalking

A 31 year old Chicago Ridge man from the 9800 block of Sayre was ordered held in Cook County Jail without bond last Friday for allegedly attacking his girlfriend a second time.

Patrick Sawyer had been released on electronic home monitoring after he beat his girlfriend the first time. Last Thursday morning, against an order of protection, he entered her home, threw her across a room, pinned her down and then threatened her life.

He was later arrested at Cook County Circuit Court in Bridgeview while appearing in a different case. He has been charged with aggravated stalking.

Sawyer had previous convictions for aggravated assault, battery, resisting a police officer, deceptive practice and burglary.

Receive Boat Launch Grant

Cook County Board President Richard Phelan announced that the Forest Preserve District of Cook County has received a $17,600 grant from the Illinois Department of Conservation to develop an access area for launching canoes and small boats at Saganashkee Slough in Palos Township.

"I am confident that this project will greatly enhance the recreational opportunities for all county residents," Phelan said. "Saganashkee Slough is famous throughout the county as an excellent place to catch crappie and channel catfish. It is my hope that more people will now be able to partake in the fun and relaxation of fishing."

Saganashkee Slough, the district's second largest lake, is one of the most popular of the forest preserve's 42 water areas. The area is also home to a vast number and great variety of wildlife. Large concentrations of waterfowl and shorebirds seek food and shelter within the protected wildlife refuge area during the spring and fall migration periods.

"Once the boat access area is completed, the canoeing, boating, sport-fishing and nature observation opportunities will be greatly expanded," Phelan pointed out.

In 1990 portions of Saganashkee Slough were opened to canoes and small boats. It is now estimated that more than 15,000 anglers and 200 boaters a year enjoy the area. This project, which will take around 18 months to complete, will allow boat access to the water's edge for the entire 24,500 linear feet of Saganashkee's shoreline.

"The forest preserve district was selected to receive the grant because of the contributions this project would make to improving recreational boating opportunities not just in Cook County, but in all of Illinois," Phelan added.

Auto Sticker Renewal

Secretary of State George H. Ryan reminded passenger car owners who have license plates expiring in May to buy their renewal stickers at one of 102 Secretary of State license facilities around the state or at a financial institution that sells stickers. It is now too late to mail applications and guarantee delivery of stickers before the May 31st expiration date.

Locally, renewal stickers may be purchased at the Secretary of State facility in the Ford City Shopping Mall, located near the Cicero Avenue entrance. Stickers also may be purchased at 2,180 financial institutions statewide for a slight additional fee.

The new, dark gray sticker is attached to the back of the ID card. To protect your sticker from theft, remove as many old stickers as possible before placing the new sticker on the rear plate.

Approximately 619,000 pre-printed renewal applications have been mailed to passenger car owners who renew their stickers in May.

Annual "Day For Darlene" Fundraiser

Events associated with the 12th annual MS "Day for Darlene" will be enlivened by sports figures and Hollywood friends of comedian Tom Dreesen, all contributing their part to the success of the fundraising activities. The 'day' actually covers several events including 10K and 5K runs on June 11th and a bowl-a-thon on June 12th, both sponsored by chapters of the Jaycees. The final event is a golf tournament on June 28th organized by south suburban volunteers.

The first "Day for Darlene" was held in 1982 in south suburban communities through the cooperation of Tom Dreesen, his friends in the Jaycee organization and the Chicago-Greater Illinois Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. The events honor the memory of Dreesen's sister, the late Darlene Bethman, who had MS.

Dreesen lives on the West Coast, but maintains close ties to Chicago and the south suburban area where he grew up in Harvey. He has been a member of the MS chapter's board of trustees since 1983 and has taken part in several major chapter events in addition to "Day for Darlene." Event proceeds targeted at $156,000 will benefit multiple sclerosis research and client services covering 73 Illinois counties.

This year for the first time, the Jaycees are concentrating on one major run event sponsored by the Chicago Jaycees. The 5 and 10K Friday evening runs with participation by the Chicago Area Runners Association (CARA) will be held at 6:45 p.m. beginning at the Columbia Yacht Club in Grant Park. Participants will be welcomed after the runs at Baja Beach Club and an awards ceremony will be held on the Promenade Balcony of North Pier. Baja Beach Club also will be conducting promotional activities for two weeks in advance of the event.

The runs include prizes to the top two male and female finishers in each age category as well as for the top overall male and female finishers in each race. Advance registration for the event is $10 with a $15 fee charged on the day of the runs. Participants are encouraged to seek sponsors to qualify for additional prizes awarded according to the amount of funds raised.

For registration information and details of the events, call the MS chapter at (312) 922-8000 or 1(800)922-0484.

White Requests Computer Update

Breathing life into the much-beleaguered project to bring his office into the 21st century, newly-elected Cook County Recorder of Deeds Jesse White recently released a request for proposals (RFP) for a fully integrated computer system to modernize and streamline the present operation.

White put in place an experienced, full-time computer expert to oversee the project shortly after taking office. Noland Joiner, White's director of technical services, brought business acumen and vision to the process. Joiner's credentials include degrees in both computer science and business management and a successful record in the private sector.

"We looked at last year's RFP and the process both vendors and the Cook County Board experienced," White said. "But after careful review, we couldn't justify going with what was in place. It simply did not reflect the mission or strategies of this administration."

White directed Joiner to redraft the RFP, while stipulating a mandatory June 15th deadline, to avoid further delays in the long-awaited project. This release, more than three weeks ahead of schedule, reflects White's commitment to taxpayers to get the job done.

"We have an exceptionally aggressive timeline for this project," White added. "The successful vendor must present a plan which coincides with our schedule and includes methodology to meet completion of Phase I by May 1994."

White emphasized the importance of strategies for employee training, on-site vendor management and conversion of existing records. He offered assurances that each proposal will be fairly evaluated on its merits and compliance with the RFP and encouraged vendors who went through the bidding process last year to participate once again.

The RFP will be available for pickup in the recorder's office until Friday, May 28th at 4 p.m. True to his promise to keep the project on track, White expects to choose a vendor no later than August.

Patriotic Forum

A week-long national patriotic conference will be held in the main auditorium of Hyles-Anderson College, Crown Point, Indiana, beginning Monday, June 7th and concluding Friday, June 11th. Sponsored by scores of churches and schools from around the country, including several from the Chicago metropolitan area, this national "God Save America" conference will focus on the shared value system that united our nation in its early days. More than 20 notable speakers from the political, educational and religious fields will address the conference crowd, and a combined festival chorus will sing at each nightly meeting. Morning sessions begin at 9 a.m. The major evening addresses start at 7 p.m. Special arrangements have been made for meals and accommodations at the conference site.

Kristen Needs Help

Kristen Kocourek, daughter of Joanne and Tom Kocourek of Worth, has been diagnosed as having a disorder of the center of her respiratory control called congenital central hypoventilation syndrome. The disease, also known as anomalous innominate artery compression, affects its victims during sleep when breathing sometimes stops altogether. At other times, breathing is so shallow that air cannot enter the lungs, resulting in low blood oxygen levels. In addition, the three-year-old Kristen experiences significant drops in heart rate and a decrease in the normal flow of blood throughout her body.

KRISTEN KOCOUREK

Many established children's charities are unable to help Kristen since they are concerned with specific conditions, and Kristen's does not come under these guidelines. In addition, the family's medical insurance has not covered a significant portion of expenses, or the cost of items needed to care for a medically fragile, ventilator dependent child at home.

An iron lung, ventilator and multiple monitoring systems are part of Kristen's everyday life. Kristen also must undergo occupational and speech therapy, a medical regimen that keeps her from enjoying the company of her brother and sister, Joshua and Annales.

As Kristen's medical condition has deteriorated, the family's financial resources have dwindled as the demands have increased significantly. Support from family, friends, employers have given Kristen's immediate family the capability of providing necessary love and care for her.

Any modest contribution the public is willing to offer would be greatly appreciated. Send contributions payable to First Chicago Bank for the Benefit of Kristen Kocourek, Attn: Diane Murray, 6838 W. 111th St., Worth, IL 60482.

Kristen's family and friends are planning a summer benefit. For information on how to assist, call Joanne at (708) 361-1867.

School Revision

The Illinois Senate has approved legislation sponsored by State Sen. Patrick O'Malley (R-18) to help schools save money by using non-certified staff to supervise non-teaching situations.

"The School Code currently requires certified staff members to supervise study hall, detention and other non-teaching situations. At a time when many school districts are having difficulty with their budgets, this is a costly and frankly unnecessary mandate," O'Malley said. "Lifting this mandate will save money and make better use of educators' teaching skills."

"I have received dozens of letters from school district officials estimating their annual cost savings with this relatively simple change, and they are significant," O'Malley pointed out. "Just two school districts in my area expect to save nearly $1 million, and there are 936 other school districts in Illinois."

The 18th District Senator says Consolidated High School District 230 in Palos and Orland Townships would save an estimated $560,000 and Community High School District 218 in Worth Township would save nearly $400,000.

House Bill 1218 also contains a provision that establishes a school district loan program to be administered by the Illinois Development Finance Authority. The loans are to be used for education purposes only. The finance authority is to establish criteria for determining eligibility and the amount and term of each loan.

"Although the state's budget currently has little room for new initiatives, this is a good program that we can have in place if revenue growth makes additional funding available," O'Malley said.

House Bill 1218 now returns to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

"This legislation will be very beneficial for our schools and I certainly hope that the House of Representatives gives it the serious consideration it deserves," O'Malley concluded. "I would encourage citizens to contact their State Representatives and ask them to support the bill."

BASEBALL ROUND-UP

Regular season games are fast approaching the end of their schedule and teams are now gearing up for playoff battles. It's time to pull out all the stops and get down to the nitty gritty.

Monday Games (May 17)

Brother Rice 3 - De La Salle 2

Crusader bats rose to the occasion and came from behind for a 3-2 Catholic League North win that not only took the game, but clinched the league title as well.

A double in the bottom of the seventh by Mike Englebrecht drove home Brandon Dumas to seal the win. In the bottom of the sixth, Mike Strich came to the plate and tied the score with a two-out round tripper.

Jim Sexton earned his sixth victory of the season against no losses. He pitched an inning of relief to take the win.

"We'll be prepared for teams of a high caliber in the state journey," noted Crusader Coach Cliff Petrak.

St. Rita 5 - Weber 1

The Mustangs put another notch in their win column during Catholic League action at Weber. Jason Wallace allowed only one hit and one unearned run while recording his seventh win.

At the plate, John Nee went 2 for 3 with a pair of RBI while Pete Kelly was 2 for 4 with a RBI.

Sandburg 6 - Stagg 3

Eric Welsh was the hero of the game as his team got past Stagg's Chargers 6-3 in Palos Hills during SICA North play. Welsh pitched four innings of scoreless relief and gave up only one hit.

A two-run double off the bat of Pat Fitzgerald in the top of the sixth with two out broke a 3-3 tie. Other hot bats for Sandburg were Eric Losieczka (2 for 4 with two runs scored) and Jim Wroblewski (a perfect 3 for 3 with a RBI and one run scored).

Shepard 13 - Richards 0

The Bulldogs came away with the proverbial goose egg while the Astros tallied lucky number 13 with a 13-0 victory in Palos Heights during SICA North action. It only took five innings for Craig Tacy to add a win. He also had a pair of hits and two RBI.

Astro Darin Protolipac connected for two hits and scored twice.

Reavis 9 - Argo 3

Ram power was going strong as they captured a 9-3 victory over the Argonauts during SICA North play. Argonaut highlight was the batting of Doug Hillburger as he tallied a 2 for 3 performance with a double, three-run round tripper, and two runs scored.

St. Joseph 8 - Marist 4

Six errors cost the Redskins this East Suburban Catholic contest against the St. Joseph Chargers in Westchester 8-4.

Redskin hurler Nick Djikus was the victim of eight unearned runs. Offensively, Marist had the talents of T.J. Barcelona's pair of hits, a triple, and RBI plus a three-run round tripper from Brian Harmon.

St. Laurence 5 - Providence 0

The Vikings took care of Providence's Celtics with a 5-0 shutout in New Lenox during nonconference action.

At the plate, Vikes Jason Amato (a perfect 3 for 3) and Mark Gukowski (2 for 3 with an RBI) had the power.

On the mound, Scott Rampage earned his fourth win of the season by going the distance and throwing a two-hitter.

Tuesday Games (May 18)

Marist 3 - St. Rita 1

Marist's Redskins toppled St. Rita's Mustangs 3-1 in Mount Greenwood.

Redskin pitcher Mike Sommerfield gave up only three hits to Mustang batters and fanned seven.

Bremen 6 - Hillcrest 1

The Braves made it look easy as they tallied a 6-1 victory over Hillcrest's Hawks during SICA Central play in Midlothian.

Brave Joe Vressanellis extended his hitting streak to 25 contests as he clouted an RBI double.

Evergreen Park 14 - Leo 4

The Mustangs proved that the Lions aren't necessarily the king of beasts as they breezed to a 14-4 victory.

Evergreen bats clouted three homers in the fourth inning to clinch the game.

Wednesday Games (May 19)

Shepard 10 - Sandburg 9

The Astros surprised the Eagles with a 10-9 upset during SICA North action. Shepard came back from a 7-2 deficit in the fifth to take the win. Tony Hull connected for a two-run triple and Jim Paul slugged a bags-jammed double. Jim Dallio added a pair of hits, a solo round tripper, and a pair of RBI.

On the mound, Astro Brian Chillmon hurled three innings of relief for his sixth win.

Stagg 4 - Reavis 2

Pat Rush tallied his second win this season as he gave up only a trio of hits and fanned nine as his team prevailed during SICA North action. At the plate, Lou Pinto went 2 for 3 with a pair of doubles and two runs scored. Ed Modla was 2 for 2 with two runs scored and adding a pair of RBI apiece were Chris Vandertuuk and Ryan Darrah.

Richards 6 - Oak Lawn 4

The Bulldogs put the bite on the Spartans as Steve Kawa was 3 for 4 with a three-run homer. He also earned the win in relief of Doug Kirar, who left the game with a dislocated shoulder.

St. Rita 7 - De La Salle 2

The Mustangs brought down the Meteors during Catholic League play. John Nee was 2 for 3 with a pair of RBI while Jerry Sisul tallied 2 for 3 with two runs scored and an RBI.

Steve Batinich tallied his fourth win of the year.

Mt. Carmel 6 - St. Laurence 5

The Caravan came from behind in the bottom of the seventh to steal a 6-5 Catholic League win over the Vikings.

Batting high spots for the Vikes were a solo homer by Matt

Daley, a two-run triple from Wayne Druktenis, and an RBI single off the bat of Joe DiGangi.

St. Joseph 7 - Marist 3

The Chargers dominated Marist to take the East Suburban Catholic Conference title. Eight Redskin errors proved to be the downfall. Tallying RBI for Marist were Bob Vahl, Pat Sullivan and Mark Schodrof.

Argo 2 - Bloom 0

The Argonauts edged Bloom 2-0 during non-conference play. Offensive highlights for Argo included Kujtim Sadiku's steal of home plate, a 2 for 3 performance by Tony Novak, and Brian Burian was a perfect 2 for 2 with a RBI. Jason Michalowicz tossed a four-hit game.

Thursday Games (May 20)

Lemont 1 - Evergreen Park 0

Lemont's Injuns scalped the Mustangs 1-0 during Class A Westmont Regional play. This ends the '93 season for the Mustangs, who had been seeded No. 1 in the regional.

Sandburg 6 - Shepard 3

The Eagles soared to their fourth consecutive SICA North championship crown with a 6-3 victory over the Astros. Leading the assault were Jim Wroblewski (2 for 3 with a RBI), Pat Fitzgerald (2 for 3 with two runs scored), Eric Welsh (2 for 3 with a round tripper, two runs and a RBI) and Jason Barone (a three-run double).

Todd Mensik recorded his eighth win of the year against three losses.

Reavis 9 - Stagg 8

The Rams got their act together and came out with a SICA North win. Bob Davila connected for the game-winning single while on the mound, he earned the save, fanning the last Charger batter.

Also hitting for the Rams was David O'Dell with a 2 for 4 performance that included a trio of RBI.

Hillcrest 6 - Bremen 5

The Braves tumbled as they faced the Hawks during SICA Central play. This was Bremen's 11th loss of the season against 16 wins.

Friday Game (May 21)

St. Laurence 6 - Bogan 0

The Vikes make it look easy as Joe DiGangi fanned eight Bengal batters and gave up only five hits for a complete game win.

St. Laurence rallied for five in the fifth with the bats of Nick Togas (a run-scoring triple), a two-run triple from Pete Lotus, and tallying a RBI apiece were Scott Rampage and Ken Warzynski.

Saturday Games (May 22)

St. Rita 4 - Providence 3

The Mustangs prevailed over the Celtics as Brian Romanowski and John Nee clouted homers while ace Jason Wallace gave up only four hits and fanned eight.

Bremen 12-11 - Rich East 1-6

Brave bats were swinging and connecting as they swept a double header from Rich East. The offense was led with the power of Adam Verble and Mickey Oganovich with six hits and four RBI apiece.

Stagg 20-8 - Joliet Central 14-5

The Chargers came away with a pair of victories as Chris Vandertuuk pounded four hits and four RBI in game one and was the winning pitcher.

In the nightcap, Steve Vandertuuk drove in the game-winning runs in the seventh inning as he pounded a two-run triple.

The Brother Rice varsity track team won its first Catholic League championship in 15 years on May 15th at Loyola Academy. The Crusaders, who warmed up for the title meet with three straight victories at the Andrew, Tinley Park and Sandburg Invitionals, were led by a senior-dominated team poised for an upset of favored St. Rita. "Our goal all year was to win the league with our depth. There are no superstars on this team," said Brother Rice track coach Bill Gleeson. "We had a great group of seniors this year who were hard working and goal oriented. They wanted to leave their mark with this victory because they were not the favorites," he said.

The Crusaders were led by seniors Vince McAuliffe of Evergreen Park, who won the two-mile and finished second in the mile run; Abdul Levy of Beverly, who took third in the long jump and fourth in the high jump; Gerald Thomas of Chicago, who finished fifth in the 110 high hurdles; Fran Tumlinello of Oak Lawn, who finished second in discus, and Argilla Scott of Chicago, who finished second in the triple jump. "Argilla jumped a foot longer than he ever had before, and that really helped us," Gleeson said. Tumlinello and Scott, defensive linemen on the Rice football team have also accepted football scholarships, Tumlinello, at St. Xavier University in Chicago and Scott, at Southern Illinois University.

Juniors who helped Brother Rice to victory included Ed Rozell of Beverly, who won the 400 meter and the long jump. "Ed has already begun receiving letters from colleges wanting him to run for them. He's a very talented kid," Gleeson said. Other juniors included Kevin O'Connor of Evergreen Park, who was second in the two mile run; Mike Bond of Chicago, who was fourth in the 100 meter dash, Brandon Washington of Blue Island, who was fifth in the 500 IH, and Ryan Phelan of Evergreen Park, who was fourth in the 800 meter run.

Alcohol And Boating Safety

Memorial Day weekend traditionally marks the beginning of summer and its outdoor activities. During this period, the National Safety Council urges people to remember important safety guidelines, especially when boating.

Ironically, in a society where drinking and driving is socially unacceptable, setting sail with a boatload of alcohol is a common practice. According to the U.S. Coast Guard, alcohol is involved in 50 percent of boating fatalities nationwide.

What goes unnoticed by the more than 17 million families and individuals who enjoy recreational boating is that alcohol has the same effect on the brain whether one is driving a car or operating a boat. When a person has been drinking, the brain becomes depressed and it processes information more slowly. The result is delayed reaction time in sudden high-demand situations, such as navigating through stormy weather, rough currents or boat-clogged waterways. Only a few drinks can be enough to cause the operator to make a fatal mistake.

In addition, boat passengers who consume alcohol increase the risk of losing their balance and falling overboard. Fellow passengers, who also could be intoxicated, may not act quickly enough to prevent a tragedy.

Boating while intoxicated is not only dangerous, but is illegal. Almost every state has some law against operating a boat under the influence. Many states have a blood alcohol standard for boating, with stiff penalties for violations.

The National Safety Council urges everyone to use caution this Memorial Day weekend: when setting sail, stay sober.

Memorial Day Stock Car Races

On Saturday, May 29th and Sunday, May 30th, Santa Fe Speedway gears up for a two-day stock car Memorial Day weekend celebration featuring Chicago's finest clay oval competitors locking horns as the NASCAR/Winston Racing Series rolls on.

Saturday is Hogwash "Night at the Races" featuring hundreds of dollars of prize giveaways and more plus four divisions of stock cars waging war on the quarter-mile action-clay: Late Model, Sportsman, Lightning Rod and S.T.A.R. cars.

On Sunday, the Late Model and Sportsman cars will be back to take it up a notch in the first big half-mile show of the year, the Miller Genuine Draft "50" Stock Car Championship. Plus, Sunday night is also Miller Hat Night featuring FREE racing caps with the purchase of an adult admission at the gates while supplies last. Both nights, gates open at six, time trials are at seven and the drop of the green flag is set for 8 p.m.

Santa Fe Speedway is located on the corner of 91st and Wolf Road, just off the I-55/I-294 Interchange in Hinsdale, 20 miles southwest of Chicago's Loop; 24-hour hotline, (708) 839-1050.

OUTDOORS

By Jim Kirby

This ANNUAL ILLINOIS OUTDOOR WRITER SPRING CONFERENCE sponsored by The Illinois Department of Conservation; Williamson County Tourism Bureau; Marion Holiday Inn; Winchester Division-Olin Corp. and many other groups provided outdoor writers an opportunity to experience numerous recreational activities and "Southern Hospitality" right here in Illinois.

Illinois Department of Conservation Director BRENT MANNING and staff conducted a seminar designed to bring outdoor writers up to date on important issues, to pass on to the general public such as: Joliet Arsenal Grounds MAY BE opened this fall for deer, pheasant and migratory fowl hunting • House Bills #1990 & 1991 are in trouble. These bills provide increased license fees to be used for many useful and needed purposes such as base fishery management, Lake Michigan fish management, law enforcement, land management and habitat expansion. The last fee increases were in 1982. We have 1.4 million dedicated anglers in Illinois who continue to demonstrate their willingness to pay for their sport fishing opportunities in Illinois • Illinois ranks 47th in the nation in the amount of Public Land available per capita • An ad-hoc committee has been formed to consider quota zone goose hunting alternatives such as shooting 1/2 hour before sunrise, stop at 1 p.m. certain days, no shooting 2 days a week and limit goose hunters to 5 shells per bird limit to discourage "Sky Busting," that flares the birds away from other hunters and can cripple birds. In 1992 there were 106 clubs registered in the quota zone. • Division of fisheries records for FY-91 show that for every dollar spent by the division, anglers returned 131 dollars to the states economy through direct spending on sport fishing activities. • Senate Bill 841 will raise the commercial perch catch to a level that can be devastating to the Lake Michigan perch population.

Our group had the opportunity to shoot "5-Station Sporting Clays" a variation of regulation sporting clays. The clay pigeons fly from different trap houses at varying angles and directions. The course was quite challenging and takes up no more room than a normal skeet or trap field.

We were given a unique 6 mile tour of the Shawnee National Forest via "Wagons Pulled by Horses and Mules." The wagons were circled around a campfire and after a delicious barbecue we were entertained by a story teller and then witnessed the release of an owl that had been injured and rehabilitated.

As outdoor writers, we were interested in the fishing opportunities in Williamson County. A choice of Lake and guides were offered. I selected LAKE OF EGYPT and had tournament fisherman and professional hunting and fishing guide CYRIL BOWLIN as my guide. His well equipped bass boat took us to several spots and after a few changes in tactics CYRIL put us into fantastic L.M. Bass fishing. He rigged up a lure I had never seen before named the BASS ASSASSIN. He rigged it Texas style and had us cast into heavy weed cover and retrieve very slowly, as the "Bass Assassin" came to the outside edge of the weeds, the bass hit. All fish were released including fish of trophy-size. At the end of the day, I conned CYRIL out of 6 "Bass Assassin" lures, I can't wait to try them out on my next local bass fishing trip.

CYRIL guides on Rend Lake, Lake of Egypt, Crab Orchard and other Lakes in the area. He has 2 pointers and 2 English setters that he uses when guiding hunters over wild quail. This mild mannered, knowledgeable guide can be contacted at (618) 724-4725 or write: CYRIL BOWLIN, R.R. #2, Box 77, Benton, Ill., 62812.

Beautiful Williamson County is only a 5 1/2 hour drive down I-57 and is THE PLACE for outdoor recreation in Southern Illinois.

Injury Free Tips

Spring is the season for budding young athletes to take to the fields and courts. It's also time for strains and other over-use injuries to take their toll on young bodies. Here are some tips to keep your kids physically fit and free from injuries this summer.

It's important to have a child build up slowly to a high level of exertion. Over-use injuries occur most often when kids are out of shape at the beginning of the season. These strains usually respond well to rest but can cause major problems if kids continue to re-injure the area with practice.

Over-use injuries have become more prevalent recently because, instead of playing a variety of sports, kids play one sport all year and repeatedly stress the same muscles and joints. Have this sort of injury addressed by a doctor if kids complain of consistent pain in one area that intensifies with motion.

If your kids will be playing a sport this summer, be sure they condition slowly before they begin a vigorous workout regimen. Be sure they carefully follow the instructions of coaches so they practice and use equipment properly. And remember to put the emphasis on fun and sportsmanship over competition.

Maria Sports Camps

Maria High School's summer sports camps include softball, basketball, gymnastics and volleyball during the months of June and July. All camps offer group and individual instruction; contests and awards; refreshments, and summer camp T-shirt. A variety of levels are available for various age groups from 3rd grade to 8th.

For more information call Maria's athletic director at (312) 925-8686.

Infamous Destruction Tournament

On Friday, May 28th, Santa Fe Speedway kicks off the Memorial Day weekend in style, hosting part two of the infamous eight-part Tournament of Destruction. It's a fender-bendin', door-slammin' occasion team demolition affair. Ladies racing, S.T.A.R. cars and the unbelievable Figure-Eight competition are also on tap. Gates open at six, mud-slinging begins at 8 p.m.

Veteran Destructo-Kings, Mean Green Machines, have jumped out to an early-season advantage in the season-long climb to the dubious honor of sitting at the top of the heap. They are not alone, however, as 1991 Champions, the Locomotives, are right on their rear bumper. Quick Silver, Destruction Company and defending Champs, the Plow Boys, have locked horns for third with rookie team Smokin' Thunder. Rude Awakening, the Wrecking Crew and Damage, Inc. rounding out the field of demolition mavens.

Women In Aviation To Be Air Show Highlight

Women in aviation will be saluted at the 35th anniversary of the Chicago Park District Air and Water Show on Aug. 21st and 22nd, according to Chicago Park District General Superintendent Robert C. Penn. For the first time, the show will highlight performances by three female civilian pilots, more than in any other air show in the country.

The oldest and largest annual air and water show in the United States, the park district show features a combination of U.S. military and civilian aircrafts, high flying acrobatics and watercraft performances.

"Saluting women in aviation continues a celebration of the outstanding accomplishments and contributions women make to our society," said Penn. "The 35th anniversary of the show appropriately promotes that, among many things, women can also fly with the best of them."

Military aircraft requested to appear in the show include the U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds; the U.S. Navy Seals; a U.S. Air Force F-15; the U.S. Army Apache; the U.S.

Marine Corps Harrier; the Royal Air Force Tornado; the Illinois Air National Guard KC-135; the U.S. Air Force Reserve C-130; the U.S. Air Force B1B Bomber, and a U.S. Coast Guard air/sea rescue.

Six civilian acts, all new to this year's show, are aerial acrobatic pilots whose acts feature a bi-plane; the P-51 Mustang WWII fighter plane; a Pitts special high-performance bi-plane; an Extra 300 high performance aerobatic aircraft; and the T-6, a former military training plane. In a salute to WWII fighter pilots, simulated gun runs and bombing runs will be staged, ending in a pyrotechnics display with a 200-foot long wall of fire.

In addition to the U.S. Coast Guard Air/Sea rescue, the show will feature the U.S. Navy Seals parachuting into Lake Michigan in a simulated beach assault.

More than 2,000,000 people are anticipated to line Chicago's lakefront for the largest two-day spectator event in the country.

The Chicago Air and Water Show began in 1958 when the park district planned a children's show for youngsters enrolled in summer programs. A crowd of several thousand was reported for a show that featured a Coast Guard helicopter demonstration of an air/sea rescue and a greased pole climbing contest.

The show is the culmination of a 35 day promotional campaign by the park district called "The 35 Days of Summer" beginning July 17th. The promotional campaign is designed to heighten awareness of the various programs, special events and activities available to the public this summer throughout Chicago's 500 parks and beaches.

For further information on the Chicago Air and Water Show or the "35 Days of Summer," call (312) 294-2317.

Rainbow Murals

In March, the art club of Queen of Peace High School donated six hours of time and artistic talent to paint two murals on the walls of Rainbow House, a shelter for women and children. The murals are the art club's service project, and were made possible with the proceeds of an art sale earlier this year. The money raised at the sale was used to buy supplies for the murals. The students who donated their time and artistic talents are Lila Dawidowicz (St. Albert the Great), Dianne Hoyne (St. Fabian), Donna Liedman (St. Daniel the Prophet), Louise Martinez (St. Roman), Lori Peterson (St. Louis de Montfort), Diane Schmitz (Queen of the Universe), Jill Serio (St. Jerome), Jill Synoga (St. Louis de Montfort) and Larisa Vlcek (St. Turibius).

Ms. Sandra Mrozak, art teacher and moderator of the club, is proud of the artistic work and dedication displayed by the students. The Rainbow House staff was most appreciative of the beautiful contribution which will be enjoyed by the children of the shelter for many years.

C.A.P.S. ADVISORY COMMITTEE MEETING.... The 22nd District of the City of Chicago/Department of Police, the district which serves the Beverly Hills, Morgan Park and Mount Greenwood area, has been designated as one of the five prototype districts in the City of Chicago to implement a new, and innovative community policing program called C.A.P.S. The C.A.P.S. (Chicago Alternative Policing Strategy) Advisory Committee will hold a roll-out meeting on June 15 at 6 p.m. at the Morgan Park United Methodist Church, 11030 S. Longwood Drive. The committee will consist of community and business leaders, Alderman Ginger Rugai, representatives from other city agencies and Dennis M. Lesniak, Commander 22nd District, City of Chicago Department of Police.

COMMANDER LESNIAK said the district model will enable police and community residents to work closely with each other to solve problems of crime in the neighborhood and to improve the quality of life for people who reside in the 22nd District.

MAYOR RICHARD M. DALEY will be introduced by Commander Lesniak and Daley will explain in greater detail how the C.A.P.S. program will work and how community residents can participate in the program.

In addition to information on the C.A.P.S. program, the meeting will also include an explanation of the new 911 emergency system by Matt L. Rodriguez, Superintendent of the Chicago Police Department along with Deputy Chief Charles Ramsey, and details on the Court Watch program by Jim Reilly, Special Counsel to Mayor Daley.

COMMANDER LESNIAK said residents of the area covered by the 22nd District are invited to attend the June 15 meeting and can obtain further information on the C.A.P.S. meeting by calling the 22nd District's Neighborhood Relations Unit at 747-1104.

DANNY SULLIVAN (inset) is just one of 33 drivers who will put the pedal to the metal when the green flag is dropped this Sunday at 11 a.m. Chicago time for the running of the "Greatest Spectacle in Racing"—the Indianapolis 500. New rules installed this year by the Indianapolis Motor Speedway have reduced speeds a little over previous years, however only five miles per hour is the difference between the cars on the front row which average about 222 mph and the cars at the back of the pack which qualified at an average of about 217 mph.

In addition to the restrictions on the Indy Cars, Tony George, President of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, and the United States Auto Club (USAC) have installed "rumble strips" coming out of the pits and into turn one and stretches of grass have been placed on the inside of all four turns so the drivers will not be able to bring their cars down below the yellow line on the inside of the track.

The new "rumble strips" and the grass in the turns has cut down "the line" most drivers take coming into the turns and will make it virtually impossible to pass another car in any of the four turns at the Speedway.

INDY "500" officials feel the new restrictions on power as well as the new configuration of the two-and-one-half-mile oval will make for better and cleaner racing.

The enthusiasm for the new look of the Speedway is, however, not shared by all the drivers who are entered in the "Indy 500." Many of the drivers have complained that the new "grassy areas" will make it more dangerous coming into any of the turns and each car and driver will have to drop down into single file to get through the four turns without "kissing" the outside retaining wall.

INDIANAPOLIS MOTOR SPEEDWAY officials dispute the argument and feel the new restrictions on speed, about eight miles per hour slower than last year, and the removal of the apron below the yellow line on the inside of all four turns and the installation of grass, will only serve to make for safer and more competitive racing.

THE COUNTDOWN IS ON for the "Greatest Spectacle in Racing," the "Indy 500," and if you are not lucky enough to be one of the approximately 450,000 people who will trek to Speedway, Indiana on the outskirts of Indianapolis for the race this Sunday, you can catch all the pre-race hoopla on WLS-TV, Channel 7 beginning at 10 a.m. this Sunday or on WBBM Newsradio 78.

THE SPEEDS AND THE TRACK AT "INDY" will not be the only modifications or alterations to the famous "brickyard." This year the four most famous words in racing, "Gentlemen, Start Your Engines," will be modified to "Gentlemen and Lady, Start Your Engines." The reason is Lyn St. James, a female driver out of Daytona Beach, has placed her 1993 Lola-Ford Cosworth machine in 21st position on the outside of row seven at an average speed of 218.042 mph for all four laps of qualifying.

"INDY" WRAP-UP.... The restrictions on down force which have reduced speeds coupled with the new contour of old "brickyard" should add up to making the running of the "Seventy Seventh Indy 500" one of the best races in recent memory.

"GENTLEMEN AND LADY, START YOUR ENGINES."

Irish Fest '93 This Weekend

Chicago Gaelic Park, the Irish cultural and athletic center, 6119 W. 147th St., will hold its seventh annual Irish Festival on Memorial Day weekend. Frank Bradley, fest chairman, said the four-day festival would use every part of the 18-acre complex.

Irish Fest '93 has something for everyone. More than 40 of the finest Irish and American groups will provide continuous entertainment on four stages. International recording stars such as Carmel Quinn (pictured), The Dublin City Ramblers, Paddy Reilly, Black 47, Sharon Shannon, Conal Gallen, Johnny McEvoy, Tip Splinter, Dave Coady's Irish Express, and Noel Henry's Irish Showband will be joined by such local favorites as

CARMEL QUINN

"Ed Zeppelin" (managed by Kevin Matthews of WLUP AM1000), Arranmore, The Dancing Noodles, and Joel Daly and the Sundowners. Two of the stages have covered seating areas and special dance floors that allow the crowd to "get into the act" and be comfortable in any weather. New this year will be performances by the "Gaelic Park Players."

Once again there will be an exhibition of Gaelic sports. Gaelic football, the most popular game in Ireland is a hard hitting action-packed game that mixes elements of basketball, American football and soccer. Games will be played by both men and women. Hurling, the world's fastest ground game, will also be exhibited.

This year's fest boasts 20 Irish Import stores and 16 food vendors giving a wide selection for shoppers. There will also be several bag pipe bands and Irish step dancing performers.

Gaelic Park's Irish Fest is a family event with great emphasis on entertaining children. One stage is dedicated exclusively for the kids and will feature "Circus Magic," "Irish Puppet Review," "Barney Blarney," "The Garfield Goose Show," "Aladdin Antics," "Moppet Moments," "Paul, the Prince of Jugglers" and many more. If the kids want to participate, there is face painting, red hair and freckle face contests and a 'Bonnie Baby' contest. Probably the favorite attraction for the kids is the exciting carnival midway and this year's carnival is bigger and better than ever. The admission price of $8 includes entertainment, contests and fun plus unlimited rides on over 15 attractions. Besides the ever popular Ferris Wheel, Merry-go-round, Tilt-a-whirl and Super Orhiter there will be Bumper cars, the Zipper, Super Sizzler, Music Fest, Sea Dragon, Moon-Walk and much more.

Many large families take advantage of the half price admission on Friday, May 28th from 3 to 4:30 p.m.

There is plenty of free parking for the festival. Over 20 acres are available at the fest site, weather permitting. There is free parking with free continuous shuttle bus service to and from the festival at Brentowne Mall, 159th & Oak Park Ave., the Metra Station, 159th & Cicero and 159th & Central.

Brother Rice High School has dedicated its library in honor of the school's first librarian, Brother Eugene Pilon. Over 200 friends of the Brother Rice community attended the mass and dedication ceremony. Brother Pilon is a member of the founding faculty of the school and was Brother Rice's librarian from 1959 until he retired in 1977. He is the founder of the Alumnae Mothers' Club and was its moderator for more than 20 years. He is still an active member of the Brothers' Community and resides in the Brothers' residence adjacent to the school.

Brother Pilon became a Christian Brother in 1931 and enjoyed his Golden Jubilee in 1981 during a weekend celebration attended by 550 people. During his teaching career, he taught Latin, French, and mathematics in Christian Brothers ministries in Canada, Seattle, Butte, Montana, New York and at Chicago's Leo High School. He has B.A. and M.A. degrees from Seattle University and a B.L.S. from Rosary College.

For the past 37 years, Brother Pilon has been associated with Brother Rice. While the school building was being erected, he acted as liaison and public relations man for the provincial government in New Rochelle, N.Y. In February of 1956, after the entrance exams had been given and six months before the school opened, he organized the mothers' club and sought financial help for the fledgling institution. In 1959, Brother Pilon began his career as full-time librarian, a post which he held for 18 years. Throughout the years, he has received several awards. In 1963 he was awarded a plaque as founder and first moderator of the Mothers' Club. In 1975 he was elected to the Brother Rice Hall of Fame. In 1976 he was selected as the 'Alumnus of the Year' at Leo High School.

The Brother Rice Library, one of the largest and most modern of any high school in Chicago, will be known from now on as the Brother Eugene Pilon Learning Resources Center. Plaques bearing the new name hang above the entrance to the center and outside its reference room.

Brother Rice High School principal, Br. Michael Segvich and school board of directors chairman James Kean are shown with Brother Pilon during the dedication ceremony.

Scleroderma Talk

"Spectrum of Scleroderma" is the subject of a public information meeting to be held at Hinsdale Hospital's Regnery Auditorium, 120 N. Oak St., at 12:30 p.m. on Sunday, June 27th. The program will be presented by Steven H. Kozlowski, M.D., attending rheumatologist, Albert J. Iammaritino, M.D., attending rheumatologist, and L. Douglas Graham, M.D., adult and pediatric rheumatologist. Scleroderma, or systemic sclerosis, is a chronic connective tissue disease generally classified as one of the rheumatic diseases.

The term "scleroderma" comes from two Greek words: "sclero" meaning hard, and "derma" meaning skin. This term is used because hardening of the skin is one of the most visible manifestations of the disease. The disease has been called "progressive systemic sclerosis," but the use of that term has been discouraged since it has been found that scleroderma is not necessarily progressive. There are several forms that the disease may take and there is also much patient-to-patient variability.

Scleroderma is a disease whose symptoms may be visible, as in the case when the skin is affected, or invisible, as when internal organs are affected. Scleroderma is not contagious, is not infectious, is not cancerous or malignant, and is not hereditary.

In scleroderma excess collagen production may cause scarring and narrowing of the blood vessels, leading to life threatening changes in the functioning of the heart, lungs, kidneys and alimentary canal. It is estimated that there may be 250,000 to 300,000 scleroderma patients in the United States. The initial manifestations — joint and muscle pain, low-grade fever, weight loss and fatigue — mimic other more common autoimmune rheumatic diseases like rheumatoid arthritis and systemic lupus erythematosus. The cause of scleroderma is unknown and there is no cure.

The Scleroderma Foundation of Greater Chicago, is a non-profit organization committed to patient care, education, and research. For additional information, write or call our office (312) 922-3532.

"Park Smart" Program Underway

The statewide 'Park Smart' program was set in motion earlier this week in an effort to persuade motorists to reassess their parking habits. State, county and local officials have become increasingly alarmed over a survey that indicates one of four Illinois drivers does not consistently lock the car doors when leaving the vehicle.

The survey also revealed that 2 percent of motorists do not always remove their ignition keys and 15 percent don't always close the car windows. A surprising statistic is that some 60 percent of those surveyed responded that the problem of car theft "is not very-serious" in their communities.

Survey results prompted law enforcement agencies to initiate "Park Smart" in order to educate the public about the facts on easy access and vehicle theft. The officials, contrary to survey results, say that auto theft is a very serious problem, that it is the fastest-growing property crime in the U.S. In 1991, they report, Illinois ranked fifth in the nation with 75,642 vehicle thefts. Chicago was third among cities with approximately 46,890 vehicles reported stolen.

Illinois State Police Director Terrance Gainer, Cook County State's Attorney Jack O'Malley and Chicago Police Superintendent Matt Rodriguez were among law enforcement officials attending a news conference promoting "Park Smart" on Monday. O'Malley and Rodriguez have both been victims of car theft and O'Malley commented that he had failed to follow a basic tenet of the program's tips, "Always activate your vehicle's anti-theft device."

O'Malley added, "Most of the tips seem obvious, but over and over we need to remind people to do the things that appear so obvious."

Several 'defensive parking' measures were offered at the conference; always lock the doors, close all windows and take the key with you, even if you are going to be gone 'for just a minute or two'; never leave your key above the visor or under the floor mat; park your vehicle in a well-lighted area and keep packages and valuables out of sight.

Other tips include, park your car with the front wheels turned sharply to the left or right and apply your emergency brake in order to frustrate thievery by towing, and always lock the doors when parking in your garage at home.

"Too many drivers have a false sense of security when it comes to their vehicles," said Gainer, and Rodriguez added that only a partnership between police and a well-informed public can help curb increasing vehicle theft.

Mandatory Insurance

Legislation which would make permanent the mandatory automobile insurance law has passed both chambers of the General Assembly and is headed to Gov. Edgar for his approval.

State Rep. Bill Laurino (D-15) who sponsored the 1990 law establishing the requirement, said it has been tremendously successful in reducing the number of uninsured motorists and the number of accidents involving drivers without insurance.

"In 1990, many said mandatory insurance would be riddled with problems," Laurino noted. "In fact, those so-called problems have not surfaced, and there are 1 million more insured cars on the roads now."

Laurino said the new proposal is more 'user friendly' because it allows drivers charged with not carrying proof of insurance to prove their coverage without going to court. It also eliminates license plate suspension for violators who subsequently pay the fine and obtain the necessary insurance.

"We wanted the whole process to be fair to motorists and effective in its purpose," Laurino stated. "I think we were able to draft a bill which will keep insurance rates stable, get motorists insured and provide fair penalties for those who fail to abide by the law."

Laurino worked closely with Secretary of State George Ryan to craft the proposal. The present law is scheduled to expire on Dec. 31st of this year.

"Buckle Up America! Week"

Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) Secretary Kirk Brown urged motorists to use safety belts and child safety seats on every trip. This reminder came in recognition of "Buckle Up America! Week," being celebrated nationwide through May 31st.

"Chances of serious injury or death are reduced significantly through safety belt and child safety seat use," Brown said.

A January 1993 survey conducted by the department's division of traffic safety indicated that more than 66 percent of motorists are using safety belts. In addition, the traffic fatality rate has dropped to the lowest in Illinois history; 1.6 deaths per hundred million vehicle miles of travel.

"Our efforts to increase safety belt use are a major factor in the reduction of fatalities we have seen not only in Illinois, but nationwide," said Brown, "although our safety belt use has increased significantly over the past 10 years, we need to continue our efforts to make our streets and highways even safer."

Preceding Memorial Day weekend, traditionally the beginning of the summer travel season, the reminder to "buckle up" is extremely important.

IDOT is urging people driving only short distances to remember that most fatal crashes occur within a few miles of home.

Brown pointed out, "Part-time belt users need to realize they are at serious risk and should wear safety belts every time they get in their vehicles, no matter how long or short a trip they are taking.

"Although this is a familiar message, we will keep on delivering it. We urge all motorists to use safety belts in their vehicles and to buckle children into child safety seats. We wish all Illinoisans a safe Memorial Day weekend and remember, buckle up."

Capital Campaign Nearing Goal

The $1.5 million capital campaign launched over a year ago to add a new spectator gymnasium and fine arts wing, thus expanding the facilities of Mother McAuley High School to over 223,000 square feet, has generated $1,455,000 to date. The success of the campaign, spearheaded by Francis J. Houlihan, was made possible with the help of outstanding committee members and through the combined generosity of the Sisters of Mercy, members of the board of trustees, alumnae, faculty and staff, students, past and current parents, local businesses, neighbors and friends.

OL Man Injured By Pipe Bomb

A powerful pipe bomb which seriously injured a 37-year-old Oak Lawn man is being checked by Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) agents. The bomb, which went off Tuesday afternoon at the home of David Bedalow on the 5400 block of Southwest Highway, was a "highly sophisticated device" according to Oak Lawn Police.

The bomb was rigged to explode when someone opened the door of Bedalow's home and contained shrapnel in the form of nuts and bolts.

Bedalow, who has lived in the house for approximately a year, was described by neighbors as a quiet man who kept pretty much to himself. According to reports he is divorced, lives alone and is employed by a construction company.

At approximately 3:15 p.m. on Tuesday, shortly after he arrived home from work, Bedalow went to his garage to work on his motorcycle. About 30 minutes later, Bedalow's girl friend, who was not identified, came to the house to pick him up and go on a shopping trip. Bedalow told the woman he wanted to get a jacket, opened the screen door and triggered the pipe bomb which had apparently been positioned near the center of the door.

The bomb exploded up and out, into Bedalow's face and chest. He was taken to Christ Hospital and Medical Center where he was treated for puncture wounds in his chest, burns on his right arm and face, and a large cut on his right shoulder. The device did relatively little damage to the home, other than knocking the screen door off its hinges and blowing the house door inside. According to police, there was no record of any problems at Bedalow's home.

Oak Lawn Deputy Police Chief James Houk said the matter is under investigation and as of Tuesday, police were attempting to determine a motive for the incident. "This was an extremely powerful device," Houk said, "it was meant to take him (Bedalow) out. It wasn't meant to scare him."

Houk added that Bedalow's physical condition and muscular physique probably saved his life. Bedalow is over six feet tall and weighs about 225 pounds. Fragments from the bomb, found in Bedalow's driveway and other pieces of the device are being examined by ATF agents and by the Cook County Sheriff's office.

POLICE CALLS

The following incidents were reported to the Oak Lawn Police Department. Readers should know that an arrest by police does not constitute a finding of guilt. Only a court of law can make that determination.

On May 14th at 2:17 p.m., Makha Bages told police that she was driving east on 95th St. when Jason Tove of Chicago followed her car from Merton Ave. to 95th & Central. When they were stopped by a traffic signal, he tried to prevent her vehicle from moving forward and Tove allegedly told her he was going to kill her. The victim said he had also on May 12th followed her car and when stopped at the light at 95th & Pulaski, jumped on her car. Police were called and the offender was not on the scene, but he was brought into the station and charged with two disorderly conduct citations and one for assault.

Superior Nut and Candy, 10836 S. Cicero, reported an armed robbery. An employee said the offender drew a handgun from his waistline under his shirt and demanded she put all the large bills in a storage bag. He said he did not want to use the weapon but would if she didn't do as he said. After the clerk had put approximately $230 in the bag, the offender ordered her to the rear room and instructed her to count to 100 to allow him time to escape.

The cashier of K-Mart at 4104 W. 95th St. discovered three counterfeit $100 bills.

On the 15th, Danielle L. Gordon of Oak Lawn reported she had locked her vehicle which she parked in her driveway at 4:30 p.m. Upon returning to her car at 10:45 p.m., she discovered her driver's side window was smashed to gain entry and several items were taken including 25 compact discs, 12 T-shirts, 7 pair of shorts and one pair of shoes for an estimated loss of $900.

Keith Parmer of Palos Hills reported a 1990 Nissan Sentra was stolen from 4300 W. 95th St. It was valued at $5,000.

Mary O'Donnell of Creative Enterprises, 6060 W. 95th St., reported that between 3 p.m. and 7:45 a.m. someone gained entry to the office without using force via the west entry door and inner office door which leads to the Soderlund Bros. storage. The offender(s) removed an IBM "notebook" P525, 386 meg with accessories. Creative Enterprises and Royal Mortgage Co. share two offices in the building. She also told police that on the 12th when she came to work, she found an envelope with $140 was missing from her desk.

Frank Albano, owner of Chicago Town Sounds, 9740 Southwest Highway, reported he began to notice that inventory from his building was missing from his business and on the 15th he conducted another inventory and found a great deal was missing. He alleged the theft was committed by one of his employees over the past 30 days. Total loss is estimated at $11,511.

Joseph Socki of Chicago reported he was driving west on 103rd in the construction zone from Cicero Ave. to Central Ave. when in the 5300 block a large chunk of concrete bounced up and struck the passenger door, rearview mirror and made a dent and gouge in the rear door. Estimated damage is $500.

On the 16th at 12:16 a.m., Jack Willison of Chicago was charged with criminal damage to property after he was seen by a witness kicking four ornamental landscape pots and the plastic chain links were broken. Estimated damage $150.

On the 17th at 9:18 p.m., Fern Hayes of Oak Lawn told police that someone entered her bedroom and took $4,000 cash in denominations of $100. Her daughter, Debra Hayes, told police that on Friday the 14th she noticed her black satin evening purse was missing. It contained $1,325 worth of assorted gold jewelry.

Kevin Dixon of Chicago was seen by the security agent at Venture at 4101 W. 95th St. allegedly going to the men's department and looking at a sales receipt, then removing socks, matching the receipt number, and did the same in the tie department. He then went to the service desk where he used the receipt of May 15th and got a refund of $15.93 for the merchandise. The agent followed him outside the store and tried to stop him but he fled. The offender was apprehended and brought to the police station where he was charged with retail theft.

Close Loophole

Legislation designed to close a loophole in Illinois' death penalty law cleared the House recently and was sent to Gov. Jim Edgar for his approval, state Rep. Maureen Murphy (R-36) said. Rep. Murphy said her proposal, Senate Bill 773, repeals a legal trick used by death row inmates to escape execution. It was sent to the governor for his signature following a vote of 69-35 in the House on May 18th. The Senate overwhelmingly passed it last month.

Illinois law today allows the prisoner to delay capital punishment execution indefinitely by pleading insanity anytime prior to imposition of the sentence. Federal court rulings prohibit the states from executing a convicted murderer who is insane at the time the courts impose the death penalty.

If approved by Gov. Edgar, the legislation repeals the law's provisions that allow a person to declare to be mentally unfit prior to the execution.

"By faking insanity, murderers can continually postpone the inevitable. While they can't prevent their execution, they can delay it. That's wrong because the victim's family and society as a whole are being denied just and swift punishment for the heinous crime," said Rep. Murphy, the measure's primary sponsor.

Lexington Institute Holds Graduation Ceremony

The 15th annual commencement exercises for Lexington Institute of Hospitality Careers were held on May 8th. The ceremony began with the traditional "Pomp & Circumstance" march with the graduates, followed by a welcome address by Lexington Institute President Dr. Ana Maria Boza. She advised the students, "Time is an important factor in the process of maturing. We have to allow time to pass before we can give events their true perspective; managerial and supervisory skills take time to develop, but you know the basics, such as what it takes to work with others, to direct their work and to keep improving yourself."

The keynote speaker was John McCormack, property manager for Shellbourne Conference Center, Lexington's off-campus site in Indiana. McCormack, a founding benefactor for the college, explained that he began his involvement in the service industry long before helping to bring about Lexington in 1977. "At 14, all I cared about was sports and girls. But that changed one day when my father got me a job as a hotel bellman. I quickly learned the meaning of discipline, of hard work and service. Even my military service on the front lines in Korea didn't compare to those three years working at the hotel."

"At Lexington, you have learned to serve and that's something that even the largest and most prestigious universities don't teach anymore," McCormack continued. "You young women are going to serve the world by making it more comfortable, and more civilized."

Area graduates include Mary Beck of Mt. Greenwood, Sharon Reinheimer of Hometown, and Laura Solano, originally from Costa Rica, currently residing in Beverly.

These young women successfully completed the requirements to earn an associate of applied science degree in foodservice and lodging. Following the awarding of diplomas, class representative Mary Beck addressed those present. She reflected on many lighthearted memories of college life and concluded by thanking the teachers and advisors at Lexington. "I feel they have touched us academically and personally and we will not forget them."

The ceremony concluded with a brief reception where a cake made in the professional kitchen at Lexington was served.

Lexington Institute is a two-year college for women preparing for careers in hotel management, foodservice management and dietetics. For more information, call (312) 779-3800.

Tax Freedom Day

If you thought you were done with taxes on April 15th, guess again. According to the Washington, D.C. based nonpartisan Tax Foundation, the burden on the average American taxpayer really wasn't lifted this year until May 3rd, Tax Freedom Day 1993.

Tax Freedom Day is the date the average American stops working to pay federal, state and local taxes and starts bringing home wages for food, clothing and housing.

In its report, "Tax Freedom Day 1993," the foundation calculated that the average American taxpayer in 1993 had to work 123 days before all taxes were paid. Of those 123 days, 40 were required to pay off individual income taxes, the largest tax Americans will face in 1993, while social insurance payroll taxes took more than 38 days to pay. Sales and excise taxes together required more than two weeks of work to pay, as did property and other business taxes.

Almost 10 days were required to pay corporate profit taxes.

The foundation also calculated the Tax Freedom Day in every state and the District of Columbia, based on tax burdens on residents. Residents in some states, therefore, realized their Tax Freedom Day later than May 3rd. In Illinois, Tax Freedom Day was May 5th.

According to the foundation, the future doesn't look much brighter as Tax Freedom Day is expected to fall even later next year. State and federal tax hikes enacted over the past three years, coupled with "the major tax increases being considered in the U.S. Congress this year," have led the organization to predict Tax Freedom Day 1994 will arrive on May 6th, the latest ever.

And, based on figures from the U.S. Office of Management and Budget, the Tax Foundation believes Tax Freedom Day will be even later in 1995.

Crimes Bill To Gov. Edgar

One of state Rep. Maureen Murphy's first initiatives, a proposal cracking down on gang crime, won final approval from the Illinois Legislature as the Senate unanimously endorsed it. The proposal, House Bill 122, now goes to Gov. Jim Edgar for his approval. The House took similar action last month, overwhelmingly approving it by a vote of 96-12. Rep. Murphy (R-36) said her proposal permits the courts to impose stiffer prison terms for gang-related crimes.

"This gives the courts another weapon to use on gangs, allowing judges to consider gang activity in metering out stiff prison sentences for violent street crime. Gang-related activity should be a factor in weighing a suitable punishment," she said.

Last January Rep. Murphy and other suburban GOP lawmakers introduced HB 122 and other key anti-gang proposals at a news conference in Evergreen Park. Later this spring, testimony from gang crime specialists in the Oak Lawn Police Department about the severity of gang crime in the suburbs helped sway a House committee to give its initial stamp of approval.

Rep. Murphy welcomed the bipartisan support from the Legislature on HB 122, but warned that additional steps must be taken. "We have taken the first step of many that must be enacted to resist gangs. Major gangs influence spreads to nearly one-third of Illinois' 102 counties. More must be done," she concluded.

Demonstrators

State Senator Patrick O'Malley (R-18) greets 12th-grade students from Richards High School in Oak Lawn at TECH 2000, a demonstration of school technology on May 12th in the State Capitol. TECH 2000 was designed to show state leaders what skills will be needed for the Illinois work force and how technology can improve teaching and learning. Pictured are Dan Dearman, Mark Kozelnik, technology instructor Jim Baker and Sen. O'Malley.

Refinance Debt Service

Gov. Jim Edgar has announced that the state has accepted a low bid of 4.89 percent on the refinancing of $250 million in State of Illinois general obligation bonds, which will reduce future debt service costs by approximately $13 million.

"We are taking advantage of today's favorable conditions in the financial market to refinance these bonds and reduce our future interest costs," the governor said.

The bid was the lowest interest rate paid on any general obligation bond issue since 1977. The bonds are rated Aa by Moody's Investors Service and AA- by Standard & Poor's Corporation.

Budget Director Joan Walters said the proceeds from the bonds will be used to refund previously issued bonds with higher interest rates.

"DON'T SETTLE FOR COST, QUALITY OR SERVICE. CALL THE PEOPLE WHO CAN GIVE YOU ALL THREE."

THEODORE E. DESCH, SENIOR VP,
LAW & CORPORATE AFFAIRS

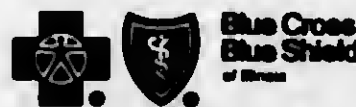

Health insurance is a balancing act. You don't want to realize cost savings at the expense of quality care. And you don't want to save money if it means losing out on the level of service you expect. So what's the answer?

Well, over the years, nobody has done more to manage cost and preserve quality than we have. Nobody is more responsive to the needs of your people. And no one has more doctors, hospitals and coverage plans to choose from. Cost. Quality. And service. If you don't have all three, you don't have Blue Cross."

WHEN YOU HAVE BLUE CROSS, YOU HAVE IT ALL.

- ☐ You are working with the pioneer in effective cost containment strategies.
- ☐ The carrier that's doing more to monitor quality.
- ☐ The most professional claims and customer response systems in the business.
- ☐ The most trusted health plans in Illinois.

Parking Concern Heard By Township Board

An outcry over parked cars during baseball games at 116th and Springfield was voiced by Garden Homes resident Karen Starkin during last week's Worth Township board meeting. "We are concerned because it is a safety hazard," stated Starkin. "They park on my property and block my parking access."

"I agree 1,000 percent with what you are saying," responded Supervisor Joan Murphy. "I sent out security personnel this evening to tell people to move their cars and park in our lot. It is a danger when they park on both sides of the street because there's not enough room to get through."

Barb Daley, who serves as the secretary for the Little League teams that utilize the township fields, related, "We have signs being made for both sides of that street that will be placed on the fields. We have also asked our umpire-in-chief to inform all of the umpires to comply with this request. No game will start or continue until the cars are moved. Someone will forfeit a game if necessary. We have also notified the managers about field decorum."

It was also brought to the board's attention that there is no public playground within close proximity to Garden Homes for children to utilize.

According to Murphy, however, "We tried for over a year to get this field set up with some type of playground equipment, but it was too costly. In order to get equipment, we had one trustee who searched diligently to get the equipment donated. We could not do it. The equipment we did have out there was destroyed. Swings were broken and a picnic table was smashed. When the league came in, they cleaned and maintained the field. They cut the grass and set up the backstops."

During the supervisor's report, Murphy noted, "I recently went to Springfield in order to testify against the tax caps on local units of government. Even though it was thought that this issue was dead, we were asked to testify because anything can be attached to a bill during the last days of a legislative session. I represented the townships and let our legislators know that we could not live with tax caps. Everybody was very vocal in opposition. We are working in the county and state on your behalf."

Seat Belt Safety

By Secretary of State George H. Ryan

Between April 1985, three months before Illinois' safety belt law took effect, and January of 1993, Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) observational surveys show that safety belt usage in this state has increased almost 50 percent. The January survey revealed an encouraging 65.8 percent usage rate among Illinois motorists. This week is National Buckle Up America! Week. All drivers and passengers are reminded to obey the law and buckle up for safety.

Q. What does Illinois law provide for safety belt usage?

A. All drivers and front-seat passengers six years of age and older must wear safety belts.

Q. Are back-seat passengers required to wear safety belts?

A. No, unless passengers are under age six.

Q. What does the law provide for the restraint of children while riding in a vehicle?

A. The Child Passenger Protection Act requires that all children under age four be secured in an approved child safety seat. Children four and five years old must be secured by either a safety seat or a safety belt. Children over 40 pounds should wear safety belts.

Q. What is the proper way to secure a safety belt?

A. The lap belt should be drawn across the hip bones, not the stomach or soft part of the abdomen. The shoulder strap should be snug without hindering the ability to reach the controls.

Q. What is the penalty for disobeying the safety belt law?

A. Violators may be fined $25 plus court costs.

Fireworks Reform Task Force

As individuals, organizations and communities begin their annual countdown to another bang-up Fourth of July celebration, a special task force looking into fireworks regulations has recommended a series of reforms following a six month study. The Illinois Fireworks Task Force was established through legislation sponsored by State Sen. Judy Baer Topinka (R-22). It called on the state fire marshal to chair a panel of experts to study current law and make recommendations to increase safety in the manufacture, storage, transportation and use of fireworks. The task force issued its final report on March 31st.

"Formation of this task force came in response to requests from firefighters in my own district," Topinka said. "But serious injuries from the use of fireworks is a statewide and a nationwide problem, for children, especially. Every Fourth of July report after report comes in about a youngster, or adult, losing an eye, a finger, part of a hand or other terrible injury. We hear of random fires and explosions. There are laws on the books, but the continued injuries and other accidents tells us that we need to take a look at those laws and how we might improve them."

The reforms called for by the task force include state licensing of all fireworks manufacturers located in Illinois, fireworks importers, wholesalers, dealers and retailers. In addition recommendations were made to require local permits for all shooters of Class B, professional display type, and Class C, common fireworks such as bottle rockets, firecrackers, etc.

The group also called for the development of education programs for consumers, police officers and firefighters, wholesalers and retailers, the courts, civic groups and organizations using public display fireworks.

The task force endorsed stricter law enforcement of existing fireworks laws. They argued that the state's present laws are antiquated and little interest has been shown in enforcing them. They asked for requiring the medical community to report burn and fireworks injuries.

While most members of the task force favored Illinois' present prohibition against fireworks sales to the general public, industry officials disagreed and filed their minority report. Their position was that residents can easily travel to all surrounding states, where fireworks sales are legal and bring them back into Illinois. As a result the fireworks are here and are used by Illinois residents while the state loses millions of dollars in sales tax revenue and the thousands of jobs a legal fireworks retail industry would produce.

The Illinois Fireworks Task Force had as its chairman State Fire Marshal Thomas L. Armistead and his Deputy Director Dan Williams as vice-chairman. The 23 members were drawn from Illinois Departments of Revenue, Transportation, Public Health, the State Police, city and county law enforcement organizations, firefighters, the medical community and the fireworks industry.

"We'll probably need some new legislation in this area," Topinka said. "We now have the task force report out on the table and I'll be interested to see how it is received. Then we can move one way or the other on their recommendations," she added.

"I commend the state fire marshal, his staff and the many people who devoted many hours to putting this report together. Our number one goal must be safety and the group assembled here had the background and expertise to make sound judgments and recommendations," Topinka concluded.

Growth Projection

Revenues must increase in the 9 percent range for May and June if the state is to realize the 5 percent growth for fiscal 1993 as projected by the bureau of the budget, Comptroller Dawn Clark Niesch reported. Meanwhile, Niesch reported her office has completed transfers totaling $300 million to the general obligation bond retirement and interest fund to repay a $300 million short-term loan due on June 15th.

Through the first 10 months of fiscal 1993, general revenue fund (GRF) receipts were $10.436 billion, up $442 million (5.5 percent) from last year. However, after subtracting short-term borrowing, revenues have increased $427 million, just 4.4 percent.

Comparable growth for the first nine months was also just 4.4 percent, which means receipts must grow by 8.5 to 9 percent in May and June to achieve the bureau's projection of 5 percent growth for the year.

The GRF balance at the end of April was $8.1 million, down from $118.4 million a year ago. However, last year the GRF balance reflected the build-up of cash to repay another short-term loan.

The backlog in unpaid bills at April's end was $695.3 million, down from $751.7 million at the end of April 1992.

Niesch said the decrease in the backlog is due more to timing than as a result of improved revenues. Much of the backlog reduction can be attributed to an acceleration of Medicaid spending, which in turn accelerates federal reimbursements.

In a related matter, Niesch said the $600 million borrowed last August to fund the Medicaid provider assessment program was repaid on schedule, May 15th. Net interest on the $600 million loan was $10.5 million at a rate of 2.68 percent.

Election

An election for two at-large positions on the pastoral council of St. Catherine of Alexandria Church will be held on Saturday, June 5th after the 4 p.m. mass and after masses on Sunday, June 6th.

Dr. Robert Olcese, retiring Superintendent of Ridgeland Schools received a plaque from Superintendents Round Table of Northern Illinois President Karl Plank. Olcese has served as Supt. of District 122 for 20 years. His retirement party was May 14th. He will be succeeded by Assistant Superintendent Dr. Donald Johnson.

Proposal On County Tax Caps

State Sen. Patrick O'Malley (R-18) says the Senate Republican caucus has rescued a proposal that will give taxpayers in Cook County the same kind of property tax relief as granted to the collar counties in 1991. O'Malley is the sponsor of legislation that extends property tax limits to non-home rule units of government in Cook County. The original bill passed the Senate in April, but was stalled in committee in the House of Representatives. It has since been amended onto O'Malley's House Bill 1125, which was approved by the Senate May 19.

"Local taxing authority comes from the Legislature. There would be no property taxes in the State of Illinois without action by the General Assembly. But with our authority also comes the responsibility of imposing reasonable limits on local government's ability to raise property taxes," O'Malley said. "When the system no longer works for the citizens it serves, change is necessary."

House Bill 1125, as amended, calls for an annual limit of five percent or the rate of inflation, whichever is less, on increases in the amount of property taxes extended by non-home rule taxing districts. A local government may exceed that limit with the approval of voters. The legislation also eliminates prior-year EAV, and calls for an advisory referendum in November 1994 to ask voters statewide if they want property tax limits.

"This is not about placing a mandate on local government. All I am suggesting is a reasonable limitation for taxing districts. This is about bringing citizens back into the decision-making process," O'Malley said. "If local governments want to exceed these limits, they still have the ability to go to the citizens they serve. That is what democracy is all about."

House Bill 1125 now returns to the House for consideration of the Senate amendment.

Senior Volunteers

Cook County Sheriff Michael F. Sheahan announced that his office is seeking senior citizens interested in doing volunteer work for the Sheriff's Police Department. The volunteers will work primarily in the sheriff's crime prevention and community services divisions, will perform general office work and be assigned special duties based on prior work experience and skills.

"We are lucky to have a large and active senior citizen population in Cook County," Sheahan said. "With the senior citizens volunteer program, the sheriff's department hopes to tap skills and talents of these experienced Cook County residents."

Volunteer positions are available at the area sheriff's police stations in Bridgeview and Markham.

The sheriff's police recently adopted a community strategy that calls for increased interaction between the police and county residents. According to Sheahan, programs like the senior citizens volunteer program and Neighborhood Watch bring the Sheriff's

Police and citizens together to fight crime.

Any senior interested in this unique public service opportunity is encouraged to contact the sheriff's community relations unit at (708) 865-4776.

Flag Resolution

By Roger A. Munson

There's a revolution afoot all across America. It's a revolution that began quietly in the middle of 1989 and steadily gained momentum. The revolution is focused on Old Glory, which continues to serve as a beacon for people of other nations. For the majority of Americans, the American flag is worthy of respect, and protection.

Four years ago the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that burning an American flag as part of a political protest could be considered a form of free speech and is thus protected under the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

I believe the court decision was wrong and so do the majority of Americans. Last year 77 percent of Americans surveyed in a Gallup Poll did not agree with the Supreme Court decision. Further, 81 percent of those asked believe that a constitutional amendment should be passed to give Old Glory special, protected status.

Since that court decision in 1989, the men and women of The American Legion, joined by more than 1,000,000 other members of the Citizens Flag Honor Guard, have spearheaded a nationwide effort to reinstate our flag to a protected status. Protected from those who would destroy and mock it, all in the guise of free speech.

That's the quiet revolution of millions of Americans who believe the nation needs a fundamental change to protect the most widely recognized national symbol on the face of the Earth.

As the nation celebrates Flag Day 1993 on Monday, June 14th, the quiet revolution has swept 32 states. Their legislative bodies have each passed a resolution "memorializing," or urging the U.S. Congress to enact a constitutional amendment to protect Old Glory from physical desecration. Additionally, eight other states are considering such a measure.

The American Legion's goal is 38 states to pass such "memorializing resolutions," which constitutes the two-thirds of the states necessary to ratify a constitutional amendment.

States that have passed the resolution include Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

In Arizona, Michigan, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Oregon and Washington legislative consideration is underway and public support will help pass it.

On Flag Day it is important to remember that Old Glory is unique because of the significance of the message it sends to all the world. It's a message of independence, individual liberty, idealism and dedication to the rights of free people everywhere.

The American flag represents an unselfish devotion for which many gave their lives. For millions of mothers and fathers of this land, who watched their sons and daughters proudly answer the call of their nation, our flag represented a righteous cause to which their loved ones were committed.

Old Glory is the promise of the triumph of popular government, of civic and religious liberty, and of a virtuous nation.

Our flag is the visible sign of the strong spirit that has brought liberty and prosperity to the people of America. It is the flag of all of us.

As we honor Old Glory on this Flag Day, let us also remember that it is worthy of everyone's respect and our protection.

Senior Fraud Bill

The General Assembly has given final approval to a bill backed by Attorney General Roland Burris that addresses the growing problem of fraud against senior citizens in the sale of estate planning documents known as "living trusts." The bill would make it a crime for anyone other than a lawyer to assemble, draft or execute a living trust. A living trust is a legal document wherein an individual's property is transferred into the name of a trust. During the individual's lifetime, he or she will continue to manage the property just as if it were still in his or her name, however, in the event of disability or death, a successor trustee would be authorized to administer the property as necessary.

Last September, Burris filed suit against a company which allegedly defrauded senior citizens out of more than $100,000 by exaggerating both the benefits of living trusts and the drawbacks of other estate planning arrangements. However, that suit, still pending, is only a civil action. Under this legislation approved, prosecutors would also be able to seek criminal penalties against unauthorized persons dealing in living trusts.

A first violation would be a Class A misdemeanor under HB 2163; second or subsequent offenses would be Class 4 felonies. "Living trusts, in the hands of unscrupulous con artists, are one of the fastest growing areas of fraud against senior citizens," Burris said. "We want to take living trusts out of dishonest hands, and put them back in the hands of people with the consumer's best interest at heart."

The bill now moves to the Governor's desk to await final action.

Call it what you wish; practical politics or, on the other hand, extortion but it is apparently a fact... 11 Democratic subcommittee chairmen have been targeted for removal. Their transgression? The 11 voted against President Clinton's $496 billion deficit reduction bill.

One of those threatened with being ousted from a subcommittee chairmanship is Rep. William O. Lipinski (D-3) the only Illinois Democrat to oppose the bill. Lipinski voted 'nay' because of the energy tax which is an integral part of the bill.

"Representing my constituents is much more important to me than any subcommittee or committee chairmanship."

Lipinski said that mail and telephone calls to his office have been 98 percent in support of his vote. He was appointed to the Merchant Marine Subcommittee of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee this year, his first chairmanship in the House after serving five terms.

Representative Dan Rostenkowski, one of 81 House members who signed a letter calling for the removal of the 11, said that 'teeth' must be put into party discipline, adding, if no disciplinary action is taken at this time, any future threat is meaningless.

Ironically, Lipinski recently fell out with his former staunch ally Alderman James Laski (23) over a similar flap. Laski voted against a tax hike supported by Mayor Daley and by Lipinski. Laski also cited his responsibility to his constituents as the logic behind his vote... Stay tuned.

A bill passed by the Illinois House and Senate that would boost funding for libraries by $19 million awaits Governor Edgar's signature and the Governor is reviewing it, according to his office. The bill, engineered by Secretary of State George Ryan, is called "Live and Learn." It would raise vehicle title fees from $5 to $13 and license plate transfer fees from $2 to $12 with the monies going to libraries, organ donation and administrative services from the Secretary of State's office. The money would replace $7.2 million cut from library systems in order to balance last year's budget.

Governor Edgar was Ryan's predecessor as Secretary of State, as well as State Librarian.

Edgar has promised to hold the line on taxes but technically, the proposed fees are not taxes. The "Live and Learn" program was overwhelmingly supported in both the House and Senate.

Blas Olivares is back as Oak Lawn treasurer. Mayor Ernie Kolb's appointment was supported 5-1 by trustees. He replaces Pete Paulius who resigned last month.

Cook County Clerk Aurelia Pucinski received dispensation to begin filling jobs left vacant when the employees took advantage of the county's early retirement program. Under the agreement, Pucinski is allowed to hire 62 replacement workers. The apparent conflict with a hiring freeze called for by County Board President Richard Phelan, was explained as 'flexibility,' allowing the clerk to hire workers for essential jobs.

Five Southwest area former mayors were honored by the Southwest Council of Local Governments last week. 'Dedication to Government' awards were presented to Raymond Forsyth, Homewood; Joseph Forzley, Lemont; Daniel Kumingo, Worth; Lorin Schab, Orland Hills, and Charles Ploszek, Bedford Park. The awards were presented by Mayor Anthony Vacco of Evergreen Park and Gerald Bennett of Palos Hills.

'Business And Labor Partners' Program

Lawmakers have endorsed a plan proposed by Secretary of State George H. Ryan to encourage Illinois businesses and labor organizations to help more working people earn a high school equivalency diploma. The proposal, outlined in House Joint Resolution 24, supports a new effort by Ryan to get companies to provide paid release time for workers who take the General Educational Development (GED) test.

Companies enlisting in Ryan's program, called 'GED Business and Labor Partners,' also would agree to reimburse employees for the $15 testing fee if they pass the test. The measure, which passed the Senate last week on a voice vote, passed the House in April.

The program is backed by the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, the Illinois State AFL-CIO and the Management Association of Illinois.

"This initiative recognizes the need for all workers to meet the new demands placed on them in high-performance work settings," Ryan said. "Business and labor can play a major role in encouraging workers to seek more education, particularly those workers who haven't graduated from high school."

Ryan kicked off the program last month at a breakfast for business leaders hosted by the Illinois Literacy Council, which he chairs. A main goal of the 'GED Business and Labor Partners' program is to showcase companies that take steps to provide Illinois with a better-trained workforce. For their part, companies enlisting in the program would provide paid release time, if necessary, for workers to take the GED test; reimburse employees for the $15 testing fee if they pass the GED test; and share information about local GED classes and encourage workers without high school diplomas to earn a GED.

Free preparation courses for the GED are offered days and evenings at many community colleges and local school districts. The minimum age for taking the test is 18.

Sponsors for the resolution include Reps. Dan Rutherford (R-Pontiac) and Maureen Murphy (R-Evergreen Park) and Sen. Doris Karpel (R-Carol Stream).

More information about the program is available from the Secretary of State Literacy Office, 431 S. Fourth St., Springfield, IL 62701, or by calling (217) 785-6926.

Charity Fraud Educational Program On Cable TV

A new educational program on charity fraud, produced by the Office of Attorney General Roland W. Burris, is scheduled to begin airing this week on cable systems across Illinois. Entitled "Unworthy Causes: Stopping Charity Fraud," the program features Burris and Assistant Attorney General Floyd Perkins, chief of the attorney general's charitable trusts division. The program provides information to consumers about how to spot and avoid potential ripoffs, and provides information on how charities are registered with and monitored by the state.

"With so many important and worthwhile [charitable] projects on the line, it is almost unthinkable that someone would try to take advantage of the public for their own gain," Burris says in the opening of the program. "And yet charity fraud is a prevalent problem. These 'Unworthy Causes' rob the public of money that might otherwise have gone to legitimate charities which desperately need it."

The program also features Don Tebbe, president of the Council of Illinois Nonprofit Organizations, discussing self-policing by charities and looks at the Misericordia/Heart of Mercy Center in Chicago as an example of how providing information to the public can benefit charities.

The 30-minute program was produced in cooperation with the Illinois Cable Television Association.

Women In The Trades

Despite federal laws, executive orders and regulations that provide for nondiscrimination when enrolling participants in training programs or hiring applicants for all jobs, a relatively small proportion of young women are entering the skilled trades. Women make up just over 10 percent of all skilled tradesworkers and only about two percent of construction workers, according to the U.S. Labor Department's "Occupational Outlook Quarterly."

Gores Thank Welcoming Service

Even the powerful, and famous enjoy being welcomed when they move, and that includes Vice-President Al Gore and his family. When the Gores moved into their new residence in January, they were greeted by a welcoming package from Getting To Know You International, the Westbury, NY-based welcoming service, that also has operations in this newspaper's readership area.

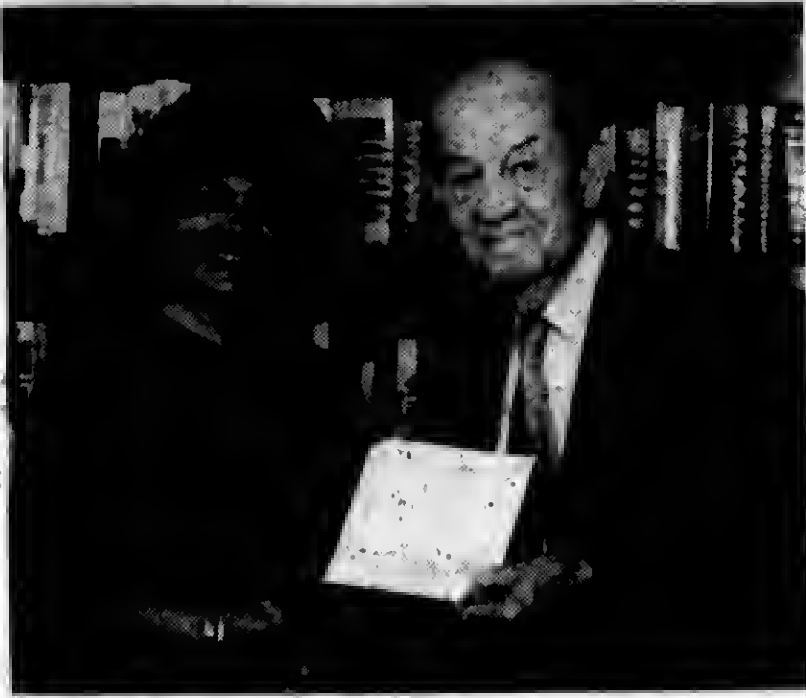

The Gores were sent a Getting To Know You package as are over a half million newcomers throughout the United States each year. Getting To Know You welcoming programs are sponsored by local merchants and professionals in 42 states.

Recently, Getting To Know You President Irving Siegel received a thank you letter from Tipper Gore, showing that a warm welcome is always appreciated. "Al and I very much appreciate your thoughtfulness in sending the very special book," stated Mrs.

Gore's letter. "Please accept our good wishes and thanks for your kindness."

Joan Patricia Murphy, supervisor of Worth Township and LeeRoy Erickson, senior citizen recipient of Cook County Sheriff Michael F. Sheahan's Medal of Honor award.

Murphy stated "It gave me a great deal of pleasure to nominate LeeRoy for the Sheriff's Senior Medal of Honor Award. He is a most deserving person and has served the senior citizens of the township for many years as a member, a board member, and past president. He was the Civil Defense Director for our entire area, and has spent his life in community service. LeeRoy has been a great asset to his community, and to the township."

Supervisor Murphy went on to congratulate Sheahan and his staff on a great event. Murphy stated that she was delighted this was going to be an annual affair.

Sister Margaret C. Hoban, board chairman of the Evergreen Park Unit of the American Cancer Society, thanks all the volunteers who assisted in the residential crusade. Caroline McGivern, chairman of the residential crusade, organized and recruited the many volunteers needed for this large undertaking. Sister Margaret stated that the efforts of the many volunteers who go door-to-door to collect funds has resulted in a community response that exceeded the goal which had been set; with donations totaling over $13,000.

"A special thank you to the Evergreen Park Office of Citizens' Services who assisted in supporting the crusade with their time and expertise," said Sister Margaret.

The American Cancer Society's 1993 campaign is "Join the Fight" and the residents of Evergreen Park have once again proven that they are mobilized to fight cancer by contributing to this important fund-raising effort.

College Telecourses

A variety of telecourses will be offered at Moraine Valley Community College this summer. Students can earn college credits by taking telecourses in astronomy, business, economics, history, management, philosophy, psychology, physics, literature and sociology.

Telecourses offer convenience and flexibility by allowing students to arrange their own study hours and work at their own pace. The courses include a textbook, study guide, syllabus and videotapes. Instructors provide individual and group instruction to students, who view videotapes in the college's learning resources center or at home. Tests are taken in the college's testing center. In addition, some classes are available on WYCC-TV Channel 20. Some telecourses can also be purchased or rented on videotape for the semester.

Like other students, telecourse students can utilize college services including counseling, the learning resources center and the learning and computing center.

Many four-year colleges and universities accept telecourse credit as transfer credit.

Telecourses begin the week of June 12th. For more information, call the center for alternative learning at (708) 974-5710. To register, call (708) 974-2110.

Man Dies In Cave

A 27 year old Oak Forest man died after being trapped in the Buzzard Roost Historic Cave at Cave City, Kentucky, for 17 hours over the Memorial Day weekend.

William John Coughlin fell 30 feet into a crevice while in the cave with a tour group. Prior to the fall, he had hit his head on the wet rock floor as the tour group was leaving the cave following a three-hour exploration.

Rescue workers, who spent 17 hours freeing Coughlin and two companions, eventually were able to use ladders and a rope to hoist the 200-pound man out of the narrow passage. He was treated for a two-inch laceration on his head, but died hours later. The other two refused medical attention.

Coughlin, a graduate of the Illinois Institute of Technology, was employed by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in Chicago.

Seek 'Fair Share' From State

Last week members of the Southwest Council of Local Governments took advantage of an opportunity to express their concerns over funding for cities and villages. The mayors met with Blas Olivares, liaison to Governor Jim Edgar at a meeting in Hickory Hills. Edgar himself had been scheduled to address the group, but state budget planning precluded his presence at the gathering.

Evergreen Park Mayor Anthony Vacco, chairman of the Southwest Council of Mayors, told Olivares that he is extremely upset with the fact that the state consistently shifts monies intended for local communities, in effect playing a shell game with local municipalities.

"We want our fair share," Vacco said, "and we will continue to run local government on a balanced budget."

Olivares responded that it is difficult for the state to keep taxes low, and at the same time, address financial needs of the local communities.

Vacco repeated his charge that "Springfield is stealing our money in an attempt to get out of debt. In Evergreen Park, we do not spend money we don't have and consistently balance our budget. This is good advice for the state: balance the budget and get Illinois back on the right road."

In response to a statement by Olivares that the state has grant money for local communities, Vacco said that more affluent cities and villages are low man on the totem pole when it comes to consideration for local grants.

"It takes piles and piles of paper work to apply for grants and in the end the application is rejected because the community has no slums. Keep a community up and the result is you get penalized."

Rosemary Kaptur, mayor of Palos Park, called for the state to put an end to unfunded mandates. She said, "We need money if the state is going to tell us what we must do. We welcome direction from the state, but not in the form of mandates without funding."

Oak Lawn Mayor Ernie Kolb expressed concern with state allocation of funds for education. "Our children need a chance and the state is denying that right. Funding schools should be the number one priority but the state distances itself from school districts and that makes little sense."

"Governor Edgar is trying to keep his promise and not raise taxes," Olivares said, "however it is difficult to keep taxes low and at the same time address the financial needs of the municipalities."

The mayors promised to keep the pressure on state officials and Vacco invited Governor Edgar and other elected officials in county, state and federal government to visit Evergreen Park and learn how to balance a budget.

"We do not spend money we don't have, that's how we live within our budget," he said, "That's a lesson all elected officials should learn. We would all be better off if they did."

"Live And Learn" Bill Gets Support

The Senate recently overwhelmingly supported the "Live & Learn" program Secretary of State George H. Ryan proposed to provide unprecedented state funding for libraries and organ donor programs. The proposal, amended onto House Bills 1525 and 2123, now goes to the House for agreement on the amendments. HB 1525 passed unanimously; HB 2123 passed 51-33.

Ryan's "Live & Learn" proposal would raise $33 million annually, including nearly $19 million to help rescue libraries across the state from a serious funding crunch.

"At a time when the use of libraries is at an all-time high, they are being forced to cut their book budgets, cut back their hours and lay off vital staff," Ryan said. "Our state has one of the finest library networks in the nation. This will preserve that network and ensure that the doors of our libraries are open."

House Bill 2123 increases the per-capita grants for public libraries from 95 cents to $1.25, a 32 percent increase. It also more than triples state funding for school libraries, from 21 cents per pupil to 75 cents.

Additionally, the measure raises two fees Illinois residents pay when buying a new or used car or truck. The fee for generating a vehicle title would rise from $5 to $13, while the charge for transferring license plates would go from $2 to $12.

Overall, new funds generated by the fees will provide a 2.6 percent increase over Ryan's current budget.

In addition to increased library funding and $2 million for increased awareness of organ donation, the new funds would go toward essential operations, including replenishing the state's inventory of license plates and honoring union wage agreements.

"On behalf of our libraries and those on organ waiting lists, I'd like to thank Senate President 'Pete' Philip, Minority Leader Emil Jones and their colleagues," Ryan said. "Together, we have established a new and permanent source of funding that will save lives and improve the quality of life throughout Illinois."

Sponsors of HB 2123 were Philip (R-Wood Dale) and Sens. John J. Cullerton (D-Chicago) and Patrick J. O'Malley (R-Palos Park). House sponsors are Minority Leader Lee A. Daniels (R-Elmhurst) and Reps. Roger P. McAuliffe (R-Chicago) and Jack L. Kubik (R-Forest Park).

The other measure, House Bill 1525, gives Ryan authority to spend the revenue raised through "Live & Learn."

Income Tax Surcharge Is Backed

Despite the strong opposition of small-business owners, the Illinois General Assembly may be on the verge of making permanent a temporary one-fourth percent income tax surcharge that is due to expire on June 30.

"We alerted taxpayers about this possibility in February, and with the legislature nearing adjournment, it may be coming true," said John R. Davis, state director of the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB) Illinois, the state's largest business advocacy group.

"NFIB members opposed making the temporary income tax permanent by nearly a 3-to-1 ratio when they were polled earlier this year," Davis said. "This has already happened with half of the temporary income tax surcharge that was enacted in 1989."

In 1989 the Illinois legislature enacted a one-half percent, with one-fourth percent going to local government and one-fourth percent to education. In 1991 lawmakers made the education surcharge permanent, while leaving the local government surcharge to expire on June 30th.

"Small-business owners do not believe that many municipalities need the additional revenue from the 1989 tax increase," Davis said. "A number of them have used the revenue to make one-time purchases of capital goods."

"And with an improving state economy, there is a good question whether this tax increase is even needed, since the recovery alone should boost Illinois tax revenues by $400 million in fiscal 1994 alone. Giving the temporary income tax surcharge back to Illinois taxpayers may also help them to offset the federal tax increases that may be flowing out of Washington in the near future," Davis concluded.

Estimated Tax Payments Are Due

The Internal Revenue Service reminds people who make estimated tax payments that the second installment for 1993 is due on June 15th. The payment should be sent to the IRS along with the second quarter payment voucher from Form 1040ES, Estimated Tax for Individuals. To be sure that the payment is properly credited to your account, you should write your Social Security number and the words "1993 Form 1040ES" on the check.

If you expect to owe $500 or more in federal tax at the end of the year, you probably should be making quarterly estimated tax payments. Although retirees and business people are most often affected by this requirement, it can potentially apply to anyone who receives income not subject to withholding, such as unemployment benefits, capital gains, interest, dividends and rental income.

More information about estimated taxes is available in the free IRS Publication 505, Tax Withholding and Estimated Tax. The estimated tax Form 1040ES booklet also contains complete instructions for computing the payment and filling out the form.

Both the publication and form can be obtained by calling the IRS at 1(800) 829-3676.

Drunk Driver Loopholes Close

Secretary of State George H. Ryan's proposal to close a loophole letting some drunk drivers keep their driving privileges won final legislative approval when the Senate concurred in technical changes approved unanimously in the House. The measure, Senate Bill 906, now awaits the governor's signature.

"The courts shouldn't be compelled to put a drunk driver back on the road just because there is a loophole in the law," Ryan said. "This provision will let judges use their own discretion to decide when or if a DUI suspension should be dismissed because the arresting officer isn't in court. With this law, more drunk drivers would face the consequences of their conduct."

The measure was a top priority for anti-drunk driving groups, which believe the legislation will discourage defense attorneys from scheduling DUI suspension cases when they know an officer is not available to testify. The legislation stemmed from the concerns of court watchers who observed several cases being dismissed because an arresting officer failed to appear as a witness.

Eating For The Dogs

Some people will do just about anything to help out a feline or canine friend in need, that even includes eating dog biscuits. Members of The Associates, a fundraising group for Chicago's Anti-Cruelty Society, are holding their 5th annual "Bone Appetite" dog biscuit eating event on Friday, June 11th from 6 to 10 p.m. in the Anti-Cruelty Society's courtyard, 510 N. LaSalle St.

"Bone Appetite" has raised approximately $5,000 annually for the shelter. The object of the event is for fundraisers to gather pledges from those willing to pay to see them eat a dog biscuit. All money raised benefits the animals at The Anti-Cruelty Society.

Admission to this party is $5. Included in the admission price is a complimentary buffet catered by area restaurants, and beer or soft drinks. Dog biscuit eaters and sponsors of eaters (for $5 or more) get in free.

Those interested in joining in on the dog biscuit munching event can pick up pledge sheets at the customer service desk at The Anti-Cruelty Society on the corner of Grand and LaSalle, Chicago.

OH, MY ACHING BACK

If you're like a lot of people, you may have occasional or persistent back pain and wonder what caused it. You try to think of some incident in which you may have strained your back, and come up with nothing. But there must be some reason why you have back pains. The truth is that even the simplest of incidents may be the cause, such as reaching high on a shelf to get something. Or stooping suddenly to pick up something that has fallen. Or maybe you need some tips on good posture.

Whatever the cause, the problem may be that your spinal column is out of alignment. No pain-killing drug can cure the cause. It can dull the pain for awhile and give you temporary relief. But if your back is out of alignment, the pain will probably not go away unless you get the treatment you need. No symptom can be more depressing than persistent back pain. Don't delay treatment when help is readily available.

If you have any health questions please feel free to call our office.

Taxpayers Accountability Amendment

State Rep. Maureen Murphy (R-36) introduced a 'Taxpayers Accountability Amendment' to the Illinois Constitution, which would require an extraordinary legislative majority to approve future state tax increases. Rep. Murphy's proposal, House Joint Resolution Constitutional Amendment 18, requires a three-fifths majority of the members elected in both chambers in the General Assembly. That requirement stipulates 71 votes in the House and 36 in the Senate would be needed to approve tax increases, instead of a simple majority.

"Taxpayers want to see their pocketbooks guarded very carefully by the legislators they chose. As of late, they do not desire new revenues financed by tax increases that harm business and the public alike," Rep. Murphy said.

"A supermajority makes it tough to approve tax increases, but it's necessary to provide as many safeguards as possible against excessive taxation dreamed up in the 11th hour of legislative session," she added.

In addition to the 'supermajority' margin, it mandates a public hearing by House and Senate revenue committees before any final action can be taken on pending tax increases. Her amendment also builds in another taxpayer safeguard, by setting a term limit of four years for each revenue committee member.

Both the House and Senate must approve HJRCA 18 before it can be placed on the November 1994 general election ballot for voter approval. Final legislative action must be taken prior to a constitutional deadline of early May 1994.

"By introducing it now, we set a deadline of about one year to take action. We also offer the public the opportunity to participate in a full-fledged debate over this idea," Rep. Murphy said.

In 1990, a similar amendment was placed on the November general election ballot by a citizen-led coalition which raised sufficient petition signatures to place before the voters. However, a Democrat-inspired lawsuit was successful in knocking the proposition off the ballot. Prior to that, a weaker version was introduced in the House in 1986 but was kept in committee by the Democrat majority, according to Murphy.

"I'm hopeful that bipartisan cooperation will prevail this time in placing this important issue before the voters, who have a considerable stake in tax dollars taken out of their pocketbooks," Murphy added.

POLICE CALLS

The following incidents were listed in the official reports of the Oak Lawn Police Department. Readers are reminded that an arrest by police does not constitute a finding of guilt and only a court of law can make that determination.

On May 20th, Rita Schoonveld of Oak Lawn reported she was in her front yard when she observed a metallic blue vehicle pulling up in front of her mailbox across the street from her home and someone removed two envelopes she had placed in the box. The offender then drove north on Marion to 95th St. Each of the envelopes had checks she was sending - one to her son and another to a friend.

Sheila Sals of Oak Lawn reported the theft of approximately $10,000 worth of assorted jewelry from her bedroom. There were no signs of forced entry. She told police she had work done on the window leading to the bedroom. The work was done by the Clifton Corp.

On the 23rd, Jill Jones of Chicago was seen by an agent at K-Mart at 4104 W. 95th St. allegedly putting several shirts in her shopping bag, then going to the sporting goods department where she took a duffle bag from the display, putting the items from the bag in it. She then walked past cashier lines and left without paying. She was picked up outside and $308.77 worth of merchandise was recovered. She was charged with retail theft.

On the 22nd, Nancy Herrman of Oak Lawn reported that Timothy Baudo of Palos Heights destroyed her cordless phone, slashed the living room couch and poured pancake syrup in the clothes dryer. Baudo is her ex-boyfriend. Estimated damage is $600.

At 12:58 a.m., Jean Ciavarella of Oak Lawn, the building manager, reported that a number of persons spray-painted various gang graffiti on the east side of the building at 5632-33 James Ct. consisting of "Brass Magic," "Latin Kings" and "War," all done in black spray-paint.

On the 23rd, Labarbara Goins of Oak Lawn told police that while she was at Marshall's, someone broke the front passenger window of her car and removed her Motorola Ameritech portable phone valued at $150. Adding the cost of replacing the window, her loss came to $359.

On the 24th, Brian Markham of Chicago was one of several persons on the 4700 block of 101st St. discharging fireworks. The officer saw Markham detonate a pack of fireworks and when the officer approached, the subjects ran into the apartment on the 1st floor. However, one came to the door, then some of them came out and started collecting the debris left from the fireworks and he saw Markham come to the door. The officer had him come out. Markham said he had discharged the fireworks and was charged with disorderly conduct.

Also on the 24th, Donna Wesselhoff of the youth commission reported the office at 8901 S. 52nd Ave. had been broken into and taken were three 6 packs of soda and from her desk drawer there was an Oreo cookie tin containing $40 and three rolls of 100 29-cent stamps for an estimated loss of $129.

Jerry Presley of Oak Lawn reported an AM/FM in-dash stereo radio was taken from his vehicle and the passenger side window was broken to gain entry. Estimated loss is $300.

Patricia Smith of Chicago was seen by the security agent at Venture, 4104 W. 95th St., allegedly placing clothing in a Venture bag. She then went to the children's department and put additional items in a shopping bag, then went to the service desk where she received a refund of $49.54. She was charged with three counts of retail theft because she had two outstanding warrants.

Bob Creed, owner of Creed Music Studio at 4575 Southwest Highway, reported persons unknown came in and used the bathroom of the business and upon leaving took a Hoover carpet vacuum valued at $107.

William Hurley reported someone broke the rear window of his car which will cost $200 to replace.

Napleton Mazda at 4141 W. 95th St. reported a 1992 Chevrolet had the rear door window smashed and an AM/FM stereo cassette player was taken from the dashboard. Estimated loss is $500.

On May 25th, Haggerty Pontiac at 9301 S. Cicero reported that during the night an offender kicked and dented both door and right rear quarter panels, and scratched the hood, both doors and quarter panels on a 1987 Dodge and caused $450 worth of damage. Haggerty said the car had just been taken in on a trade and feels the former owner may have done the damage because he had to come up with additional cash on the new car purchase.

On the 26th, Joe Kelnar of Oak Lawn reported an offender entered the rear yard of the apartments and took a tray of flowers and a concrete statue for an estimated loss of $135.

Scholarship

James Houlihan, a senior at Richards High School and a 1989 graduate of Prairie Junior High School, will be awarded the 8th annual Clark Alford Scholarship at the Prairie Junior High School graduation on Wednesday, June 9th. The scholarship was established from the Clark Alford Memorial Fund. Alford, of Alsip, served for 18 years (1965-83) as a school board member in District 126.

He gave extraordinary time and effort to many voluntary activities such as Red Cross, Alsip Fire Department, Alsip Kiwanis and the Palos Methodist Church. When Alford died in 1984, the fund was created. It was decided to present a one-year scholarship award annually to a deserving former Prairie Junior High graduate, now a high school senior, who exemplified through action and deed, a commitment to volunteer service. Last year's winner was Michael Spinella, Prairie Junior High 1988 graduate. He was chosen from 10 applicants.

The 1991 winner was Joy Weston, 1987 graduate; 1990 winner was Tanya Galanes, 1986 graduate; 1989 winner was Colleen Houlihan, 1985 graduate; 1988 winner was Traci Cox, 1984 graduate. The 1987 winner was Suma Jacob, 1983 graduate; and the 1986 winner was Renee Arnold, 1982 graduate.

Kathy Anderson, daughter of Barbara and Dan Anderson, is engaged to Chris Bridges. Kathy graduated from Evergreen Park Community High School in 1988 and is currently a substitute teacher in Evergreen Park, Chicago and for SMA. Chris is a biochemist and works for the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA). The wedding is scheduled at Trinity Evangelical Covenant Church, Oak Lawn, in August. Kathy's mother, Barb writes the 'Everything in Evergreen' column for the Courier.

Concern About Lay-Offs

Concerns were raised to the School District 123 board in regards to the recent teacher layoffs, an action the board has taken to save money. Residents of the Oak Lawn-Hometown school district questioned how the layoffs, announced earlier this year, would affect district schools. Many residents and students asked that the teachers be retained.

The board voted to rehire 19 of the teachers; however, the method of selecting rehired teachers was questioned by the teachers. Superintendent Dirk Manson said that selection was based on need and qualifications.

In regard to the tax rate increase rejected in the April election, the board announced that it would sell $1.3 million in bonds. Discussed were new strategies on how to pass a new tax increase proposal in November and whether the bond sale will actually be necessary.

Santa Fe 'Mayhem In The Middle'

You won't have to worry about any train strikes this weekend, because Friday, June 4th, Santa Fe Speedway's very own Car Train Racing returns for the first of six stops in '93. It's not just a car...and it's not a train...it's "mayhem in the middle" on Santa Fe's specially constructed tight quarter-mile figure-eight race course. Also on tap, Sportsman, Lightning Rod and S.T.A.R. cars racing on the quarter-mile. Gates open at 6 p.m. and the action rolls off the blocks at 8 p.m.

Debuting in 1991 at Santa Fe Speedway, Car Train Racing involves a single driver piloting one 'train' of three cars, chained together, around a precarious figure-eight course. As many as six to eight teams compete at a time causing a virtual auto-junkyard in the middle.

Witness teams RAM Train, Derailed, the JJ Blue Light Special, Crazy Train, Loco Train and a host of others due to battle in the newly expanded Six-Night season long race to the Car Train National Championship in September.

On Saturday, June 5th Santa Fe Speedway pulls out the stops, hosting the True Value Hardware "Toolbox of Treasure" Night at the Races. On tap are four divisions of stock cars, Late Model, Sportsman, Lightning Rod and S.T.A.R. cars. Gates open at 6 p.m., time trials begin at 7 p.m. and the green flag falls at 8 p.m.

Race fans will have a chance to win tool boxes, special True Value Hardware gift certificates, True Value collector's item water bottles, plus additional contests, prizes and more on this fun-filled night, fun for kids of all ages.

Dennis Erb, Sr. still sits comfortably atop Santa Fe's premier Late Model ranks with the month of May in the books. Having notched only one fast time, one trophy dash and a single feature win to his name thus far, Erb has posted consistent top five finishes enroute to his early season cushion. Bob Pohlman, Jr. of Tinley Park, defending Champ, Frank Reaber of Bensenville, Larry Stotts, of Justice and Lockport's Frank Heckenast round out top challengers.

Steve Fuller heads off the hard-charging Sportsman pack. He is followed by Genoa's Ted Loomis, Dave Lilja of Hinsdale, Jim Loomis, Jr., of Kirkland and Countryside's Bruce Schwartz.

Santa Fe Speedway is on the corner of 91st and Wolf Road in Hinsdale, just off the I-55/I-294 interchange, 20 miles southwest of Chicago's Loop. Santa Fe Speedway 24-hour hotline is (708) 839-1050.

Evergreen Park High School Athletic Director John George congratulates Carly Anderson who placed sixth in the State of Illinois in the 3,200 meter track event. This was the second time the junior track star has qualified for state competition. She is also a member of the school's cross-country team. Also pictured is Wendy Miller, coach of the girl's track team at EPCHS.

Boating And Drinking Don't Mix

Enjoy boating this summer but do it safely and wisely. Wear a life jacket and refrain from alcohol, state officials advise. Lt. Gov. Bob Kustra, Conservation Director Brent Manning and Alcohol and Substance Abuse Department Director Jim Long are teaming to urge Illinoisans to boat safely all season long.

"Alcohol continues to be a major contributing factor to boating accidents in Illinois and throughout the country," Kustra said. "After even just one drink, the potential for a boating accident increases threefold. Alcohol can turn an enjoyable fishing or boating outing into a terrible tragedy. Don't take chances with your life or the lives of friends and family."

Long noted that individuals are considered legally drunk if their blood alcohol level is 0.10 or greater, whether they are operating a car or a boat, and judgment and coordination is decreased at half that level. The ability of passengers to survive boating accidents also is diminished if they drink alcohol.

"More than half of boating accident drownings involve alcohol," Long said. "When you're boating it is best not to drink alcohol at all."

Last year 147 boating accidents were reported in Illinois, down considerably from the 179 accidents reported the previous year. Twenty-eight people died in boating-related accidents last year. Tragically, all were preventable had boaters exercised a reasonable amount of caution and responsibility, and more than half would almost surely be alive today if they had worn life jackets, Manning pointed out.

State law requires personal flotation devices to be accessible in sufficient numbers for each person on a boat; however, wearing them is the wisest safety precaution, Manning said.

Contrary to public belief, most accidents do not occur in bad weather. Statistics show the most accidents last year occurred during daylight hours on clear days with good visibility and light wind.

Conservation Police Deputy Chief Tom Wakolbinger said the department hopes to see a continued reduction in the number of serious accidents and fatalities this year through increased emphasis on education, enforcement and improved accident investigations. He encouraged individuals of all ages to take a boating safety course. The eight-hour course covers basic boating safety, equipment requirements navigation and other information.

Information about courses is available by calling 1(800)832-2599.

FISHING ON THE KANKAKEE RIVER CONTINUES TO IMPROVE - According to famous Kankakee River Guide ED MULLADY's Sportsman's Letter, the Indiana and Illinois stretches of the river has been at a level where boat fishing, shoreline fishing and wading in safe shallow water has been producing nice catches of fish:

SMALLMOUTH BASS: some good places include Glorydale, Momence, through Island Park and on down to Koop's Island. Many caught from the Kankakee Dam thru LeVasseur Park; Christine Island through Derek Island; Wilmington Dam thru Prairie Creek. Some of the baits that have been working good include the T Spin & Minnow, Jig & Twister, Bagley Crankbaits and leeches. CATFISH: River Isle thru Rudecki Island, East of Momence, Glorydale to Momence Island Park. Nice ones being caught around the mouth of the Iroquois River through Cobb Park; Kankakee Dam through Davis Creek; Wilmington Dam through Bardwell Islands. Best on Doc's Catfish Dip Bait, Minnows, Chicken Liver, Crawlers. Remember to keep the bait close to the bottom where the river catfish do most of their feeding. NORTHERN PIKE: fishermen will find good ones from Lake Alexander Camp through Koop's Island, near Momence, while 4th Ave. in Kankakee thru LeVasseur Park is another good location. Wilmington Mill Race down to Rt. 55 holds some lunkers also. Good baits include 7-9" minnows, Double Spins, Big Rapalas. CRAPPIES: hitting good in bayous and backwaters on pinkie jigs, Crappie Sliders, minnows. WALLEYES FISHING FAIR: good locations would include River Isle through Momence; Kankakee Dam through Wiley Creek; Wilmington Dam through Rt. 55. Best on Countdowns, Rogues, Jig & Minnows. LARGE MOUTH BASS: Jessica to Teresa Island west of Momence, DesPlaines F&W Backwaters. Best baits have been plastic worms, minnows, Beetle Spins, Night Crawlers.

SPRING TURKEY HARVEST A SUCCESS - Illinois hunters bagged a total of 4,632 wild turkeys during the recently concluded spring turkey hunting season, up 20 percent from last year according to unofficial totals announced by Conservation Director Brent Manning.

"An expansion of counties allowing turkey hunting, additional permits and a fourth season accounted for the increase of 774 birds," Manning said. "The eight new counties providing turkey hunting this spring accounted for more than 350 of the additional birds."

Forty-five counties were open to turkey hunting this spring, including the eight new counties: Bond, Bureau, Clark, Cumberland, Mercer, Stephenson, Whiteside and Winnebago.

Deer-Vehicle Accident Caution

Deer-vehicle accidents occur at this time of year in numbers second only to the mating season in late fall, Conservation Director Brent Manning said.

"Last year's fawns are setting out on their own this time of year as their mothers again prepare to give birth," Manning said. "I caution motorists to be alert for deer from now through the end of June in both urban and rural areas, but especially along roads that have woods or brushy vegetation close by."

Marty Jones, urban deer project manager for the department, said motorists should be particularly cautious from dusk to dawn.

"Deer are often seen crossing streets, in backyards or in the center of town," Jones said. "We know they can become disoriented and occasionally there are instances where a deer will crash through a plate glass window. Because deer can show up almost anywhere and because you can't predict their behavior or their numbers, our advice to motorists is to stay alert, slow down and drive with caution."

Jones said most deer stranded in urban areas will find their way out of town overnight if left alone. He said individuals should not try to herd deer off a road as that usually frightens them and may cause them to run back to the roadway and into oncoming traffic.

If a deer is injured in a collision with a vehicle, the motorist should inform the nearest Department of Conservation (DOC) office or a local law enforcement agency. If a deer is killed in an accident, the motorist has the option of claiming the animal and having it processed but must inform a DOC regional law enforcement office no later than the next regular working day or within 24 hours if the accident occurs Monday through Thursday. If a driver doesn't want the deer, any Illinois citizen can claim it by notifying a regional conservation office. Offices are located in Sterling, (815) 625-2968; Spring Grove, (815) 675-2385; Champaign, (217) 333-5773; Alton, (618) 462-1181, and Benton, (618) 435-8138. The Springfield Conservation Law Enforcement Office phone number is (217) 782-6431.

The regular season for '93 high school baseball came to a close last week and the playoffs are underway. Now, the real battle for who gets to be at the top of the heap kicks off.

Tuesday Game (May 25)

Brother Rice 11 - Reavis 1

The Crusaders closed out the regular season with a 11-1 victory over the Reavis Rams in Mount Greenwood. In their 22nd win of the year, Rice's pitching staff combined efforts for a one-hitter. Jim Fitzmaurice got the win and four other pitchers saw action.

Tim Panfil went a perfect 2 for 2 with a double, a pair of RBI, and three runs scored. Jim Ficaro was 2 for 3 with a two-run single and Mike Strich stole home.

Thursday Games (May 27)

Marist 6 - Sandburg 5

Marist's Redskins upset the number 2 seeded Sandburg Eagles 6-5 in round one of the Sandburg regional. It only took the Redskins an inning and two-thirds to amass six runs and seven hits off ace hurler Todd Mensik.

"This was a great victory," admitted Redskin coach Don Kuehner. "I don't consider us spoilers."

Hitting stars for Marist were T.J. Barcelona with a double down the left-field line, a bunt single from John Widiakis, a double to left-center by Chris Smith, Brian Harmon's single to center, a line drive by Justin Blachowski and a round tripper into deep left-center off the bat of Chris Harmon.

The winning pitcher was Mike Sommerfield. For the Eagles, Jim Wroblewski, connected for a double that brought home Jason Barone, and Mensik singled in Wroblewski.

Shepard 13 - Oak Forest 6

The number 13 was definitely lucky for the Astros as they sent the Bengals into orbit with a 13-6 win.

Astro Jim Dallio must have eaten his Wheaties as he was a perfect 4 for 4 at the plate with a pair of dingers and nine RBI. Craig Taczyc earned his sixth win.

Stagg 8 - Eisenhower 7

Charger power was in just the right gear as they edged the Cardinals 8-7.

A double by Chuck Olsen in the bottom of the ninth drove in pinch-runner Glen Labeledz to take the game.

Stagg also had ace performances from Lou Pinto (2 for 4), John Luburic (2 for 3, a trio of runs, and a RBI), and Jeff Watzke 2 for 3 with a trio of RBIs).

Brother Rice 9 - Richards 3

Brother Rice tallied their 23rd win of the season as they took care of Richards 9-3.

Crusader bats were connecting as Jim Schmidt went 3 for 4 with a grand slam round and six RBI while Jim Ficaro was 3 for 3.

Baseball All-Stars Are Named

Members of local Catholic League North teams have been named to the all-star team of '93.

Representing the Brother Rice Crusaders are senior pitcher Tom Tracy, senior outfielder Mike Strich, senior shortstop Jim Schmidt, senior first baseman Tim Panfil and senior outfielder/third baseman Jim Ficaro.

Receiving honorable mention for Rice were junior pitcher Jim Sexton, senior third baseman Mike Schramm, senior pitcher Brian Dundee, junior catcher Mike Englebrecht and senior outfielder Jeff Venable.

In the Catholic League South, all-stars from St. Rita's Mustangs included outfielder Bob Wagner, pitcher Jason Wallace, shortstop Pete Kelly, first baseman John Nee and catcher Marty Quinn. Earning honorable mention were Jon Bayer, Tim Carrig, Brian Romanowski, and Jerry Sisul.

For St. Laurence, the all stars are pitcher Mark Gutkowski, third baseman Joe DiGangi, first baseman Wayne Druktenis, shortstop Isaac Veldez and second baseman Frank Mateja. On the honorable mention list were Jason Amato, Ken Warzynski, and Matt Daly.

All stars from Mt. Carmel's Caravan were pitcher Tom Szymorski, Troy Badali in the outfield, and catcher Dominic Chiappini. The Caravan honorable mention was Mike Clifford.

BASEBALL ROUND-UP

Brian Dundee won his fifth game of the year.

Thornton 8 - Bremen 7

The Wildcats came into Midlothian and emerged victorious over the Braves, 8-7. A wild throw after a dropped third strike in the ninth inning proved fatal for the Braves.

St. Rita 13 - Leo 1

The Mustangs had their act together as they faced the Lions and pounded them 13-1 at St. Rita. All Rita needed was five innings and the game was history: Bob Wagner went 3 for 3 at the plate and bagging a pair of hits apiece were Jason Stawczyk, Marty Quinn and Billy Young.

Mount Carmel 5 - Reavis 4

The Rams lost a close one to the Caravan. All Carmel needed was five runs in the bottom of the fifth to seal it. The Rams left the bags jammed in the seventh and it cost them the game.

St. Laurence 19 - Oak Lawn 1

The slaughter rule was the order of this game as the Vikings pounded the Spartans 19-1 in only five innings. Vike Joe DiGangi went 3 for 4 and tallied five RBI.

De La Salle 5 - Argo 3

The Meteors pulled out a 5-3 victory over the Argonauts. It was the Meteors' 20th win of the season.

Saturday Games (May 29)

St. Rita 3 - Mt. Carmel 2

The Mustangs were ready to take control as they eliminated the Caravan from regional playoffs with a 3-2 win. A two-run round tripper off the bat of Mustang Brian Romanowski in the first, paired with a Marty Quinn RBI sacrifice fly in the fourth were enough offense to take it.

Tim Carrig came in for the save as he stranded a runner on second. Getting the win was Jason Wallace as he went six and two-thirds innings.

St. Laurence 7 - De La Salle 4

Also in the St. Rita regional, the Vikings got past De La Salle's Meteors 7-4.

Vike Pete Lotus banged a two-run round tripper in the third to spark the offense.

Stagg 3 - Brother Rice 1

The Chargers stayed alive in the Sandburg regional playoffs with a 3-1 win over the Crusaders.

A two-run double off the bat of Pat Rush in the second sealed the victory. Chris May got the win as he fanned six and allowed only three hits.

Shepard 5 - Marist 4

Astro might continued on the winning path with a 5-4 victory against the Redskins in the Sandburg regional playoffs. Shepard's Craig Taczyc tallied a pair of hits and a RBI to pace the offense.

A SUMMER OF HEALTH & FITNESS FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

The cookbook, which has an international flair, contains more than 250 recipes submitted by staff members and students.

Shirley Sobol, a staff member at the college who coordinated the cookbook, said, "As we kicked off our celebration last fall and staff members began planning events and activities for the year, we discussed the idea of publishing a cookbook to commemorate the year. The idea blossomed, and this cookbook is the result."

Proceeds, according to Sobol, will be used to fund campus beautification projects, including the planting of flowers this spring in the shape of the college's logo.

The cookbooks are $5 each and community members interested in purchasing one can call Sobol at (708) 974-5358 or the college's public relations office at (708) 974-5375.

Funeral industry leader and artist Matt Lamb and his wife Rose recently hosted a reception in their North State Parkway residence for Mark Balma, an artist trained in the classical European academy tradition. Balma has been commissioned to create new fresco work interpreting the teachings of St. Francis of Assisi for the 60-foot ceilings of the Basilica of Santa Maria degli Angeli, the third largest church in Italy, the site where St. Francis and his first followers lived and worked. Many prominent Chicagoans and members of the art community welcomed Balma and learned how this historically important work bridges one millennium to the next, builds partnerships among nations, and gathers support from people worldwide.

Music Lessons

Do you wake up in the middle of the night wishing you could hear the tune "Heart and Soul" played over and over and over again? Then it's probably time to start your kids in music lessons. Elvina Pearce, director of the Preparatory Piano Division at Northwestern University School of Music, has some tips on how to start your children in a lifetime appreciation of music.

If you want your kids to learn music through a traditional approach, where the ability to read music fluently is emphasized, then kids between six and eight are at the perfect stage to begin. However, with the Suzuki approach, where the development of a musical ear is highlighted, kids can begin as early as three or four.

Ideally, the best way for kids to learn is with one weekly private lesson and a weekly group lesson. The private lesson allows a teacher to concentrate on the child's particular strong points and weaknesses, while the group lesson fosters the joy of playing for a live audience and diminishes the terror of a recital. Children also progress rapidly in the group setting with peers as believable practice models.

Most experts agree that piano lessons, as an introduction to music lessons, are excellent, not only to read and appreciate music, but also as a springboard for other instruments.

Finally, the question most parents ask is, "How do I keep my children motivated?" The simple answer is "Pay attention." Nothing will encourage your kids to practice more than your genuine interest and appreciation of their accomplishments. Beyond that, search for a teacher who makes piano a fun-filled, learning adventure.

If you're interested in courses for your children at the Northwestern School of Music, which teaches kids as young as preschool, call (708) 491-5260.

The Brother Rice High School Class of 1993 will continue academic careers at a better than nine of 10 ratio. According to a survey, 95 percent of the students will attend an institute of higher learning. Student responses from the recently-graduated senior class revealed that of the 341 seniors completing the survey, 323 plan to continue their education.

Of those, 29 said they were accepted at the University of Illinois at Urbana, the most of any four-year school. Other colleges include Northwestern University, The University of Notre Dame, University of Chicago, Purdue University, University of Michigan, Yale University, Cornell University, Dartmouth, University of Pennsylvania, Penn State University, New York University, Georgetown University, Vassar and Illinois Institute of Technology.

A total of 173 academic scholarships were awarded to the Rice graduating class from schools such as DePaul University, Loyola University, University of Illinois, Marquette University, Northwestern University, Cornell University, the University of Notre Dame, Yale University and Illinois Institute of Technology.

The valedictorian for the Class of 1993 is Leander S. Cuasay of Palos Heights. He received the Illinois State Scholarship, a National Merit Letter of Commendation, the Loyola University Presidential Scholarship and the Loyola University Ignatius Scholarship. Cuasay will attend Northwestern University and enroll in the pre-med program. "Every member of my family has been raised on the belief that to get anywhere in the world you have to be the best. I will strive to fulfill my goals and to someday reach the level of honor and prestige that my father has attained," he said.

Other students at the top of the graduating class were Geoffrey Parker of Chicago, James Wills of Evergreen Park and David Perlut of Chicago.

Parker received an Illinois State Scholarship, a National Merit Letter of Commendation, a Pullman Foundation Scholarship and an Illinois Institute of Technology Scholarship.

Wills received an Illinois State Scholarship, the Marquette University Ignatius Scholarship, the Marquette University Greater Chicago Scholarship, an Illinois Wesleyan University Alumni Scholarship, a Bradley University Dean's Scholarship, a Northwestern University Scholarship and Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. Pathways Foundation Scholarship.

Perlut received an Illinois State Scholarship, a National Merit Letter of Commendation, the Robert C. Byrd Honors Scholarship, DePaul University's Dean's Honors Scholarship, an Augustana College Presidential Scholarship and a Pullman Foundation Scholarship.

Bicycling Safety

As schools dismiss for summer vacation, many children will be outdoors playing, walking and riding bicycles. To ensure a safe summer vacation, encourage children to obey all traffic laws. Motorists, on the other hand, are reminded to be courteous to bicyclists and pedestrians and practice caution when approaching children at play.

Q. Is the 20-miles per hour school zone speed limit in effect during the summer?

A. No. However, motorists still should slow down because many children play at school playgrounds and attend summer school programs.

Q. How can motorists avoid potential traffic hazards involving children?

A. Slow down in residential neighborhoods and look for children playing and riding bicycles on or near the street. When following a child on a bicycle, give him or her plenty of room to maneuver and be prepared for unexpected moves.

Q. What does the law say about riding bicycles on the street?

A. Bicyclists must ride in the same direction as other traffic and obey all vehicle traffic laws and signals. If a bicyclist has the right-of-way, motorists must yield just as they would to another vehicle.

Q. Can a child ride a bike legally on a sidewalk rather than on a busy street?

A. Yes. When riding on a sidewalk, though, bicyclists must obey all pedestrian traffic signals at cross walks and yield the right-of-way to pedestrians. Bicyclists should warn pedestrians before passing them.

Protecting Rights Of Children

Gov. Jim Edgar recently applauded the General Assembly for approving landmark legislation he called for to ensure the rights of abusive parents come second to the rights of their children and that will assure child welfare workers are held accountable if they dodge their responsibilities to protect children.

"The plight of imperiled, defenseless children is of paramount importance to society today," the governor said. "We have taken strong steps to improve our ability to protect those children over the last two years, and the legislation approved today is another major step toward a more responsive, more caring and more secure child welfare system."

The legislation, which was reached through negotiations between the Edgar Administration and Rep. Thomas Dart (D-28), assures that a child's best interests supersede all other considerations in determining whether that child should be removed from or returned to home in an abuse or neglect case.

In addition, it will allow foster parents to bring legal actions to enforce their right to be heard during court hearings on a child's placement and give them formal standing during certain stages of the court proceedings.

"We have made progress in our child welfare system, but the recent tragic death of Joseph Wallace again reminded us that we have not done enough," Edgar said. "This legislation should make it clear that we will not tolerate children being returned to dangerous, abusive home situations. This legislation establishes that a child's best interest must be given precedence at each and every step of juvenile court proceedings."

Also included in House Bill 1886 is statutory authority, including subpoena power, for the Office of Inspector General which the governor has created within the Department of Children and Family Services.

Denise Kane, named by Edgar last month as Inspector General, will be an independent, chief advocate for children and will initiate investigations in cases where agency managers, supervisors and caseworkers are suspected of neglecting their duties to safeguard children.

The legislation also establishes a statewide, toll-free telephone hotline for foster parents to confidentially make reports of suspected misconduct or other wrongful activities for possible investigation by the Inspector General.

Sponsor Local Housing Court Bill

LIBRARY NOTES

Legislation sponsored by State Sen. Patrick O'Malley (R-18) giving all communities the option of establishing local housing courts for enforcing building codes is one step from becoming a law. Passed by the Senate on March 11th and by the House of Representatives on May 12th, the bill only needs the signature of Governor Jim Edgar to become law.

Senate Bill 36 will allow the corporate authorities of any municipality to establish a housing court responsible for enforcing municipal housing codes and ordinances. That option is currently available only for communities of more than 100,000 residents.

"City officials from Blue Island came to me with the idea of a local housing court for smaller communities. Blue Island is an older community with a number of older buildings in need of repair. Enforcing building ordinances can be slow, however, because disputed cases are often referred to an already overburdened circuit court system," O'Malley said. "Local housing courts will be more convenient and cost-efficient for all parties involved."

Blue Island Mayor Donald Peloquin says the legislation will give municipalities more local control in enforcing building codes, "I think this will give municipalities a chance to redirect their futures and an ability to maintain property values, battle gangs who use run-down housing for their hang-outs, and improve the quality of life for their residents," he said.

Senate Bill 36 was sponsored by State Rep. Maureen Murphy (R-18) in the House of Representatives.

"Amazing Book Capers," the Oak Lawn Public Library summer reading program for kids, opens with registration on Wednesday, June 9th. The program is scheduled to run until Aug. 13th. Those who register will receive an 'Amazing Capers' bookmark, a booklet with complete program information and the opportunity to check out books as a start on their summer reading.

Readers will be registered in three groups: Secret Snoopers, a place for pre-readers who have books read to them; Secret Spies, for readers through fourth grade; and Danger Readers, for those in grades five through eight. Each Oak Lawn school will have a wall-hanging of "I Kanga Read," the reading kangaroo mascot, which will indicate how students are progressing in the program.

Any questions about the program should be directed to the youth services department at 422-4990.

Residents Demand Flooding Relief

A delegation of angry, frustrated homeowners from the south end of the Oak Meadows area were on hand at Tuesday night's Oak Lawn Board meeting to ask what the village can do to help them with their problems of having their homes flooded when there is a rainfall such as they experienced Monday and Tuesday. Matthew Konopo served as one of the spokesmen for the group who have homes on Wick and Lamb Drives. He said this has been going on for 25 years and they feel the village has been negligent in doing something about this problem.

Barricades were set up on 52nd Ave. to slow down cars using the street, but the drivers still drove through causing waves that ran into their homes. Some of the residents had two or more feet of water in their homes. They claim they are unable to get flood insurance.

Trustee Ron Stancik said he and Trustee Marjorie Ann Joy, two years ago, had tried to get a bond issue to fix the sewers, but their pleas fell on deaf ears with the previous board.

Konopo said he feels the village should be monetarily responsible for the damage they have suffered and pointed out that they allowed Eagle Ridge to build with no retention pool in place. Some residents said they had 6 1/2 in. of water in their living room and that there was human waste washed up in their houses.

Interim Village Manager Joseph Faber said the federal government has a map of where flood plains are located and unfortunately their area is not designated a flood zone.

Trustee William Kean suggested that the police, fire department and public works come with an emergency committee to help alleviate the situation. Stancik agreed with him that they should have an emergency team. Joy suggested asking Congressman William Lipinski and our two Senators to sit in with the team. A meeting has been set for June 15th at 8 p.m.

It was pointed out that they should get some pumps such as Chicago is using to help clear the water out, and although the village has some pumps, they are not suitable to clear out this amount of water. When it was suggested the fire department help pump the water out, Fire Chief J. Wesshoff said their equipment was unable to pump out this type of water.

Trustees Joy and Stancik moved to have this area declared a disaster area which was approved. It was suggested that the residents pick 12 members of their group to come to the meeting on the 15th.

Three bids were received for water main replacement from 55th Ct. and Southwest Highway to 95th St. Alsterda Construction of Alsip bid $99,720; Hulett Corporation of Oak Forest, $99,290; and DiPaulo Construction of Calumet Park, $95,670. Trustee Robert Sireit made a motion to award to the lower bidder subject to a review by the manager and staff. It was approved.

The appeal made by Patrick Duffy to build a home at 9640 S. Cook Ave. was denied because it is 18 inches short of the 50 feet needed to meet the village code, although he has tried to purchase some of the 90 feet of property owned by the Kransky's at 9732 Cook. The board suggested they start afresh with planning, zoning and development and see if something can't be worked out with the purchase of property from the Kransky's.

The board approved an ordinance covering the appointment and powers of a deputy village clerk and one increasing commuter parking fees. They will now pay $1 per day and $45 for a three month period. They also approved the waiver of fees for St. Louis de Montfort Church's carnival to be held June 16th through 20th and for the St. Nicholas Greek-Orthodox Church festival to be held June 19th and 20th.

School Tuition Plan

The Illinois Senate's passage of legislation allowing parents to use public funds to pay for private school tuition attracted nationwide attention. As a result, advocates of educational choice in Illinois are more optimistic than ever that parents in the state will soon have the right to choose the schools their children attend.

In May, the state Senate approved Senate Bill 592, sponsored by Senator Daniel Cronin (R-39) which would have created a pilot choice program in Chicago allowing up to 2,000 students to have tuition at private schools paid for by public funds. The program, modeled after a similar pilot program in operation in Milwaukee, for two years, would have marked a breakthrough for educational choice advocates.

The Senate bill was later defeated in the House education committee. But its initial victory and bipartisan support in the Senate generated coverage in "The Wall Street Journal" in an editorial titled "Choice: Chance in Chicago." The article quoted John Jenkins, a spokesperson for the Illinois Educational Choice Coalition saying, "We need a choice to force all schools to improve. It's not surprising that politicians are light years behind parents in recognizing that."

The Illinois choice battle was also the subject of a CBS "Eye on America" segment. Interviewed were inner-city parents, including IECC's John Jenkins, who demanded publicly-funded vouchers to use in Chicago private schools. "All this foolishness about it's going to destroy public schools," said Jenkins. "The school system is already destroyed."

Educational choice in Illinois was mentioned a third time in "Forbes," a prominent business magazine, in the first of a series of articles on the powerful National Education Association. The article exposes the 'nastier side' of the union and some of the 'unprecedented tactics' used to disrupt school choice efforts in California, Michigan and Illinois. John Jenkins was interviewed about the threatening phone calls he received that forced him to move his family to a hotel.

Local proponents of educational choice say the new attention is well-deserved. "Few cities need real school reform more than Chicago," says Illinois Educational Choice Coalition executive director Dyanne Petersen. "And few other states have such widespread public support for educational choice. We have blacks, whites, and Hispanics, Catholic, Protestants, and Jews, Republicans and even the State Democratic Party Chairman involved in our movement. We're about to become an irresistible force in Illinois politics."

The IECC has informed legislators that it intends to press for educational choice legislation this Fall when the general assembly reconvenes, and if necessary next year. "We're not quitting until we win," says Petersen.

Learning Babysitting

Thirty-three students recently completed the Oak Lawn Fire Department babysitting course. The spring session was conducted at the Church of the Nazarene, 6343 W. 90th Place, with the financial generosity of the First National Bank of Evergreen Park. The purpose of this course is to instruct students to be well trained and able to handle any emergencies that may arise. This course is offered twice a year at no expense to the participants. Pictured is instructor Patrick Kelly, Oak Lawn Fire Department with Betty Stegmann, Ken Hinzenga, Justin Laskowski and Maurine Cody. All four students attained a perfect score on the written test upon completion of the babysitting course.

Thompson Center where the display was housed. Pictured, are officers of Chicago Gaelic Park John Lynch, corresponding secretary and Mary C. Riordan, recording secretary.

Art Institute's Garden Restaurant Opens For Summer

The Art Institute of Chicago announces the return of its long-standing summer tradition, the Garden Restaurant, named in the July 1992 issue of "Travel & Leisure" as one of Chicago's top 10 outdoor restaurants. Continuing through Sept. 30th, the restaurant will be open seven days a week, weather permitting. The picturesque, outdoor cafe boasts a spacious, tree-lined courtyard setting, which overlooks the majestic Triton fountain, and can easily accommodate 250 diners.

To celebrate the museum's major summer exhibition, "Chicago Architecture and Design, 1923-1993: Reconfiguration of an American Metropolis," on view from June 12th through Aug. 29th, a new menu cover features one of the images from the exhibition, "Poster for the Century of Progress Exposition, 1934," designed by Sandor.

The restaurant's menu offers a variety of appetizers, including grilled vegetable salad, curry-fried calamari, and shrimp and scallop ceviche. Entrees include chopped sirloin burger, pizza du jour and southwestern chicken salad. For dessert, choose from homemade ice cream and sorbet, passion fruit mousse cake, and chocolate terrine. Beverages available include coffee, tea, soft drinks, espresso, cappuccino and a full-service bar.

Guests are welcome on a first-come, first-served basis, Monday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and on Sunday from 12 noon to 3:30 p.m. No reservations are taken and a $6 minimum is required. Beginning mid-June, noontime entertainment will be provided Tuesday through Saturday by classical guitarist Rob Curtis.

On Tuesday evenings, beginning June 22nd and continuing through Sept. 14th, the restaurant will be open from 4 to 7:30 p.m. for "After Hours Jazz." For the 13th season in a row, Ray Bailey and his Quintet will perform, featuring Bailey on saxophone and flute; Rachael Lee, vocals; Sonny Turner on trumpet and flugelhorn; Earma Thompson, piano; John Baney, bass; and Chante Hamilton, drums. In the event of rain, the performance will be moved indoors. There is no cover charge for the entertainment, but a $7 per person minimum for food and beverage is required.

Museum hours are Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Tuesday from 10:30 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday and holidays from 12 noon to 5 p.m. Suggested admission is $6 for adults and $3 for students, seniors and children. Senior Lifestyle Options Book

Many people prefer to remain in their own homes as long as possible during their senior years. Some find they are beginning to need assistance with personal care or homemaking activities. Other retirees prefer to concentrate on enjoying social and recreational activities while leaving the housekeeping and maintenance chores to others.

Catholic Charities' booklet, "Choosing The Right Senior Lifestyle Option," identifies and explains differences between various living arrangements available for seniors. The booklet includes a helpful personal assessment outline enabling senior citizens to review their own needs and preferences if they are considering alternative living arrangements. Practical guidelines and questions offered in the booklet assist seniors in evaluating whether or not a facility offers quality care which would be appropriate for them.

Free copies of the booklet are available by calling or writing, Catholic Charities

Heart Research

Physicians at the University of Chicago Medical Center are looking for patients with heart-rhythm disorders to participate in a clinical research study of an investigational drug which is being developed to prevent potentially fatal arrhythmias. The center is one of eight university centers around the country taking part in this project. An estimated 400,000 people die suddenly each year from ventricular arrhythmias with many of these deaths in patients having underlying coronary artery disease. The medications currently in use to prevent cardiac arrhythmias frequently have undesirable side effects and some may aggravate arrhythmias; however, investigational anti-arrhythmic drugs are becoming available for early clinical testing.

In animal studies, the investigational drug being tested at the center has prevented a variety of experimentally induced arrhythmias and animals have been exposed to the drug for up to three months with no adverse effects. Almost 30 healthy volunteers and nearly 50 patients with coronary heart disease have received single intravenous or oral doses of the drug with no serious adverse effects.

This study will evaluate the safety, tolerance and effects of multiple doses of the drug. Volunteers will receive a single larger daily dose, or two smaller daily doses, or a placebo for seven days. Patients will be hospitalized and carefully monitored for the entire trial. While there are no known serious side effects associated with this drug, there may be discomforts or side effects that are not yet known.

Participants must be between the ages of 18 and 75 (excluding women of child-bearing age) with documented coronary artery disease but without significant symptoms such as sustained arrhythmias, unstable angina or unexplained fainting. They will receive a complete physical examination, blood tests, electrocardiogram, 24-hour electrocardiographic monitoring and chest X-ray. Volunteers must be hospitalized for eight days and must return for a brief visit two to four days after discharge.

For more information about participation in these studies, call 1(800)448-2390.

The Special Olympics torch, which marks the opening of the games, will be carried by law enforcement officers who will carry the torch from all corners of the state, then pass it on to a Special Olympics athlete. All events at the ISO Summer Olympics Games are free and open to the public.

Over 3,500 athletes and a supporting cast of coaches, family members, volunteers, and friends numbering nearly 17,000 will join in on the fun and excitement. THE SHRINE IS AIR CONDITIONED

Fred Samplas, president of Heritage Bank, announced the allocation of $20 million to be earmarked for home improvement loans for residents of the south and southwest suburbs served by the 11 Heritage locations. This program is a part of Heritage Bank's involvement in community reinvestment, a federal program that encourages financial institutions to reinvest in the local communities where they do business.

Sampas stated, "We have a strong commitment to the communities we serve. We have been a south suburban bank for over 80 years. We helped these communities grow and Heritage has prospered from this growth. This is one way we can invest back into the communities."

The special loan program offers discounted rates for home improvement loans for local residents. Sampas indicated that the loans will be paid back over 10 years so individuals can lower their monthly payments. He states, "As a result of the low interest rates today, this is one of the lowest cost programs we have been able to offer in years."

"We know our residents take pride in their community and this discounted program gives more individuals the opportunity to paint and repair, do some remodeling, or add an addition to their home. We are happy to be a part of this community re-development project."

Details on the loan program are available at all locations.

Heritage Bank is a wholly owned subsidiary of Heritage Financial Services with locations in Blue Island, Tinley Park, Oak Lawn, Crestwood, Mokena, Frankfort, Country Club Hills, Palos Heights, Orland Park and Alsip.

Dwight Welch, mayor of Country Club Hills (far left) congratulates Patricia Patt, manager at Heritage Bank Country Club Hills and Fred Samplas on the bank's new home improvement loan program for community homeowners.

Pet Lovers Fest

The Anti-Cruelty Society will be sponsoring and benefiting from a walk/run morning in Lincoln Park on June 20. "Just Walkin' the Dog," a festival for pet lovers, will begin at 8 a.m. just south of The Lincoln Park Zoo.

Athletic activities for man and beast will include an 8K run, 8K walk, and obstacle course filled with barriers, slaloms, and of course, water hazards. Entry fees range from $10 to $14 depending on the event and if registration is done ahead of time or the day of event. Registration fees include a T-shirt, refreshments and entertainment also.

In addition to the athletic events taking place on June 20, sketches and oil portraits of runners' animals can be purchased. A portion of these proceeds will be donated to The Anti-Cruelty Society. Veterinarians will be available to give general information on animal care, behavior and nutrition, although detailed examinations will not be offered.

Dogs wishing to cool off after events can enjoy a shampoo or hose-down in the park courtesy of Scrub Your Pup, Lincoln Park's first do it yourself dog wash.

In addition to Scrub Your Pup, event sponsors include Culligan Water and WNUA Radio.

All money raised by the morning's events will benefit the animals at The Anti-Cruelty Society. The Anti-Cruelty Society is the largest humane society in Illinois, and is the temporary home for nearly 19,000 animals annually.

For information about "Just Walkin' the Dog" activities, or to request an entry form, call Laura at (312) 644-8338.

THE SPINAL EXAM

If you have a back problem or some other problem caused by a misalignment of your spine, a thorough exam can disclose where the problem is located.

The usual position for a spinal examination is lying on the examination table. But this is only one phase of a thorough spinal exam. For one thing, it won't give a full picture of your spinal condition when you're in a relaxed position.

The examination should include a study of how your spine aligns itself when you are carrying heavy objects, when you're standing, and also while walking or running in place. The doctor will also want to know how your spine reacts to stress. He will test various muscles to look for any weakness.

The spine is closely integrated with many parts of your body and the nervous system through which it flows. Areas out of alignment may not only affect the spine but other parts of your body as well. Only a thorough exam will tell if it's in good working order.

If you have any health questions please feel free to call our office.

Kasch Fine Cars announces that in his first full month of employment John Sequeira, pictured being congratulated by Craig Westlund, general manager, earned the prestigious April "Salesman of the Month" award. John, 30, and his wife Mary are the proud parents of one son, Eric. They reside on the Southwest Side of Chicago.

When asked to comment on his success, John offered the following ideas. "First, let me say that I've been an auto salesman for 10 years. I've worked for a number of local dealerships and I can honestly say that Kasch Fine Cars is by far the best I have ever had the privilege to work for. The ownership here cares about people...its customers and its employees. They are proud of their work and try to buy the most outstanding clean cars and trucks for the customers.

Area Income Survey

Local representatives of the U.S. Census Bureau are currently visiting selected area households to conduct its Survey of Income and Program Participation (SIPP). Stanley D. Moore, director of the bureau's Chicago regional office, announced. SIPP, a continuing nationwide survey introduced in the fall of 1983, is one of the nation's largest, with about 60,000 households participating. The Census Bureau publishes periodic reports with information from the survey.

Subjects covered include jobs and earnings; the economic effects of unemployment, disability and retirement; how taxes affect personal spending; participation in programs such as Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, food stamps and pension plans.

Information from SIPP helps policymakers and administrators determine how well government programs are serving the public and how changes in programs and policies will affect the public.

'Fair' Taxation

by Thomas J. Donohue

When governments need money, increasing the consumer excise or "sin" taxes on gasoline, alcohol and tobacco often is one of the first proposals on the table. For example, President Clinton is expected to include significant excise tax hikes in his health care reform plan. But a pair of recent studies by the policy economics group of the Pear Marwick accounting firm prove that the economic harm from higher excise taxes far outweighs the perceived benefit. According to the studies, families making less than $30,000 a year pay five times more as a percentage of income in excise taxes than families earning more than $60,000 a year.

The studies also show that 54 percent of American families earn less than $30,000 a year. Those families take home a disproportionate 19 percent of the total income in the United States. In contrast, the people who make the most, families earning more than $60,000 a year and receiving 48 percent of the nation's total income, pay only 22 percent of the excise taxes each year. Clearly, the excise tax burden falls on the wrong people, the people who have the least to pay. This is grossly unfair and unacceptable.

Higher excise taxes also discriminate against rural residents, where the average family drives 40 miles a day. Compare this with an average of 25 miles a day for urban families, many of whom have access to subsidized mass transit systems. As a result, the studies demonstrate that an average rural American would pay 62 percent more in excise taxes than an urban resident.

Higher excise taxes also would unfairly target certain industries, including trucking, alcohol and tobacco.

From a trucker's viewpoint, the proposed energy tax, or "BTU" tax, in the president's economic plan really is a camouflaged excise tax on fuel. The proposed BTU tax on petroleum products is more than twice that placed on other energy sources, including natural gas, nuclear power and coal. When fully phased in by mid-1996, the BTU tax would drive the cost of gasoline and diesel fuel up by about 8 cents per gallon, which means that more than $2.9 billion would be added to the trucking industry's fuel bill.

Manufacturers of alcohol and tobacco products, which already face crushing excise taxes, also would be seriously hurt by a tax increase. The studies show that doubling the excise taxes on those products would cost more than 170,000 American jobs, and doubling the fuel tax would result in another 130,000 unemployed.

Let's not make one population group or a handful of industries pay for government spending problems that clearly are everyone's responsibility. Americans always have been willing to pull their weight and pay their fair share. Fairness is all we ask.

(Thomas J. Donohue is president and chief executive officer for the American Trucking Association in Alexandria, Va., and president of the Washington, D.C.-based Coalition Against Regressive Taxation.)

Foreign Student Program

Host families are desperately needed for an A.F.S. summer program running Aug. 8th through 29th. Exchange students will be completing the second half of a language study program (the first half will be in a university setting) and must be placed in homes to practice their English. The students are from all over the world and are 16-19 years of age. The host family picks up the cost of housing the student and can specify a female or male foreign exchange student. The exchange student would then be part of the family, doing whatever their host family is doing for the remainder of

Record Keeping Manual

Businesses puzzled by the recordkeeping requirements of state and federal laws can now turn to a new manual published by the Illinois Retail Merchants Association (IRMA).

"Everything You Ever Wanted To Know About Record Retention...but didn't know whom to ask" explains the data requirements of virtually every law affecting business owners and managers, including sales, income, corporate, Ut, and FICA tax records; state and federal personnel and labor laws; employee injury and health; lending and credit; business contracts and unclaimed property.

The 70-page manual also includes regulations on 20 specific goods and services. Throughout the book, the applicable state or federal law is cited and each section begins with a summary of requirements.

"Retailers and other businesses tell us they are overwhelmed by the multiplicity of state and federal demands to retain records," commented IRMA President David Vite. "The information is important not only for compliance but as evidence in resolving disputes. Finally, merchants have a single source to guide them through the requirements."

"Record Retention" was researched and written by the Chicago law firm of Wilson & McIlvaine, which serves as general counsel to IRMA.

The cost of the manual is $15 for IRMA members and $25 for non-members including shipping. Copies may be ordered by calling the IRMA Chicago office at (312) 726-4600 or by writing to IRMA, 36 S. Wabash Ave., 1226, Chicago IL 60603. FAX orders to (312) 726-9570.

Boat Launch Grant

Cook County Board President Richard Phelan announced that the Forest Preserve District of Cook County has received a $17,600 grant from the Illinois Department of Conservation to develop an access area for launching canoes and small boats at Saganashkee Slough in Palos Township.

"I am confident this project will greatly enhance the recreational opportunities for all county residents," Phelan said. "Saganashkee Slough is famous throughout the county as an excellent place to catch black crappie and channel catfish. It is my hope that more people will now be able to partake in the fun and relaxation of fishing."

the summer. This would make for a memorable summer both for the foreign student and an American family who ordinarily could not host for a school year.

Interested parties can call (708) 423-5739, the A.F.S. State Office, and ask for Dale. A response is needed by Thursday, July 1st.

All Points Southwest

BY
WALTER H. LYSEN

Congressman Bill Lipinski (D-3), pointing out that it is impossible to reduce the national debt through spending cuts only, says he voted against President Clinton's plan because of "responsibility to the Nation and to its children." He responded to the concerns of his constituents and his vote reflects his commitment to serve those who elected him.

"It is important," he said, "that our two U.S. Senators, Simon and Braun, hear the views of taxpayers on the Clinton proposal which includes $145 billion in new spending."

Lipinski continued, "They can make the changes you and I want and the President now says he is willing to accept. Call them today and let them know what you'd like to see. Senator Paul Simon's office phone is (312) 353-4952 and Senator Braun's is (312) 353-5420."

Reasons Lipinski cited for his 'nay' vote on the President's deficit reduction plan include the fact that the ratio is $2 in tax increases for every $1 in spending cuts and that the plan is unfair. He says that extra money raised by new taxes should go to reducing the deficit, not to a bunch of new social programs; that the ratio of tax hikes to spending cuts should be closer to one-one, and that the middle class not bear an unfair tax burden.

"I believe the President is starting to hear us," Lipinski added. "He has told Senators he is open to proposals which would reduce the amount of new taxes while increasing spending cuts."

The proposal as it now stands would increase taxes a staggering $250 billion over the next five years and the national debt is expected to increase by $1.2 trillion over the same period, an unacceptable plan as far as Lipinski is concerned.

Bill Smith, retired superintendent of Alsip, Oak Lawn School District 126, calls attention to three local retiring school superintendents who have had long time successes in very difficult jobs. Kudos go to retiring superintendents Rosemary Lucas of Worth District 127 for 36 years; Raymond Garritano of Mokena...17 years and Robert Olcese of Oak Lawn-Ridgeland...20 years. Smith, who retired three years ago, served District 126 for 31 years ... more kudos to him.

English Trash Burning Report

In another example of the growing worldwide trend toward trash-to-energy facilities, the Royal Commission on Environmental Pollution in London, England, has announced its national strategy for waste management which "recommends burning waste to provide energy."

The commission's report, released last month, states that priority in trash disposal will be given to creating less waste, recycling as much of it as possible and recovering energy from what remains. Among other things, the report concludes that incineration of household waste is environmentally preferable to tipping it, untreated, into a landfill site because the residue left post-incineration takes up much less space and is much more stable.

Commission Chairman Sir John Houghton praised the increase in efforts nationally to both minimize and recycle waste. But he cautioned that these activities can't do it all. "For the foreseeable future, however, there will continue to be large amounts of household waste requiring disposal," said Houghton. "Incineration under carefully controlled conditions is likely to represent the best practicable environmental option for such wastes."

Other countries have been safely and successfully using trash-to-energy technology for years. In the environmentally conscious country of Sweden, for example, more than 50 percent of household trash is disposed of in modern trash-to-energy plants. Even greater percentages are realized in Switzerland, Denmark and Japan.

The Royal Commission report was compiled over two years based on interviews and information from 160 organizations and individuals and visits to modern trash-to-energy plants in the UK and Germany.

More Women In College

From 1976 to 1987, men and women attended college in roughly equal proportions. However, women's enrollment rates have been at least four percentage points higher than men's each year from 1988 to 1990. In 1991, their rate led men's by nine percentage points, according to the U.S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Survey Of Housing

The 1993 survey of housing in the United States has begun in this area. The Census Bureau and the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) planned the survey to obtain current information on housing, one of the nation's key economic indicators.

Across the country the bureau has selected a sample of 62,000 housing units from the national stock of 107 million. It updates the sample every other year to reflect new construction, other additions, and losses from the inventory. A related housing survey covering seven specific metropolitan areas started in March.

The national survey makes possible comparisons of the number and types of housing as well as changes in the total stock and the cost of housing, services and utilities. It also provides data on characteristics of structures and their occupants.

Census Bureau representatives will interview households for about five months and will send each household an announcement beforehand. Owners, rental agents or neighbors will be asked to provide information on unoccupied units.

The agencies will issue results late in 1994, including data for the nation, regions, urban and rural areas, combined metropolitan areas (both inside and outside central cities) and non-metropolitan areas.

"Free" Fishing

From June 11-14, fishing licenses will not be needed to fish from Forest Preserve District of Cook County's lakes, announced Cook County Board President Richard Phelan.

"This is a great opportunity to try out the exciting sport of fishing," Phelan said. "The Forest Preserve District has some of the best areas for fishing in the region and all the areas are easily accessible throughout the county."

Normally a valid Illinois hook and line fishing license is required except for persons that are under 16, disabled or blind, or over the age of 65. In addition to a fishing license, a State of Illinois trout and salmon stamp is required when fishing for trout within the Forest Preserve District's trout lakes.

Daily size and bag limits must still be observed during the free fishing days. The Forest Preserve District offers a detailed fishing guide for its 36 water areas. The guide lists waters open to the public, location, size, depth and principal kinds of fish in each water area, as well as additional fishing regulations.

To receive a fishing guide or for more information, contact the District Conservation Department at 708-771-1330 (hearing/speech impaired, TDD No. 708-771-1190). The Forest Preserve District also has sites for the physically challenged.

The U.S. Census Bureau is collecting data on employment and unemployment compensation from area residents during the week of June 13th to 19th, according to Stanley Moore, director of the bureau's Chicago regional office. The local labor force data will contribute to the national employment and unemployment picture to be released July 2 by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Information supplied by individuals to the Census Bureau is kept confidential by law.

A highlight of the community's centennial celebration will be the four performances of "ForEver Green," a outdoor pageant on the history of Evergreen Park. This outdoor show is scheduled for Wednesday, July 7th through Saturday, July 10th at the Evergreen Park High School football field. A cast of over 200 residents is expected to participate in this once-in-a-lifetime event.

"ForEver Green" will be professionally produced and directed by Phyllis Shelfow (right), who has also written the show. She represents the John B. Rogers Co., which specializes in outdoor pageants and anniversary celebrations. The show will be performed on a multi-level stage, specially constructed for this event. Professional lighting, sound and projection techniques will enhance the production. This same company worked with the Village of Evergreen Park on their 75th anniversary. Dennis L. Duffy (second from right), CLP, who serves as commissioner and director of recreational services for the village, is serving as show division chairman. Committee members include (left to right, seated) costume chairman Barbara Reilly; casting chairman Maureen Fruhwirth; (left to right, standing) student activities chairman Eileen Thompson; centennial secretary Laura Shallow; stage hands chairman Edward Polaski and grounds chairman, Dr. Michael Johnson. Other committee members are chairman Robert Watkins and construction chairman Robert Telandier.

Casting positions are still available. Rehearsals are held on Mondays through Thursdays, in the high school cafeteria, 99th and Kedzie, beginning at 7 p.m. The actors will not need to memorize lines. Costumes are provided at no cost. Residents, business people, or their friends who are interested should contact the Centennial Headquarters, by calling 423-8509.

The Battalion death march consisted of 70 percent of ex-CCCs that enlisted from the CCC camps into the U.S. Army and went overseas immediately.

Well-known people who served in the CCC were movie stars Raymond Burr, Robert Mitchum, Walter Matthau, boxer Archie Moore, Mayor Washington of Chicago, ballplayers Stan Musial, Red Schoendienst, test pilot Chuck Yeager and many others.

The dinner-dance is scheduled at Killarney Castle Banquet Hall, 8055 W. 103rd St., on Sunday, June 27th. Festivities begin at 1 p.m. with family-style dinner served at 2 p.m. sharp. to provide the best in animal care and protection," says Dennis White, director of American Humane's animal protection division. "Anti-Cruelty Society has continued to demonstrate their commitment to improving their services and programs."

Integrated Health Services At Brentwood

Hospital Care Without Hospital Costs

Integrated Health Services At Brentwood (IHS) is a pioneer in the development of subacute care programs which provide a lower cost alternative for hospitalized patients who are medically stable, but still require intensive nursing and specialty services. These patients may also require comprehensive rehabilitation but cannot meet the criteria for admission to an acute rehabilitation program.

IHS offers the following programs: cardiac care, ventilator management, surgical recovery (including pre/post organ transplant), oncology recovery and pain management, orthopedic rehabilitation, wound management, and neurological rehabilitation. The treatment team in the subacute care facility consists of a medical director, consulting physicians, RN clinical coordinator, case managers, critical care or rehabilitation RNs, respiratory, physical, occupational and speech therapists, social workers, dietitians, LPNs, CNAs and rehabilitation technicians. Although the professional staffing levels and quality of care provided are similar to the acute hospital, the cost is generally 30 to 60 percent lower.

Located at 5400 West 87th Street in Burbank, IHS is licensed as a skilled nursing facility and has achieved accreditation with commendation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations. BASEBALL ROUND-UP

Local high schools are playoff-hungry as they strive toward the championship crown. Those fields now hold the dreams of every player, to be on the number one team.

Tuesday Game (June 1st)

Shepard 4 - Stagg 1

Shepard's Astros rocketed their way to a 4-1 victory over Stagg's Chargers during the Class AA Sandburg Regional final.

Jim Dallio gave the offense a spark in the top of the fifth as he pounded a round-tripper over the left field fence for a 2-0 lead. Adding another homer in the sixth was Jeff Wilson to make it a 3-0 game. Connecting for an RBI single shot in the seventh was Mike Melichar. He drove home Tony Hall who had doubled earlier.

The Chargers' lone run came home in the bottom of the sixth. Chuck Olson singled in Ryan Darrah, who had gotten to first on an error and reached second on another Astro miscue.

"It was a good game," commented Astro coach John Harasen. "Our defense picked it up, and the pitching was superb."

Saturday Games (June 5th)

St. Laurence 5 - Shepard 3

The Vikings poured on the power and eliminated the Astros from the Class AA Andrew Sectional with a 5-3 triumph.

Ace Vike hurler Joe DiGangi fanned seven Astros on the way to his 11th win of the season against no losses.

Laurence started the scoring in the first inning via sacrifice flies from Wayne Druktenis and DiGangi. In the second, the Vikes captured the lead for good as Jason Amato connected for a line drive double inside the left field line to bring in Matt Daley, who had gotten on base after an Astro snafu. They added an insurance run in the third when Pete Lotus came home on a wild pitch by Astro Craig Tacy. Earlier, Lotus had doubled and advanced to third on a fielder's choice.

The Astros scored in the sixth after Daren Protolipac clouted an RBI single to bring in John Pahr. Shepard also had two runs in the bottom of the first after an infield single off the bat of Tony Hull and an RBI grounder from Mike Melichar.

The Vikes are looking for their first trip to the state tournament finals since 1987. "We have an excellent ball club," related Viking coach Tom Pallardy. "We can play against anyone."

Andrew 4 - Thornton Fractional South 1

Behind the hot hurling of senior right-hander Vince Fiore, the Thunderbolts struck like lightning against the Rebels of Thornton Fractional South as they took a 4-1 win during the Andrew Sectional semifinals. Fiore fanned 10 Rebels, walked only one, and scattered six hits.

The T-Bolts got on the scoreboard in the second with an RBI single off the bat of David Butler that drove home Ben Kotwica. They added a pair in the bottom of the third as Marc McCarey scored a mis-throw and Steve De Haan reached home on another Rebel throwing error. Butler added an insurance run in the fifth as he drove in Kotwica, who had singled and stolen second.

"I felt like I had a really good fastball, and my changeup and curve were working," noted Fiore. "Everything clicked."

Tennis Camp

A tennis camp for boys and girls in grades 8 through 12 will be conducted at St. Laurence High School from Monday, June 21st through Friday, June 25th. The camp will last from 9 a.m. until 12 noon. For the purpose of complete and beneficial instruction, group sizes will be limited, thus early application and registration are recommended.

The camp will be under the direction of St. Laurence coach Tom Draski who has coached tennis at St. Laurence for the past 18 years. His teams have been a constant force in the Catholic League and he was the Catholic League tennis coach of the year in 1989. He has also given group and private instruction at the Woodhaven Lakes Recreation Center. Assisting coach Draski will be assistant coaches in St. Laurence's program and other high school programs as well.

The camp stresses proper fundamentals of the basic tennis strokes; forehand, backhand, serve and volley. Use of St. Laurence ball machine will provide challenging drill activity. There will also be in-camp tennis matches among participants.

The cost of the camp is $40 per participant, which includes the use of the school's indoor and outdoor facilities, a T-shirt, insurance and instructional videotapes. Campers also have the opportunity to be videotaped on Thursday and Friday between 12 noon and 2 p.m., but must provide their own tape. Locker and shower facilities are also available.

More information and a brochure are available by calling Draski or athletic director Bob DeCarlo at St. Laurence at (708) 458-6900. St. Laurence is at 5556 W. 77th St.

CABLE, WISCONSIN - This past Memorial Day Weekend will be one to remember. The adverse weather that prevailed throughout the Midwest put a damper on outdoor activities including fishing. Rain, lightning and high winds scuttled plans to fish Lake Superior and no one should be on the water or wading a Trout stream during an electrical storm.

Memorial Day Services at the Village Triangle were conducted during a light rain with the American Legion Color Guard and High School Band honoring our fallen comrades who answered the call and paid the ultimate price. I'm sure many of them didn't approve of the wars, but they didn't leave the country or protest our government's involvement. "THEY SHALL NOT BE FORGOTTEN."

Tom Paulsen and I fished Lake Namakagon on opening day. Tom spent most of his childhood and adult life on the Lake. He took me to some good areas with structure and weed beds. We tried spoons, plugs and spinners, caught a few small Northerns and finally nailed a Musky on a "Grim Reaper" Bucktail, the fish didn't make the 40" size limit and was released. We would have released it regardless of size anyway.

We didn't hear of any large muskies being caught. Mogashien Resort on the north end of Lake Namakagon reported their guests catching good size and numbers of Crappies.

My wife and I stayed at beautiful Norway Lodge on Lake Owen. This is a 9 mile long deep, clear lake noted for its smallmouth bass and walleye fishing. One of the guests, BOB REIMER of Franklin, Wisconsin, is a legend on Lake Owen. He spends four weeks in the spring and six in the fall at Norway Lodge, fishing nothing but walleye which he releases and is reported to have a unique relationship with the pair of bald eagles that nest on Lake Owen every year.

During a break in the weather Bob invited me to fish with him. He predicted the fast moving cold fronts and cold 53 degree water temperature would turn the fish off. He was right, Bob is a scientific fisherman strategically taking into consideration wind speed and direction, structure, water temperature etc. We did catch walleye and then he did the "Bald Eagle Thing." Bob gave forth with a peculiar whistle, sure enough the pair of eagles followed our boat. Bob held up a special treat for the eagles, they came right over the boat, Bob threw the treat in the water next to the boat and the eagles swooped down, picked up the treat and the pair flew back to their nest. My video and still cameras were back at the lodge, another picture taking opportunity lost.

As I mentioned before, Bob fishes only catch and release walleyes, using a special technique which he shared with me. The secret to his success is a unique combination of jig, nightcrawler and the ability to count to three. Sorry I can't divulge more details, I want to fish with Bob again.

Lake Owen and Namakagon are located in the heart of the Chequamegon National Forest in Northwest Wisconsin. For info on this four season recreation area call or write Norway Lodge c/o Gert Reickhoff, HC 60, Box 45, Cable, WI., 54821, or (715) 798-3696, or Cable Area Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Santa Fe Monster Truck And Dwarf Car Races Thursday and Friday night, June 10 and 11, Santa Fe Speedway goes airborne with the awesome Monster Truck Shootout plus Dwarf Car Races. Eight high-flying Monster Trucks are set to do battle, racing over a specially constructed spine-tingling car-crushing course: World renowned Grave Digger, 1992 World Champion, Bear Foot, Hercules I & II, Giant, the Hustler, Top Gun Jeep, plus 1992 Santa Fe Speedway Champion, Mudslinger. Also on tap on this night, Monster Truck rides starting at 5 p.m. An autograph session has been slated for six, with the metal mashing set to begin at 8 p.m.

If you've never witnessed the phenomenon called "Monster Truck Racing" you would not believe your eyes. Imagine two ten thousand pound trucks with five and a half foot tires and more than 1300 horsepower racing side-by-side over one, two and sometimes three sets of cars. The result is one of the fastest growing spectator sports in America, sure to be fun for kids of all ages.

Piloting Grave Digger will be Virginia native, Dennis Anderson, who started his racing career in 1981 racing a Kiesee Army Truck in local Mud Boggs. Anderson made some modifications, replacing the body with a 1951 Ford cab body, put it on the Army truck chassis, painted "Grave Digger" on the side...and the legend that became known as Grave Digger was born.

In 1992, Fred Shafer reached the pinnacle of his sport, driving his Dodge Dakota Bear Foot Monster Truck to the prestigious Camel Mud and Monster Series World Championship Crown. Earlier in the year, Shafer met with a Dodge Motorsports team in an effort to develop a truck with greater horsepower and handling characteristics. When the dust settled, the hard work and planning paid off and Shafer was the World Champ.

At racing intermission, ten Dwarf Cars, 5/8 scale models of 1928-1948 vintage cars, will race on Santa Fe's specially prepared quarter-mile clay oval. Powered by motorcycle engines, producing up to 1250 cc maximum power, these Dwarf Cars are no toys as they reach average speeds upwards of 60 miles per hour.

Top Coach Award

Three coaches from the local area shared this year's Chicago Catholic League Tony Lawless Award. Recognized as "top coach" by their peers, the league's coaches, were Brother Rice's Cliff Petrak, St. Laurence's Tom Pallardy and St. Rita's Jim Prunty.

Edgar Declares 'Disaster Area' After Storms

Thunderstorms that ravaged the Chicago area on Monday and Tuesday caused more than their share of headaches for homeowners and drivers. The soaking rainfall measured between three and five inches, coming down within a matter of hours.

One of the hardest hit suburbs was Worth. "You name it, they've got it," related Rose Bloom, an employee of the Worth Public Works Department. "There is water all over the entire village. The block of 108th and Nashville is flooded along with 108th and 109th on Lloyd Drive. Also, 115th St. is pretty much all water."

According to Bloom, there are several flooded basements, crawlspaces, and backyards. "Our superintendent has been on the streets for the last two days," she stated. "He's right out there with the boys."

In Midlothian, storm problems were less severe. "Some of the streets had water, but there was nothing real bad," commented a Public Works employee. "Most of the calls were about branches being down and blocking streets. All of our employees are out on the streets. There have been no flooded basement type of calls. Some residents on 145th and Sawyer across the street from Raday Lodge were without electricity for awhile."

For Evergreen Park there were some water-logged streets and flooded basements were reported. "We have had some sewer water back-up in the basements," noted Pat Schurman of the village's public works department. "Kedzie Avenue was flooded yesterday (Monday), but it's better today. On 95th St. around the Martinique there was also some flooding, along with various side streets."

Oak Lawn was also plagued with numerous water-related problems. "Anywhere from 99th to 105th streets there was a lot of water," acknowledged Mayor Ernie Kolb. "Places west of Pulaski and east of Central were under water. The neighborhoods around St. Germaine's and St. Linus had lots of flooding. It was scary."

Kolb also said that, "I never saw that kind of flooding around here where the water was over the curbs and on the lawns. People that never had flooded basements before were hit."

It was reported by the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District (MWRD) that 5 billion gallons of water fell in the course of three hours throughout the southwest suburbs. According to the MWRD, the Deep Tunnel can accommodate 1 billion gallons of water but Monday's storm dumped more than 5 times that much into the tunnel, an impossible amount to control. This undoubtedly caused some of the major flooding in the Southwest Suburban area as well as the Southwest Side of the City of Chicago.

"Some basements had to be pumped out and now we have the clean up," Kolb noted. "We have to face the mess of the aftermath. We had so much flooding because the Deep Tunnel filled up. When that happens, you know that we had a rough one."

Evergreen Park High Summer Schedule

Evergreen Park High School summer school is open to all residents of the village. Students who live in Evergreen Park but will not be attending EPCHS during the 1993-94 school year and wish to enroll in a credit course must have the signature of an administrator or counselor of his or her school on the registration form. EPCHS considers the signature of the sending school administrator/counselor as indication that the sending school will recognize the academic work done and transcribe the credit earned on the student's permanent record card. The home school will give credit after notification that the student has passed the course.

The cost of summer school is $25 per 0.5 credit. Fees must be paid in full at the time of registration. All classes will meet Monday through Friday. Evergreen Park High reserves the right to cancel any course for which there is not an adequate number of registrations. The first semester runs from June 21st to July 9th and the second from July 12th to July 30th.

Summer school courses include Algebra I, 1.0 credit; Biology, 1.0 credit; English (makeup only) 1.0 credit; Keyboarding, 0.5 credit; U.S. History, 1.0 credit; World History, 1.0 credit; Government, 0.5 credit, and Economics, 0.5 credit.

Several summer sport camps are also available: boys basketball for grade school for grades 5-8 and for high school, grades 9-12; girls basketball for grades 9-12; cross-country for grades 9-12; football, frosh/soph and football varsity; volleyball, grades 9-12. The cost of the camps is $20 a student for each, except for cross-country, which is $15 per student.

No refunds will be issued after the third day of summer school. Students who fail to formally withdraw before that time forfeit tuition, fees and credit.

Any student who misses the fifth hour of a semester class will be dropped, forfeiting the registration fee. Four tardies constitutes a one-hour absence. Students tardy for any reason are to report directly to the instructor. Emergencies, such as illness and death in the immediate family, are the only acceptable excused absences.

The same academic atmosphere concerning behavior and dress prevails during summer school as during the regular term. Students dropped due to attendance or disciplinary reasons forfeit tuition, fees and credit. The course name and grade received is to appear on the regular high school transcript.

The south entrance only is to be open for the summer. Washroom facilities on the first floor, near the center of the building, will be available for use. The cafeteria is not in operation during the summer.

Checks should be made payable to Evergreen Park High School. Tuition or sports camp fees are due at the time of registration. Registration is accepted at the principal's office, 9901 Kedzie, main entrance, between 9 a.m. and 12 noon, or by mail. Registration is open to Evergreen Park residents only and falsification of residency results in forfeiture of fees and credit.

For more information, call 424-7400, extension 236.

R.R. Crossings In Need Of Repair

Along with the railroad crossings being repaired in the Village of Oak Lawn, there is the question of crossings in desperate need of repair not being done. In question are the 106th St. and Central crossing and the crossing on 111th St. between Cicero and Central Aves. "Going over these tracks is like crossing the world's deepest potholes, risking damage to tires and possibly the car itself. In addition, a few bumps and bruises have been known to happen, even at low speeds, complain drivers."

According to Village Clerk A. Jayne Powers, the village hall has been getting "tons of calls" on both crossings. She pointed out that the tracks are owned by the Chessie System (B. & O. and C. & O. Railroads) and that the responsibility for maintenance of the right-of-way is the railroad.

Oak Lawn Mayor Ernie Kolb said he has recently received correspondence from the railroad stating that both crossings are scheduled for repair. No date for the work has as yet been set, he added.

Kolb said that of the crossings in question, the one at 106th and Central is "by far the worse of the two."

That crossing was worked on a few years ago, he said, and a rubber-based material, said to be the best available for repair, was installed.

"It did not last that long," Kolb pointed out, "it just fell apart." The letter from Chessie System officials stated that when work begins, it probably will be 111th St. which gets first attention. Kolb prefers that work on 106th and Central gets priority but said he does not know if the railroad will reverse the work orders.

Kolb said the crossings now being worked on are owned by Metra, which is government run.

Resident Discount IDs

The Forest Preserve District of Cook County will be expanding the hours during the month of June that it sells resident discount identification cards, announced County Board President Richard Phelan.

The ID cards entitle county residents to reduced play at the district's 10 golf courses. "The district wants to make it easier for people to take advantage of the special reduced resident green fees," Phelan said. "By expanding the hours, we hope to make it more convenient for residents to purchase the cards, which make golfing very economical."

A resident discount card, which costs $20, allows for discounted play on weekdays, weekends, holidays and during twilight.

PARTY ANIMALS MUTED AND FINED....The hometown of former President Richard Nixon, Whittier, California, is the latest Southern California community to enact an ordinance allowing police to charge fees up to $1,000 if police officers are called to the scene of a home party more than once to ask the party animals to turn down the music volume because it is disturbing neighbors. In recent years, dozens of Southern California cities have enacted similar laws that slap unruly party hosts with fees for failing to turn down the volume but only after a fair warning has been issued. Like 19 other Southern California cities, party-givers will first receive a warning if police consider the festivities too noisy. If officers have to come back a second time, the host or property owner will be billed for the officer's time, equipment and administrative costs. In some Southern California cities the fine is added to the homeowner's utility bill. The message is simple, turn down the volume or the city turns off your water.

EASTWARD HO!.....Although it is totally unrelated to the "noise ordinance," moving companies in Southern California report for the second year in a row that up to 60 percent of all moves are Los Angeles residents pulling up stakes and heading to other states. According to a trade group that represents moving companies in Southern California, the top 10 states Californians are headed for are Texas, Washington, Colorado, Oregon, Florida, Arizona, Illinois, Virginia, New York and Georgia. A survey conducted by the trade association indicates that most Southern Californians moving out of the state cite a sluggish economy, crime and education as the reasons why they are moving.

90210 FOR SALE....The ZIP code for Beverly Hills, California is 90210 which almost everyone knows from the sitcom "Beverly Hills 90210." But these days, the ZIP code could be changed to read: "90210 For Sale." The ZIP code embraces three of the most high-priced property areas in Southern California—Beverly Hills, Brentwood and Bel-Air, but real estate prices have taken a 50 percent hit since the late 1980s. Well-heeled Southern Californians are pulling the strings on their Gucci purses and some of the toniest property in lotus-land are plunging like homes sitting on top of a crack in the earth's surface during an earthquake. Only four years ago, one Beverly Hills real estate broker held an open house for a home listed at $9.8 million and "invited guests" lounged on the home's limestone terrace nibbling on hors d'oeuvres and sipping champagne while gazing at a white horse rented for the occasion which grazed on the green grass on the hillside below the estate. This past week, the same home was up for sale for $4 million and the same real estate broker offered anyone who showed up for the open house soda pop, Ritz crackers and a small plate of chunks of cheddar cheese. The white horse must have had a better offer.

ANGELA BASSETT (inset) stars as the legendary rock 'n' roll singer Tina Turner who gave everything she had—and more than she bargained for—to make her dreams come true, in the Touchstone Pictures' drama with music "What's Love Got To Do With It" which opens tomorrow at movie houses all over the Chicago area. Due to enormous popularity and sold-out houses for Chicago's recent production of Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice's critically-acclaimed rock opera, "Jesus Christ Superstar," theatre-goers will have the opportunity to see the hit show again when it plays a one-week only encore engagement from July 21 through 25 at the Chicago Theatre. The Goodman Theatre will cap its 1992/93 Mainstage season with the new musical theatre work, "Cry, The Beloved Country," the tragedy of racial separatism in South Africa, which opens June 28 and runs through Aug. 8.

SAM NEILL (inset) stars as Dr. Alan Grant in Universal Pictures' release "Jurassic Park" which opens tomorrow at theatres all around Chicago after one of the biggest publicity build-ups witnessed, for a motion picture in recent years. Steven Spielberg, who directs the pictured taken from the best-selling book by Michael Crichton, says "Jurassic Park" is not science fiction, it's science eventuality.

DASHES TO DEADLINE....Dennis M. Lesniak, Commander 22nd District, Chicago Police Department, expects a big turnout next Tuesday, June 15, when the C.A.P.S. (Chicago Alternative Policing Strategy) advisory committee and neighborhood residents meet at 6 p.m. at Morgan Park United Methodist Church, 11030 S. Longwood Drive, to hear Mayor Richard M. Daley, Superintendent of Police Matt L. Rodriguez and other city officials explain how the new system works. Channel 5's Mark Giangreco and the Loop's Kevin Matthews will lead

World Music Theater Loses It's Exemption

Legislation which would have exempted Tinley Park's World Music Theater from the Illinois Pollution Control Board's jurisdiction was pronounced dead-on-arrival in the House last Wednesday.

State Representatives John Sheehy (D-37) and Larry Wennlund (R-38) stood up and voiced their strong opposition to the bill which would restrict efforts to tone down the noise at the outdoor theater.

"My office is flooded with calls from people complaining about the noise at the World Theatre," Sheehy stated. "There simply must be some kind of controls put on the noise which can be heard miles away."

Sheehy said he spoke with many residents and local officials, and they all were opposed to giving the World a 'blank check' for noise pollution.

"Even though the World Theater is an important economic part of the area, they should have to follow the laws put in place," Sheehy explained. "We all enjoy the shows they put on, but if that bill passed, the World would have no one to tell them when enough is enough."

On "Center Stage"

Some of the most exciting and popular entertainers today come to public television this summer on "Center Stage." The new music performance series produced by the National Television Production Center at WTTW/Chicago and VH-1 has its public television premiere on Monday, June 14th at 9 p.m. with Michael Bolton.

"Center Stage" showcases musicians in rare live-to-tape performances before audiences in the WTTW studios and on location. Other top performers appearing on "Center Stage" are Lindsey Buckingham on June 21st, Neil Young on June 28th, Wynonna on July 5th, Aaron Neville on July 12th, Keith Richards on July 19th, Bruce Hornsby on Aug. 2nd and k.d. lang & Gloria Estefan during August pledge.

"Center Stage" represents an unprecedented collaboration. It's the first co-production venture in which cable (Viacom's VH-1) and public television (WTTW/Chicago) have joined to produce a performance series. Each of the programs produced for public television is to be presented in a one-hour format of performance, interspersed with candid interviews with the artists. The VH-1 version of "Center Stage," which premiered in February in a half-hour format on cable, presents an up-close look at the artists as they perform on stage.

Grammy Award-winning pop vocalist and songwriter Michael Bolton kicks off the first program with "Love is a Wonderful Thing." He is joined by Percy Sledge for a duet of "When a Man Loves a Woman" and then solos on "Steel Bars," a song he co-wrote with Bob Dylan, and "How Can We Be Lovers," among others.

"Center Stage" is a production of WTTW/Chicago and VH-1. The exclusive corporate underwriter of the public television broadcasts is Kodak Film. Dick Carter is producer/director and Glenn DuBose is executive producer for WTTW. Mike Simon is supervising producer and director for VH-1.

Paul Natkin is the official still photographer for "Center Stage." Based in Chicago, Natkin has been photographing celebrities in music, television and theater all over the country since 1976.

State Income Tax Checkoff For Worthy Causes

State Rep. Maureen Murphy (R-36) utilized her position as Republican spokesman on a key committee to successfully spearhead the campaign to create a state income tax checkoff that benefits breast and cervical cancer research and other worthy issues. As a GOP spokesman on the House Revenue Committee, Rep. Murphy negotiated with other lawmakers to include the checkoff funds in a proposal that cleared the legislature last week and went to Gov. Jim Edgar's desk for his approval. On May 25th, the Senate unanimously approved Senate Bill 664 after the House took similar action earlier. SB 664 includes state income tax checkoff funds for breast cancer and cervical cancer research, as well as other checkoffs for the disabled, the elderly and AIDS-inflicted persons.

Supported by Rep. Murphy, the breast and cervical cancer checkoff was first introduced by GOP lawmakers as part of the House Republican Working Group on Women's Issues to raise funding for cancer research.

"A checkoff is a common-sense approach to raising money. It helps to financially boost valuable research into a life-threatening disease such as breast and cervical cancer and AIDS," Murphy said. "An average of more than 2,500 new cases of cervical cancer in women have been reported along with other cancer-related problems."

"We also chose to address other noble concerns," Murphy said. "Funding problems behind research for adults and children inflicted with AIDS can receive a big boost with the checkoff approach."

SB 664's other provisions permit taxpayers to start checking off on next year's tax forms funds for AIDS research under the Ryan White Pediatric and Adult AIDS checkoff. Another worthy program, Illinois "Special Olympics" athletic events for the disabled, would receive state dollars through a checkoff fund allowed by the bill.

"Meals on Wheels," a state-subsidized program to deliver hot meals to shut-in senior citizens, would continue under another checkoff fund permitted by the legislation.

There are five checkoffs on the current 1992 tax form, with four returning from 1991. A checkoff must raise at least $100,000 in order to stay on the tax form year after year.

Flood Relief Planned

Taking swift action to help people who have suffered heavy damage to their homes or businesses from the recent heavy rains and flooding, Cook County Assessor Thomas C. Hynes announced recently that flood victims can still apply for assessment reductions at his downtown Chicago office or any of the assessor's branch offices located in the Circuit Court Buildings.

"We have great sympathy for flood victims and we will make every effort to help property owners who have suffered substantial building damage from flooding caused by the June storm," Hynes said.

Taxpayers in areas where 1993 assessment notices have been mailed will have until June 25th to file a flood-damage complaint. All other people will have until their township deadline to file a complaint.

Office hours are from 8:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and, in addition, Hynes announced that the Chicago, Bridgeview, Maywood and Markham offices will be open from 9 a.m. until noon on Saturdays.

Properties eligible for assessment reductions are those with structural damage severe enough to affect their market values. This would include, for example, structural damage to the foundation or walls, the flooring in the living area, or central heating and air-conditioning units.

Assessment relief is not available for damage to personal property such as furniture or carpeting (personal property is not taxed in Illinois), or for normal weather damage such as basement seepage, roof leakage or loss of gutters.

At the assessor's offices, property owners will be able to complete real estate valuation complaint forms. Applicants will need to provide the index number to their property and a written description of the damage. Photographs, repair estimates or bills, insurance estimates, amount of any disaster relief loan, and assessment complaint forms from previous flood damage would also be helpful, if available.

For more information, contact Hynes' office in downtown Chicago at the County Building, 118 N. Clark, Room 301, (312) 443-7550, TDD (312) 443-6181; or at any of the branch offices located in Circuit Court Buildings: in Bridgeview, 10200 S. 76th Ave., Room 237, (708) 974-6451; or Markham, 16501 S. Kedzie, Room 237, (708) 210-4100.

Outstanding

Oak Lawn Community High School announces Tonia Perillo and Daniel J. Smith (D.J.) as 1993 recipients of the J. E. Lynch Awards, given annually to the 'Most Outstanding' junior boy and girl. They were elected by members of the junior class and faculty. The awards are named in honor of a former superintendent of Oak Lawn Community High School. Junior students who demonstrated outstanding achievement and/or leadership in a subject area or extra-curricular activity were nominated by staff members. The junior class then held an election and selected the top four boy and girl vote getters. The other four finalists were Jami Barchak, Melissa Slade, Alan Buflimer and Ira Sukrungruang. Final selection was made by a faculty committee.

Tonia has a grade point average of 4.179 and ranks 6th in her class. She received an academic letter and is a member of the Student Council, Key Club, Freshman and Sophomore Class Advisory Board, Pep Club, volleyball team and yearbook staff. She is the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. T. Perillo of Oak Lawn.

Daniel has a G.P.A. of 3.267 and ranks 38th in his class. He is a member of the Homecoming Court, baseball, football and basketball teams and was on the Sophomore and Junior Class Advisory Boards. He is the son of Mr. & Mrs. D. Smith of Bridgeview.

Tonia and D.J. had their names added on a plaque displayed at the school. Each also received a plaque commemorating the high honor they received during the school's third annual all student awards assembly.

"Granny Tax" Alternative Vote

House Republicans, including state Rep. Maureen Murphy (R-Evergreen Park), recently voted for an alternative to replace the so-called "granny tax" with $150 million in excessive state budget cuts.

The plan passed the House by a vote of 60-56 on mostly a partisan roll call.

"The abominable $6.30 per-bed-per-day tax has got to go. It drains the resources of those who can least afford it—elderly nursing home patients. We made a conscientious decision to support the seniors over wasteful government spending," Rep. Murphy said.

House Republicans have led the charge against the heinous tax that most adversely affects senior citizens, private pay nursing home patients and their families.

"It's an unpopular tax among elderly nursing home patients and their families," Rep. Murphy said. "My local office has received letters and phone calls protesting its continuation. An alternative had to be developed to prevent the tax's renewal."

Specifically, the plan would shelve the granny tax and replace it with $150 million in cuts from the Illinois Department of Public Aid's Fiscal Year 1994 budget. The amount would then be used to finance the state's share of the nursing home tax toward Medicaid benefits required by federal law.

Penalties For Student Loan Defaulters

According to Nikki M. Zollar, director of the Illinois Department of Professional Regulation (IDPR), student loans in default have led to more than 5,000 disciplinary actions since 1986 against individuals holding professional and occupational licenses in Illinois.

"In the six years that the department has been working with the Illinois Student Assistance Commission (ISAC), approximately $3 million has been collected," Zollar said. "The message sent to professionals who have borrowed to pay for their education is clear—repay loans in a timely manner or face the prospect of not being able to practice your profession."

"This is one more example of ISAC's efforts to reduce the default rate by helping to ensure that persons utilizing the student loan program meet their responsibilities. We are pleased to be involved in this cooperative effort," said Larry Matejka, ISAC executive director.

Most licenses of the department who have defaulted on student loans agree to new repayment plans after receiving a "Refuse to Renew Order" from IDPR. A "Refuse to Renew Order" is a formal warning from the department that a license is not going to be renewed. If a licensee defaults on the student loan after entering into a repayment plan, the department may suspend or indefinitely revoke the license of that individual.

ISAC also has working agreements with licensing authorities for attorneys, teachers and insurance agents to assure repayment of student loans.

IDPR's licensing, testing and enforcement activities regulate about 600,000 license holders from more than 44 professions, including architects, cosmetologists, dentists, nurses, physicians, real estate brokers and social workers.

Low Interest Loans

Gov. Jim Edgar recently urged the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) to provide low-interest loans to businesses, homeowners and renters in storm-stricken Cook and DuPage counties.

"Residents of these counties have been dealt a one-two punch of heavy rains and high winds, and they need the relief that can be provided through the SBA," the governor said in seeking declaration of a Small Business Administration Disaster.

The governor asked for SBA action after declaring a state disaster on June 8th so that state resources could be mobilized to provide assistance in fighting floods and dealing with other problems caused by the storms.

"We are continuing to work on the damage assessment survey necessary to seek a presidential disaster declaration," Edgar added.

Riverboat Gambling For Suburbs

Aurelia Pucinski (above), Clerk of the Circuit Court of Cook County, testified June 8th in a hearing before the House Judiciary Committee in the State of Illinois Building proposing a riverboat gambling casino for suburban Cook County.

"The proposed casino could decrease the reliance on Cook County property taxes, which in my opinion is the most regressive tax," said Pucinski. "The monies generated by the casino could be allocated toward helping finance the criminal justice system which is completely reliant upon property taxes," Pucinski added.

"Many times the biggest criticism against riverboat gambling is the possibility for an increase in crime," said Pucinski. "Therefore, establishing a plan to help finance the criminal justice system could have a positive effect," she added.

"The criminal justice system in Cook County costs about $580 million a year for staff, services and facilities in the Sheriff, State's Attorney, Clerk of the Court, Public Defender and Probation offices," Pucinski said. "In addition, Drug Treatment and Prevention, Tuberculosis testing and treatment for jail inmates, and crime prevention programs are included and could benefit from a new source of revenue," Pucinski added.

According to figures produced by the City of Chicago, $270 million would be generated for the City from five riverboats ($159 million in tax revenue and $111 million in admission fees). Using those figures, if the Cook County Board established one riverboat gambling casino in an unincorporated area, it would generate approximately $50-60 million.

"This County-based casino proposal is one way to produce funds without raising property taxes," Pucinski said.

"We must be open to new ways to relieve the tax burden on property owners in the City and in the suburbs," said Pucinski. "This is the only plan which will benefit suburban taxpayers too," she added.

Raymond Burr Speaks At CCC Rally

Raymond Burr, star of stage and screen, will be the keynote speaker at the "Bring Back the CCC" rally in Washington, DC on July 16th at 10 a.m. on the west front steps of the Capitol Building. Burr is a former member of the CCC in California in the 1930s. The rally is being held to encourage President Clinton and Congress to reinstate the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Leaders of the rally will advocate that CCC camps be re-established under military supervision. The military, in its new peacetime role, would set up some camps in tents and supply other logistics as it did in the 1930s.

Lloyd Mielke, president of the CCC Alumni, says, "Our call is to President Clinton and Congress to reinstate the CCC in 1993. The enrollees would work on conservation projects. These projects will instill in the enrollees self-respect, self-discipline and a sense of duty, while conserving both the nation's environment and its youth."

With as much as 47.9 percent of some sectors of our youth unemployed, we need immediate aggressive bipartisan support for a revitalized CCC. There are nearly 3 million youths between the ages of 16 and 24 with nothing to do. Let's offer them a better future by giving them the opportunity of serving their country by working and living in CCC camps.

The public is invited to the rally. For more details, call CCC National Headquarters at (314) 487-8666.

Fawell Testifies

Congressman Harris W. Fawell (R-13) testified at a hearing before the Joint Committee on the Reorganization of Congress, calling for Congress to subject itself to the same requirements it mandates on private businesses through federal labor and civil rights laws.

"Although Congress has superficially placed itself under the purview of many 'place of employment' laws, such as the Civil Rights Act, the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and the Family and Medical Leave Act, the reality is that Congress has exempted itself from the judicial enforcement of those laws.

"Instead of being subjected to the possibility of being sued in federal court for damages, attorney's fees, expert witness fees, compensatory and even punitive damages, Congress has created its own 'in house' review mechanism, controlled by members of the House and selected staff. In effect, members of the House become prosecutor, judge and jury of any complaints made by any of the 12,236 House employees. It would be unthinkable that a private employer, such as IBM or General Motors, would be allowed to dispose of complaints of their employees in this 'in house' fashion."

Congressman Fawell, a member of the House Education and Labor Committee, has been active on this issue throughout his tenure in Congress. He is soon to introduce legislation to provide for meaningful "Congressional coverage" of federal civil rights law in the near future.

Justice Helped By Highway Department

When the rainstorm hit on Monday, the Cook County Highway Department went on Storm Alert. In addition to keeping county roads free of downed trees and water, employees were mobilized in the village of Justice to provide flood control. Highway employees have been working around the clock assisting suburban homeowners and businesses suffering flood damage, announced Cook County Board President Richard Phelan.

A total of 178 homes suffered extensive flood damage in Justice. In response, all available county pumps, sandbags, sand and highway personnel were issued to Justice to draw water out of the overflowing storm sewers and to clear blocked sewers and roads.

"Mother Nature hit Cook County full force with devastating wind and rain. The county will continue doing all it can to dry out the streets, basements and businesses of our municipalities," Phelan said.

"The village of Justice's 7-man public works staff could never have handled the massive flooding experienced. It was only with the county's help that Justice was able to recover," said Public Works Director Philip dePaola.

The Cook County Emergency Management Agency estimates that approximately 60 percent of suburban Cook is under water with about 1,000 homes flooded for a total of over $1 million damage.

Currently in Justice, most of the stormwater has subsided and emergency crews expected to pump through midnight June 11th.

Too Much Paper

By Dr. Richard L. Leshner, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Uncle Sam's unquenchable appetite for various forms of recordkeeping and reporting costs the nation an estimated $325 billion per year, an incredible hidden tax eroding our competitive vigor and destroying countless thousands of jobs.

Paperwork does not yet rank with medical costs as a burden on the economy, but it's getting there. According to the office of management and budget, the federal paperwork burden has grown by 17 percent since 1989, with no visible letup in sight. The issue is especially troublesome because, unlike medical costs, there is no rational justification for the blizzard of paperwork exploding out of Washington. Rather it is a direct result of runaway government bureaucracies indifferent to the economic consequences of their actions.

Virtually every federal agency issues a steady stream of recordkeeping and reporting requirements, many of them related to regulatory activity of some sort. As a practical matter, it is often difficult to separate the impact of paperwork requirements from regulations. In any event, it is an endless struggle getting federal bureaucrats to consider the economic impact of either regulations or paperwork.

Congress acknowledged the detrimental effects of federal paperwork in 1980 when it adopted the paperwork reduction act. The law created an office of information and regulatory affairs within OMB to rein in Uncle Sam's paper mania.

OIRA obviously has not eliminated the paperwork blizzard, but it helps. Federal agencies contemplating new paperwork demands must submit them to OIRA for approval. Often, OIRA notifies the agencies that the information they desire has already been collected by other agencies. Otherwise, another redundant form would soon be on its way to small business operators all around the country.

It is the peculiar nature of bureaucracy, however, that this exercise in simple logic is greatly resented. Agencies very much want to collect their own information, on their very own forms, and do not care to be bothered with their costs to the economy.

In 1990, the Supreme Court ruled in Dole vs. Steelworkers that OIRA could control only that paperwork reported directly to the federal government. Reports to third parties, including any arm of state or local government, were off limits. The decision eliminated about one-third of OIRA's paperwork jurisdiction. That percentage is increasing as federal agencies learn of the loophole, and rewrite their rules to require reports to third parties acting on their behalf.

Business is asking Congress to rewrite the paperwork reduction act, reversing the Supreme Court decision and enhancing the power of OIRA to rein in federal paperwork demands. Such legislation is sensible and clearly needed, but many powerful forces in Washington may resist any restraint on paperwork and regulations. Also, more than 100 members of Congress are new to the job and unfamiliar with the issue, and its importance. They need to hear from us.

'Outstanding Program'

Illinois was awarded the 'Outstanding State Program' award for the cycle rider safety training program, according to Kirk Brown, secretary of the Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT). The department's division of traffic safety received the award from the Motorcycle Safety Foundation.

The Motorcycle Safety Foundation is a national, nonprofit organization promoting the safety of motorcyclists with programs in rider training, operator licensing and public information.

Blood Donors Needed

Every 12 seconds, somewhere in this country, someone needs blood. In this area, at least 300 blood donations are needed each day to meet patient's needs. To help assure that blood is available when needed, United Blood Services, the area's community blood provider, relies entirely on volunteer donors to help maintain an adequate blood supply.

Now that the summer months are just around the corner, blood centers really begin to feel the heat. Schools and businesses are important sources of blood donors, but are reluctant to sponsor blood drives during the summer when they are not in session or are short-staffed due to employee vacations.

Currently, less than five percent of the U.S. population donates blood to supply the 12 million units needed each year. Meanwhile, the demand is rapidly increasing due to modern surgical techniques and new therapeutic uses for blood.

"Additional volunteer donors are needed," said Jill Danielson, community relations director. "Perhaps more people would donate if only they knew the importance of blood."

Doctors use blood for only one reason, to sustain life. Without blood, the life of the patient would be endangered. Giving blood is one of the most important acts of service you can ever do.

To make an appointment to donate at an upcoming blood drive or local hospital, call the United Blood Services donor hotline at (312) 751-0246.

First Cartoon

The first known American political cartoon, printed in 1747, showed a wagon stuck in the mud and the wagoner praying for help. Ignoring him is a Quaker-like Hercules leaning on his club up in the clouds. The cartoon's message: Heaven helps only those who help themselves. The cartoonist was Benjamin Franklin, according to The U.S. Department of Labor's Bicentennial History of "The American Worker."

Asks Governor's Veto

Aurelia Pucinski, Clerk of the Circuit Court of Cook County, has asked Governor Jim Edgar to veto House Bill 840. This bill will allow businesses up to 10 days to process income withholding, which is a process whereby child support payments are taken directly from the non-custodial parents' payroll check. Currently, businesses are given three days to process the payment.

Pucinski, whose office collects and distributes approximately $8 million worth of child support payments each month, feels so strongly about the consequences of this bill that she has asked child support recipients to contact the Governor themselves and encourage him to VETO the bill.

"I have included a postcard addressed to Governor Edgar with each child support recipient's check which encourages the VETO of HB 840," said Pucinski. Custodial parents, if they choose to, can simply sign the postcard and send it directly to the Governor.

"This new bill will unnecessarily delay the money that children desperately need for their survival," said Pucinski. "My office has continually strived to decrease the amount of time it takes for a child to receive his/her child support payment," said Pucinski. "Prior to my election to this office, it took six days for the Clerk's Office to process and send a child support check," said Pucinski. "With help from my efficient staff and new technologies, the number has since decreased to two days," Pucinski added.

"Passage of House Bill 840 would be a giant step backwards in our efforts to help the children of Cook County," stated Pucinski.

Rob Sherman, the highly visible proponent of atheist causes from the northwest suburbs has set his sights on the Evergreen Park Village Seal as a target for his continuing attempt to "separate church and state." The slogan 'Village of Churches' and the cross atop the church building are the focus of Sherman's attention.

Since there is no reference to God, or to a god, Sherman's sniping at Evergreen Park may fall well short of its target. The self-proclaimed atheist has notified the village that he plans to attend the regularly scheduled village board meeting on Monday, June 21st to push his campaign to have the 'Village of Churches' slogan and the cross removed from the official seal.

According to village officials, the slogan was adopted more than 40 years ago and since it does not endorse any specific religion but is a reference to buildings, not to religious services, it should stand.

Mayor Ernie Kolb of Oak Lawn tells us that the Illinois Emergency Management Agency and the Federal Disaster Agency will open offices in the Oak Lawn Village Hall complex to hear disaster cases caused by last week's storm.

"It's just a case of finding room for all the people who will be coming here from various communities in the Southwest area to plead their cases," explained Kolb.

Oak Lawn Village Manager Joe Faber said that an announcement would be made in two days to provide more details.

The 19th Ward Democratic Organization will hold its annual fundraising cocktail party on Tuesday, June 22nd from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Martinique, 2500 W. 95th St., Evergreen Park. Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres will be served. Thomas C. Hynes, Committeeman of Cook County Assessor will be feted.

Sheila Lyne, RSM, commissioner of health for the City of Chicago reminds us that this is the mosquito biting season and with it comes the danger of encephalitis. Encephalitis, characterized by the inflammation of the lining of the brain, is a viral infection of the nervous system which usually begins five to 15 days following a bite by an infected mosquito. She says there is no specific cure for encephalitis. In 1975 she reports that 47 people died of bites and at least 534 others were afflicted in the most recent epidemic.

Localities will have a chance to look at the future of all rail passenger service by stepping aboard the X2000 high-speed rail train at the Chicago Union Station from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, June 26th.

Illinois Transportation Secretary Kirk Brown said "The train's unique radial steering and active car body tilting technology make it possible to travel up to 40 percent faster than conventional trains through curves and provide a more comfortable ride on existing tracks."

On display will be a locomotive, three passenger coaches, a food service car and a cab car (combination coach and control unit). This is the kind of equipment being used in Europe and being considered for Illinois and other parts of the United States. It is of Swedish design. While being capable of reaching speeds of 155 mph it will travel through Illinois at speeds not exceeding 79 mph because of federal regulations restricting speeds on rail corridors without advance track signals and crossing protection systems.

Ninety-two percent of Illinoisans arrested for driving under the influence in 1992 lost their driving privileges according to Secretary of State George Ryan. The number of DUI arrests last year fell from 48,609 in 1991 to 47,941 last year according to Ryan in his 1992 DUI Fact Book recently released.

Fatality figures involving DUI drivers was also lower from 561 compared to 697 in 1991, according to the report.

The Worth Township Regular Republican Organization meets tonight, Thursday, June 17th. Meetings are at the Johnson-Phelps VFW Post, 9514 S. 52nd Ave., and are called to order promptly at 8:15 p.m. Committeeman Jeff Layhe reported that State Senator Patrick O'Malley (R-18) and State Representative Maureen Murphy (R-36) will report on the actions taken by the Illinois General Assembly during the spring session. Door prizes and refreshments are to be featured. Everyone is welcome, according to Bob Buttala, president of the Worth GOP.

Ryan Report

By Secretary of State George H. Ryan

Senior citizens comprise more than 13 percent of all Illinois drivers. While few special requirements exist for seniors to maintain their driving privileges, older drivers need to be aware of certain guidelines to continue driving safely.

Q. Is there an age at which older citizens should stop driving?

A. No, as long as they are physically and mentally capable of driving safely. Seniors are urged to pay special attention to natural physical changes, such as changing vision and slower reflexes, that may place limitations on driving ability.

Q. Are there restrictions for driving while taking medications?

A. Yes. Seniors must be in good general health to drive. If they are taking medications or have a condition that might impair their driving ability, a physician's statement and medical agreement may be required before they are allowed to drive.

Q. What are the guidelines for driver's license renewal?

A. Seniors ages 69-80 must renew their driver's license every four years at a fee of $5. Seniors 81-86 must renew every two years at a fee of $2, and those 87 and older are required to renew annually at no fee. Vision screenings are required for renewal, and written and/or road tests may be required depending on their driving records.

Area Opinions On Casinos

Opinions about casinos reflect the diverse lifestyles, leisure interests and tastes of Chicago and the six-county region. A household survey with a general question about casinos (not specifically about land-based, riverboats or the specific options currently considered) finds support of casinos is related to religious attendance. Those who attend religious ceremonies at least once a week support casinos far less (32 percent) than those who do not worship as often (44 percent). Thirty-five percent of Catholics support casinos, compared with 42 percent of Protestants and 53 percent of Jewish respondents.

There are significant differences by national ancestry. Those of French ancestry are less supportive of casinos (31 percent), followed by Scandinavians (33 percent) and English (34 percent). Those most favorable toward Chicago casinos are Italians (47 percent), Eastern Europeans (45 percent) and Irish (43 percent).

Support of casinos varies by demographics. 34 percent of females support casinos, compared with 45 percent of males. 42 percent of those under 40 support casinos, compared with 38 percent of those between 40 and 65 and 27 percent of those over 65. 40 percent of Whites, 37 percent of Blacks and 32 percent of Latinos favor casinos.

Support of casinos relates to a broad range of lifestyle tastes and interests. 62 percent of those who bet on sports events in the past year support casinos, as do 56 percent of those who have bet on a horse race; 33 percent of those who support casinos say they have actually been to one in the past year. 50 percent of those who buy lottery tickets support casinos.

Fifty-eight percent of those who drink more than two drinks a day favor casinos, compared with 37 percent of those who drink less frequently and 49 percent of smokers favor casinos, compared with 34 percent of non-smokers.

These results are from the Metro Chicago Information Center's fall 1992 survey of over 3,000 households in Cook, Lake, DuPage, Kane, McHenry and Will counties. The survey asked 'Do you think casinos are mostly a good idea or mostly a bad idea for the city of Chicago?' The survey did not ask about any of the specific features of the plans being proposed.

According to D. Garth Taylor, executive director of MCIC, "We know that support for specific casino proposals is usually higher than for general questions like the one in our survey because then people get to know the specifics about how the money will be used, and where the project and jobs will be located."

The survey is one of the most comprehensive of a major metropolitan area. Data from over 9,000 Chicago-area households have been compiled in the three years the survey has been collected.

Flood Complaints

In an effort to ease some of the inconvenience and to centralize efforts for flood relief, Oak Lawn Mayor Ernie Kolb has offered space in the village hall to the Illinois Emergency Management Agency (IEMA) to handle complaints from victims of the recent flooding in the south suburbs.

The IEMA has accepted the mayor's offer and suitable office space must now be found in the village hall complex to house a staff of eight people. It was stated that in two days, the village will be contacted by a federal agency to coordinate efforts and hopefully, seven days after that an office will be opened.

Village officials stated that at this point that all conversations with regard to the opening of the office has been done by telephone and there is nothing in writing as yet.

Telethon Success

After 18 hours of quality, family television programming, the 1993 Chicagoland Children's Miracle Network Telethon came to an end with record-breaking success. Co-hosted by Janet Davies and Joel Daly and broadcast live on WLS-TV, Channel 7, this year's telethon raised $1,901,035 for the Children's Memorial Medical Center.

It took the dedicated efforts of more than 1,000 volunteers, the staff at WLS-TV, the telethon steering committee and generous support from local corporate sponsors, such as a $50,000 contribution from Chicago Board of Trade, to make this year's event the best ever.

The telethon, which aired on Saturday, June 5th and Sunday, June 6th, featured special guest appearances by Gov. Jim Edgar and his wife Brenda, honorary chairperson of the telethon.

Celebrity co-hosts included Chicago Bear Glen Kozlowski, WLS-Radio on-air personality Roe Conn, Chicago comedian Aaron Freeman, columnist Richard Roeper, Fr. Jack Wall of Old St. Pat's Church, former WGN radio personality Al Lerner, longtime radio journalist Ken Davis and a cast from the Resident Company of Second City.

Casting positions are still available for parts in the Evergreen Park centennial celebration's historical production, entitled "ForEver Green." This 90-minute outdoor theatrical show opens at the Evergreen Park High School football field, on Wednesday, July 7th, and continues through Saturday, July 10th. A rain date has been scheduled for Sunday, July 11th. While the performance each night of the pageant will be the same, the pre-show, beginning at 8:15 p.m., will feature different entertainment. Participants from the spring performing arts show, sponsored by the recreation department, for example, will perform on Friday, July 9th.

Residents, business people, neighbors, families and friends of Evergreen Park are invited to participate in this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. The casting of roles and rehearsals for this professionally directed community production occur each evening, Monday through Thursday, beginning at 7 p.m., in the cafeteria at Evergreen Park High School. The commitment is minimal. Because the show is a narrative, no lines need to be memorized. No previous acting experience is required. A complete array of costumes will be provided at no cost. Auditions for narrator parts are available on an appointment basis.

Interested individuals and groups are encouraged to attend rehearsals and sign up for parts. Further information can be obtained by calling the Evergreen Park Recreation Department, at (708) 499-0041.

Orland Park Telephone Book Recycling Plan

Orland Park's water towers have long identified the village as the "Golf Center of the World," frequently bringing attention to this fast-growing southwest suburban community. From June 23rd through July 25th, three of the massive golf balls and tees will serve as drop-off sites for the village's telephone book recycling program, continuing the village's recycling leadership role in the state. Offered in cooperation with Waste Management, DonTech and Illinois Bell, the program begins with distribution of the 1993-94 DonTech telephone books on June 23rd & continuing through July 25th.

"Once you get a new phone book, the old one just takes up space or gets thrown away. With our recycling program, we are giving residents the opportunity to do something useful with the old books; recycle," said Village Trustee William Vogel, who chairs the public services committee.

Five locations have been selected as drop-off sites for old phone books, including the recycling center, 14671 West Ave.; Centennial Park, 10200 Fun Drive (off West Ave.); and the water tower sites at Harlem Ave. and Wheeler Dr.; 8800 Golfview Dr.; and 134th St. and Cherry Ln.

Residents are asked to loosely drop the books into the containers at each site, available daily from dawn to dusk. With the exception of the recycling center, which accepts other recyclables, all locations are to be used exclusively for telephone books. The recycling center also accepts newspapers, aluminum and tin cans, plastic milk and pop containers. The center's proceeds benefit the United Methodist Church, volunteers from which operate the center. Telephone books left with curbside recyclables will not be picked up.

"This is an opportunity for everyone to help achieve the goals of recycling," said Don Ipema, general manager of Waste Management. "We are pleased to be a part of this cooperative effort to increase recycling in Orland Park."

"We're hoping for high participation with telephone book recycling so we have a sound reason to test other recycling alternatives for the village," said Public Services Director Rick Dime.

"Many residents have asked about recycling their old telephone books. We're happy to now be able to provide this program as yet another environmentally friendly way to improve our community services," said Public Services Administrative Analyst William Heniff.

Residents will be notified about the program with a flier that will be included with the new Ameritech PagesPlus directories. The yellow polybag delivered with the directory can either be reused or recycled with plastic grocery bags at any Jewel Food Store.

"Since 1991, DonTech and Illinois Bell have helped more than 50 Illinois communities collect and recycle more than 850 tons of directories. In addition, DonTech will continue to publish directories on recycled paper," said Kate Cleary of DonTech's communications department. Cleary noted that DonTech is a partnership between Ameritech Publishing and Reuben H. Donnelley which publishes Ameritech PagesPlus telephone directories for Illinois Bell.

According to the public services department, the village is hoping for at least a 25 percent participation rate, namely the recycling of 4,750 of the 19,000 telephone books distributed in the village. This would result in a diversion of more than 3.71 tons of material from local landfills.

Further information about telephone book recycling is available by calling the public services department at 403-6350.

Facts On Electrical Safety During Floods

A spring or summer thunderstorm can bring flooded basements. If you find water in your basement, remember the basic fact that water and electricity don't mix. A great potential for risk of injury from electric shock exists if your body completes a path for electricity.

Don't be fooled by the non-obvious as the water may be covering an extension cord on the floor, covering the motors in dryers, furnaces, refrigerators, or covering an electrical outlet -- so don't think that the potential for danger is not there simply because it cannot be seen. Water may have worked its way into contact with the electrically "live" parts of such equipment and is itself electrically alive.

The first thing that must be done is to shut off all electrical power, if the power can be shut off without going into the wet basement. Place all switches or breakers in the distribution panel in the "off" position. If you don't know how to do this, or you have to go through the water to reach the main panel, call your local fire department. They know how to deal with the possible lethal combination of water and electricity.

Will rubber boots protect you? Not always. Wearing boots or other protective equipment may not be the answer to wading through water to reach a panel. Water can work its way through very small holes or cracks in protective footwear or clothing and may contact parts of your body and complete a path to ground.

If, after careful consideration with complete knowledge of your basement's electrical circuits and supply, you have concluded that water is not contacting live parts, still be extremely careful about walking in the water and turning on lights or touching electrical equipment. Under no circumstances go barefoot. Remember that both feet implanted in water provide a complete conductive path for electricity to go to ground through your body.

After the water has subsided, allow a drying-out period before using any of the electrical equipment and send any water-logged appliances to their manufacturers' service center for reworking. If you have to clean any piece of equipment, be sure that the equipment is disconnected from the source of electricity by pulling the plug or opening the circuit breaker or switch.

Pension Withholding Rules

To assist those about-to-retire workers facing dramatic new changes affecting the way they collect their distributions from qualified retirement plans, tax and business law publisher Commerce Clearing House has published "What You Ought to Know About New Pension Withholding Rules." These changes stem from the Unemployment Compensation Amendments of 1992, one provision of which calls for a 20 percent withholding of tax on certain distributions made directly to the employee. Withholding may be avoided by setting up what's called a "direct rollover" of funds to a qualified entity such as an individual retirement plan.

Written by Rolf Auster, professor of taxation at Florida International University, the pocket-sized, 32-page booklet discusses in plain English the important issues surrounding the pension provisions of the new law. It helps answer sure-to-come employee questions about the situation, generally more complex than people realize, CCH said.

Auster specifically addresses the new withholding rules, the rollover rules allowing employees to avoid the 20 percent withholding, and penalty provisions including inseparable IRA issues.

CCH said special discounts on bulk purchases of "What You Ought to Know About New Pension Withholding Rules" for large-scale distribution are available. Individual copies can also be ordered at $5 each from the publisher's Cash Item Department, 4025 W. Peterson Ave., Chicago, IL 60646, or by calling toll-free at 1(800)248-3248.

Bob Love Shows Support For Sertoma Center

Bob Love, former Chicago Bulls star forward, took Center court—Sertoma Center, that is—by lending his talents and experience to the cause of better speech and hearing with a visit to the Sertoma Center May 17th.

Love, who ranks second as Bulls all-time leader in points scored, now represents the Bulls organization to the community. A stutterer all his life, Love realized the need for better communication skills both on and off the court.

Speech therapy helped him realize his potential, and during his visit to the Sertoma Center, he took the opportunity to talk about his experiences in speech therapy (and, of course, basketball) with some young friends and clients of the Center.

In addition to his Center visit, Love also recorded a series of TV and radio spots courtesy of Metrovision facilities in Hickory Hills. The spots, which will air on Metrovision on various stations from CNN to Sportsvision starting June 18th, highlight the Center's services and commitment to the community. The Center is grateful for his help in "spreading the word" on the Center's services to the community, and to the folks at Metrovision, for providing the technical resources to help make it all possible.

Look for the spots to air starting June 18th!

The Sertoma Center provides services from hearing screenings and hearing aid services to special programs for stuttering, voice problems and children/adult speech therapy. Bob Love isn't alone: if you know of someone with a hearing or speech problem, let them know about the Sertoma Center. Help from the Center is just a phone call away. As the south suburbs' only United Way funded speech and hearing center, it offers free screenings, affordable costs and scaled fees to people otherwise unable to afford them. The cost of free and scaled service fees provided to the community is currently in the range of $80,000 per year.

About a third of the Center's regular client fees are subsidized by the United Way, Sertoma Board fundraisers, Sertoma Clubs and corporate donations.

For speech and hearing disorders, the Sertoma Center helps people of all ages meet the challenge and win, every day. To find out more about the Center's services and locations, and how they can help you or someone you love, call the Sertoma Speech and Hearing Center at 708-599-9500.

Annual Law Enforcement Torch Run

More than 500 law enforcement officers led by Cook County Sheriff Michael F. Sheahan kicked off the annual Law Enforcement Torch Run for Illinois Special Olympics on Tuesday, June 15th at the Richard J. Daley Center.

The Sheriff's Department sponsors leg 5 of the run, which began on Tuesday at 8 a.m.

In addition to the Special Olympians, dozens of officers from all areas of the Sheriff's Office participated, as well as officers from the Chicago Police Department and numerous other federal, state and local law enforcement agencies.

The Illinois Torch Run has 15 separate legs traveling through 3,000 communities. The final destination, which will be reached on Friday, is in Normal, Illinois, the site for the 1993 Illinois Special Olympics. The leg sponsored by the Sheriff's Office traveled south from downtown through the city and suburbs, concluding the same day in Palos Heights.

The nationwide Law Enforcement Torch Run enables 1 million children and adults with developmental disabilities to participate in year-round sports training and the annual Special Olympics.

"This is a great way for law enforcement agencies from this area to come together for an outstanding cause," Sheahan said. "We are very happy to be able to sponsor such a rewarding event and to be able to help these Special Olympians realize the joys of competition, athletics and team spirit."

LIBRARY NOTES

Library programs for the 1993-94 season are under consideration at the Oak Lawn Public Library, 9427 Raymond Ave. These are the presentations open to the community as a public service. Area residents who have suggestions are invited to contact Mary Nelson, public relations and development officer, at 422-4990.

Programs are selected based on suggestions from Friends of the Library, library staff, patrons, those who attend presentations and the general public.

The 1992-93 season included several music presentations, financial and estate planning seminars, travelogs, workshops on a variety of subjects, classes in public relations, meetings with authors, writers sessions, book reviews and others. The deadline for suggestions is Wednesday, June 30th.

The local history section of the library is interested in adding photographs of businesses to its collection. New or old pictures are welcome. If a business wishes to retain the photo, the library will make a copy and return the original. The library staff suggests that the photos can be of storefronts, internal views, special occasions, remodeling shots, staff recognitions or anything that features the business, its facilities or its staff. Librarian Barbara Wolfe is the contact person, reference department, second floor, 422-4990.

I had a pleasant surprise last week when I received a letter from Congressman William Lipinski. He runs a 'Senior of the Year' awards program and I was one of 20 selected, from over 150 applicants. Reggie Finnegan, president of the Johnson-Phelps Ladies Auxiliary, VFW, filled out the application and sent it in. The winners and a guest were invited to a breakfast held Saturday morning at the Heritage House at 5540 S. Narragansett Ave. as guests of Congressman Lipinski, which was very nice. Each of the winners received a plaque, gift certificate for the Candlelight Theatre, and from Jewel-Osco. Cook County board president, Richard Phelan made the presentations. It was really very nice.

Two of the 20 chosen for the awards from Oak Lawn were Patrick Sullivan who founded the Hospitalized War Veterans organization and runs programs for disabled war veterans and is a commissioner for the Oak Lawn Park Board; and Vicki Vlasos who started the volunteer program at Christ Hospital and has accumulated more than 40,000 hours of volunteer service. Congratulations to all of us.

POLICE CALLS

The following incidents were reported to the Oak Lawn Police Department. Readers should know that an arrest by police does not constitute a finding of guilt. Only a court of law can make that determination.

On Monday, June 7th, a woman tried to buy food with stolen checks and a driver's license at the Jewel food store at 9424 Pulaski Rd. She left the store before security guards could detain her.

A house was broken into on the 4700 block of 98th St., but the resident was home and the offender fled.

A stereo and cassettes were stolen from a car on the morning of June 8th on the 9100 block of Central Ave.

James Link of Oak Lawn was charged with the discharge of a firearm, a BB gun, in his backyard.

James Warrington, 17, of Burbank was charged with criminal damage to property for spray-painting the wall of a store in the 5700 block of Southwest Highway.

On the same evening he was waiting for her and said he would kill her and the man. On the 1st, the police approved the charge of felony aggravated stalking.

On the 2nd at 1:20 p.m., Katrina Parrish of Oak Lawn reported she came out to her car and found both driver's side tires and the rear tire were flattened. GET THE LEAD OUT. It was bound to happen. Fishing in the future may have to be lead-free. This means no lead split shot, sinkers or the ever popular lead-headed jigs. Biologists have determined that lead in the water is extremely toxic to the bodies of animals, particularly birds, that ingest it. The ORVIS NEWS LETTER reports that lead will be banned in YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK in 1994. Lead sinkers have been banned in England since 1987.

Lead has been the material of choice, its inexpensive and will take the bait, fly or lure to the desired depth rapidly. Should this potential ban on lead become law, 20% of my tackle will become obsolete. The only alternatives to lead seem to be steel, tin or tungsten putty. The ORVIS CO., of Manchester, Vermont, has seen the "Handwriting on the Wall" and is marketing sinker products made of tin and tungsten putty.

WISCONSIN DNR FAMILY GETS THE MESSAGE The DNR in its infinite wisdom has been opening bass season early throughout the state. The bass in the warmer waters are through spawning but the colder water in the Northern part of the state keeps the fish on the spawning beds longer, during this period, catching bass is very easy and disrupts the spawning process at a very crucial time.

This year the DNR has postponed the opening of bass north of highways 70, 27, 64 and 29 until this coming Saturday, June 19th. This will have a positive effect on the future of bass fishing in the northern part of the state.

STREAM WATCHING GUIDE TO AQUATIC INSECTS Anglers interested in identifying those mysterious water critters they see while fishing can write the Save Our Streams (SOS) program of the Izaak Walton League of America for its new "Monitor's Guide to Aquatic Macroinvertebrates."

Written by SOS National Monitoring Coordinator Loren Kellogg, the 46-page booklet is easy to use in the field and requires only that the person be able to count legs and antennae. "This guide allows the lay person to become an amateur entomologist," said Kellogg. "Normally, you'd have to buy a huge manual that would be Latin to the average angler. We've taken technical language and put it into terms anyone can understand so they can learn about the quality of their rivers."

INDIANA WILD TURKEY HARVEST UP 31 PERCENT Spectacular weather, expanded range and a longer season all added up to a 31 percent increase in the wild turkey harvest this spring, according to Steve Backs, turkey research biologist for the Department of Natural Resources.

Preliminary counts indicate that 3,310 turkeys were harvested during the 19-day turkey hunting season in late April and early May. The harvest is up 779 from last year's total of 2,531 birds. The harvest has increased for the past 11 years as turkey flocks have made a strong comeback in Indiana.

Hunters who took to the field this spring experienced great weather through most of the season, a legal turkey hunting range that was expanded by 50 percent over last year's range and four additional days to take a bearded turkey.

Boys Youth Baseball Camp

St. Laurence High School, 5556 77th St., will host a summer youth baseball camp for boys in grades 4-8 and for incoming St. Laurence freshmen. The camp features two sessions. Dates for the camp are Monday, June 21st to Friday, June 25th for boys in grades 4-7 and Monday, June 28th to Friday, July 2nd for boys in 8th grade and for incoming St. Laurence freshmen. The camp lasts from 9 a.m. until 12 noon each day.

Head Baseball Coach Tom Pallardy, 1993 Catholic League Lawless Award winner and coach of the 1993 Catholic League South and I.H.S.A. Regional champions, the Viking coaching staff, and the St. Laurence baseball team will share their talents with the athletes who participate. Instruction focuses on individual techniques and the development of the athletes at individual positions.

The cost of the camp is $50, which includes instruction, a T-shirt and insurance. The camp will make full use of Viking Field, St. Laurence's baseball diamond which has been the host of the I.H.S.A. state regional tournament in recent years. The gymnasium and college-level weight facilities will also be used. Transportation is available for an added, nominal fee.

Letter Of Intent

Iowa Lakes Community College head men's basketball coach, Bob Grems, has announced the name of an Amos Alonzo Stagg High School athlete who has signed a basketball letter of intent to play for the Lakers during the 1993-94 season.

Lenny Fotopoulos of Palos Hills is a 6'2, 185-pound guard. Before his senior year, he was the one-on-one champion, free throw champion, and most valuable player at Rich Falk Basketball Camp, one of the most noted camps in the Chicago area. Fotopoulos was also the MVP at the NHIBT tourney and the NSIBT Detroit tourney.

According to Grems, "Lenny has good size for the off guard spot and has the ability to score in a number of ways. His versatility should give him a chance to help the Lakers as a freshman."

Fotopoulos is enrolled in the arts and science program at ILCC with emphasis in pre-law. He is the son of John and Barbara Fotopoulos.

Vikings Take Sectional Crown

St. Laurence's Vikings are the lone local team remaining in the playoff picture. Whether or not they come out on top with a state title is still up in the air, but they are inching closer and closer. The Vikes put their game plan together and emerged with a 9-5 victory over Andrew's Thunderbolts last Wednesday in Tinley Park to take the Class AA Andrew Sectional crown.

This marked the first time since 1987 that the Vikings had won a sectional and proved to be a major letdown for the T-Bolts as they have become accustomed to winning titles since the summer of '91.

The turning point for this contest came in the Vike half of the sixth. The score was knotted at 5, when Matt Daley connected for a single off Vince Fiore. This set the stage for Jason Amato to slug a pitch over the centerfield fence for a two-run round-tripper and a 7-5 lead.

Rounding out the inning was an RBI single off the bat of Frank Mateja plus another RBI single from Pete Lotus to make it a 9-5 game.

Earlier, the Vikes had scored in the top of the third. With two out and the bags empty, Ken Warzynski reached first on a walk and then stole second. He came home on an RBI single by Mateja. Lotus came to the plate and clouted a ground rule double followed by a two-run double by Joe Di Gangi that brought home Mateja and Lotus. Wayne Druktenis then pounded a double, driving in Di Gangi.

The T-Bolts got on the board in the bottom of the third as Mike Leatherman got a hold of a pitch for a two-run round-tripper. In the fifth inning, they added a trio of runs. Steve De Haan drove a two-run single followed by an RBI double from Marc McCarey.

The winning pitcher was Mark Gutkowski who upped his season record to 9-2 while the team notched its 30th victory against 10 setbacks. Gutkowski pitched a five-hit complete game as he fanned five and allowed just one base runner in the last two innings.

"The kids really wanted this," commented Viking coach Tim Pallardy. "They knew what they were playing for. I think we're a team people need to look at. Gutkowski did a super job. He did it again for us and I'm not surprised a bit."

A picture-perfect suicide squeeze bunt from the bat of Joe Di Gangi sealed the victory in the bottom of the sixth inning.

Just an inning before, the Vikes were staring a 5-1 deficit in the face until the offense was sparked. A pair of runs came across the plate as Di Gangi clouted a double.

On the mound, Di Gangi picked up his 12th victory of the season against no losses.

"You could feel it in the huddle," remarked Vike coach Tom Pallardy. "You could feel it in the dugout. You could feel the intensity rising and you could see it in their eyes, the confidence they had. We just felt that if we stayed in the game because we've been a sixth-inning team in a lot of ballgames."

The Vikes will go on to face Elmhurst York's Dukes at 11 a.m. on Saturday, June 19th in Geneva.

Both were named NCAA first team All-Americans, selected to the NAIA all-district team and the CCAC all-conference team, and named 1993 Trinity MVPs.

Schaaf set records in runs scored, 37; doubles, 9; home runs, 10; slugging, .809%; and on base, .625%. Ericks set records in pitching: ERA, 2.80; games pitched, 15; wins, 8; winning percentage, 8-2; shutouts, 3. Steve Schulz of Clinton set a record in defense: fielding, 97.6%.

Team members include Tim Hendrickson of White Plains, NY; Andy Bouwma, Jeremy Freeman, Isalas Soto, and Nathan Wiers of Chicago; Andy Reed of Fremont, Mich.; Todd Dykstra and Jon Vugteveen of Lansing; Bob Schaaf of Frankfort; Paul Powers of Justice; Justin Sealy of Lansing; John Dieck, Brad Ericks, Gary Ericks, Dean Vande Zee, and Duane Van Prooyen of South Holland; Bill Grabowski and Joe Graffeo of Palos Heights; Ken Mulderink of Blue Island; Mike Moro of Riverdale; Dustin Hoekstra of Ripon, Calif., and Steve Schulz of Clinton. Red Cross Swimming Program

In an effort to enhance safety in and around the water, the American Red Cross has released its new 'Learn to Swim' program, which provides the most up-to-date swimming and water safety instruction available. 'Learn to Swim' combines basic water skills for recreation and competition. The program teaches participants how to improve their swimming skills and prevent accidents in the water by focusing on topics such as proper stroke movement, personal safety, rescue skills, diving and diving safety.

The program was developed in conjunction with United States Swimming, the national governing body for competitive swimming and the United States Olympic swim team, and offers an extensive selection of courses for all ages, skill levels, job-related training needs and physical abilities, including a component for persons with disabilities.

'Learn to Swim' includes 13 courses and has been expanded from five skill levels to seven smaller, more achievable levels. Each skill level is filled with stimulating activities to motivate students to advance to the next level of instruction.

The first two skill levels offer orientation to the water and fundamental swimming and safety skills. In the next three levels, students learn to master a variety of competitive strokes and additional safety skills. The two final levels provide students with advanced instruction in areas such as diving and endurance.

To ensure students receive the most comprehensive, up-to-date water safety information available, all instructors must complete a 39-hour Red Cross water safety instructor course. Locally, courses are taught by more than 2,000 certified Red Cross instructors at community pools and recreation facilities.

To enroll in 'Learn to Swim,' contact your local aquatic facility.

Leadership Model For St. Rita

The Reverend David L. Brecht, O.S.A., provincial of the Province of Our Mother of Good Council of the Augustinian Order, has announced that the province council has approved the president/principal administrative leadership model for St. Rita High School for the 1993-94 school year.

"Over the past 10 years, the role of principal has changed in Catholic secondary education," explained Fr. Brecht. "There are many new responsibilities as well as demands on the principal's time and we feel that the St. Rita Family will be better served with the president/principal model."

At its March 20th meeting, the council announced that Reverend Michael J. O'Connor, O.S.A., will be the president of St. Rita for the 1993-94 school year. Fr. O'Connor presently serves as assistant provincial and provincial secretary.

"The Augustinians have decided to go with a president/principal model at St. Rita because they are committed to continuing the tradition of excellence. In today's world, the demands of a school administrator are becoming more complex and time consuming. To address the spiritual, educational, physiological, emotional, athletic and social needs of our young men, leadership must be shared and balanced," commented Fr. O'Connor. "The additional challenge of serving faculty, staff, parents, alumni, and community needs demands the best. This model addresses these needs and creates a realistic structure to energetically empower the president to assume the role of chief administrator while relying on the principal for shared responsibility."

A 1960 graduate of Leo High School, he entered the Augustinian Novitiate of St. Monica, Wisconsin on Sept. 6th, 1961. He made his solemn profession of vows on Sept. 4th, 1964.

Fr. O'Connor is no stranger to St. Rita. His first apostolic appointment was to St. Rita in February of 1963 as a teacher.

"I come to St. Rita with a strong conviction to continue fostering the family spirit with the Augustinians and the dedicated faculty and staff. I embrace St. Rita's pride in itself in creating an atmosphere and climate for growing young men to experience a Catholic Augustinian learning community for the 21st Century," said Fr. O'Connor. "I believe my primary responsibility is to be the education leader of the St. Rita community."

Fr. O'Connor comes to St. Rita with a well-rounded educational background. He has served as a teacher and counselor at the former Mendel Catholic High School, principal of the Augustinian Seminary in Holland, Michigan, dean of students at St. Francis DeSales High School Seminary, Milwaukee, and prior of the Augustinian Community and associate principal at Providence Catholic High School, New Lenox.

"At St. Rita, education doesn't just happen, it's a way of life born of a commitment to ignite each young man with an awareness of his unique gifts. Our goal is to teach young men this way of life, grounded in education, faith and service. I am excited to be a part of this venture," concluded O'Connor.

O'Malley On Advocacy Council

State Sen. Patrick O'Malley (R-Palos Park) has been asked to serve on a citizens advocacy council that oversees the development of economic policy and researches related issues for the General Assembly in Illinois.

O'Malley's appointment to the Citizens Council on Economic Development was announced recently by Senate President James "Pate" Philip (R-Wood Dale).

"The council provides research support for lawmakers working on economic development legislation. For example, the council has worked on legislation dealing with the promotion of exports by Illinois businesses, the investment practices of public pension funds, small business financing through the Illinois Development Finance Authority, rural economic development, and the issuance of industrial development bonds," O'Malley said. "I look forward to this opportunity to bring the perspective of 18th District citizens into the process of setting economic policy for the state."

The Citizens Council on Economic Development is composed of 16 members — two legislators and two private citizens appointed by each of the four legislative leaders in the Senate and House of Representatives. It is one of seven issue-related citizens advocacy councils of the Citizens Assembly, which is a bipartisan, joint legislative agency that provides research support for the General Assembly on specific areas of public policy.

Honor Recorder

Long before election to his present office, Cook County Recorder of Deeds Jesse White was already a legend in the near north neighborhood where he has lived, worked and volunteered for over forty years.

That's why a group of community leaders launched a campaign to honor White's commitment to the area. And, in the time-honored tradition, how better to immortalize White's name than on the placards which mark Chicago's byways?

At 11 a.m. on June 23rd, friends and admirers will gather at Division and Wells Sts. to unveil signs on Jesse White Way, the new designation for Division between Clark and Halsted. The mile-long route represents the community's diversity -- from the Cabrini-Green Housing Project to the entertainment establishments of the Gold Coast -- and is a fitting tribute to the man who has worked to bridge the gap between area residents.

A former educator, state legislator and founder of the renowned Jesse White Tumbling Team, White lives by a simple tenet. Time and time again he has expressed his belief that those who are most fortunate owe a debt to society.

"I've been able to realize dreams and enjoy success in my life," White said. "The obligation to give back is really a privilege -- a way to make a positive mark and leave a legacy of caring."

"The street-naming is a great honor and an unexpected gift from the wonderful folks in this community. I am very grateful for the recognition and look forward to many more years of public service."

JURASSIC PARK.....The talk all over Hollywood is how Steven Spielberg and Universal Pictures should change the spelling of the name to their summer block-buster hit from "Jurassic Park" to "JuraSSic Park." Laura Dern, Sam Neill, Joseph Mazello and Ariana Richards (inset) star in the flick which explores what happens when DNA cloning goes haywire and a theme park is turned into a living nightmare of runaway dinosaurs and other creatures from millions of years ago. The picture opened last week to modest reviews, but the movie-going public apparently is unconcerned about what professional aisle-sitters have to say about the picture and are setting turnstiles spinning. Plans are already underway to make "Jurassic Park, Part II".....They recently held a D.W. Griffith Award ceremony in Hollywood a few weeks ago and none of the winners was there to accept the awards. Shirley Temple Black, the child star, was the honored guest but she couldn't make the ceremony so Roddy McDowell accepted her award for her. Matthew Broderick did the same for Jack Lemmon and Tony Randall grabbed Jack Nicholson's award because Nicholson was attending a sporting event.....Don't be surprised if Congressman Robert Dornan, Republican from Garden Grove, California and one of the biggest thorns in the side of President Bill Clinton, doesn't make a run for the office of President of the United States in 1996. Representative Dornan recently tested the political waters and climate in New Hampshire and received a very warm reception.

ANGELA BASSETT (inset), who plays Tina Turner in the movie "What's Love Got To Do With It," does a great job of depicting the turbulent life of the rock 'n' roll singer and her tumultuous life when she was married to Ike. Tina says she can't stand the pain of seeing the picture and has refused all invitations to view the finished product. She did, however, let the producers use her voice for the sound track of the songs she has made famous....Ron Mager, WMAQ-TV anchor/reporter, will be joined by educators, parents and students for a candid discussion of violence in the Chicago Public Schools and what can be done to prevent it when Channel Five airs "Forum: Violence in the Schools," tonight from 9 p.m. until 10 p.m.....The 60th anniversary of "The Breakfast Club with Don McNeill" will be held on June 23 at the Clouds Room of the Allerton Hotel, sponsored by the Museum of Broadcast Communications. The special event will feature Don McNeill and his favorite orchestra leader Eddie Ballantine with Chuck Schaden of WBBM and WNIB radio serving as emcee. Breakfast will begin at 10 a.m. and tickets can be obtained for $60 by calling (312) 629-6023.

HOLLIS RESNIK and DANNY HERMAN (inset) will entertain members of the Sarah Siddons Society on July 8 when they present a night of "Song & Dance" at the Candlelight Dinner Playhouse. It is the Sarah Siddons Society way of paying tribute to Hollis Resnik who was voted as Chicago's Leading Lady for her work in "Piaf".....The Midwest Membership Office of the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers (ASCAP/Midwest) will host a free manager/producer seminar followed by a showcase of unsigned regional pop, rock R&B and alternative bands at the Cubby Bear nightclub, 1059 W. Addison on Saturday, June 26 beginning at 1:30 p.m.....The Joseph Jefferson Awards Committee, celebrating their Silver Anniversary Season "Theatre Year Chicago," will host "Midsummer at the Mansion" - A Tribute to Musical Theatre, on Monday, June 21 beginning at 6:30 p.m. at the Francis J. Dewes Mansion, 503 W. Wrightwood.....The Goodman Theatre and Teatro Vista will present the Chicago premiere of "The Palm of the Macho," a one-man show written and performed by Rich Najera, appearing July 6 through July 18 in the Goodman Studio Theatre.....Stage Left Theatre will extend its critically-acclaimed production of Kate Kasten's and Sandra de Helen's "The Clue in the Old Birdbath" through July 25.

DASHES TO DEADLINE.....If you are planning on going to Los Angeles this summer and would like to take a tour of one of the television network studios, you will find that only NBC-TV Burbank studios offers tours for the public anymore. When this reporter was a "Tour Guide" at CBS-TV, Television City, Hollywood, in the 1950's the tours were free. Now it will cost you $6 for adults and $3.75 for children. But you do get on the "Jay Leno Tonight Show" set.

The Tempel Lipizzan stallions will add a touch of Austria to the opening night performance of the Grant Park Symphony's summer concert series, during a pre-concert exhibition at 5 p.m. on Friday, June 18th. The 15-minute exhibition, which will be staged in Butler's Field in front of Grant Park's Petrillo Music Shell, free to the public, featuring six prized stallions in an intricately-choreographed display, including the breathtaking leaps of "Airs Above the Ground," for which the Lipizzans are famed.

Like Mozart, who's work will be featured by the Grant Park Symphony and Chorus in that evening's "A Night In Vienna" concert, the Lipizzans are descendants of Vienna. Tempel Farms in Wadsworth, where the Lipizzans will offer full public performances every Sunday and Wednesday from July 7th through Sept. 1st is the only place in the United States where the public can regularly see rare Lipizzan stallions performing classical dressage as developed more than four centuries ago at the famed Spanish Riding School in Vienna.

This contest is sanctioned by the Kansas City Barbeque Society and follows its rules.

Last year's champion, Paul Schatte of Oklahoma, is defending his crown and more than 50 cooking teams are expected to compete with Paul in all four categories. The entry fee is $35 for each category and the additional category of 'whole pig' is $100 an entry.

Caring For Arthritis

About six million Americans say they have arthritis but have not seen a doctor for care, even though a number of medical treatments and other helpful services are available to make life with arthritis easier and less painful, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

Often people with arthritis simply believe that they can treat themselves as well as a doctor could by taking over-the-counter medications. However, there are many forms of arthritis, and proper treatment depends on which form of arthritis a person has.

"If someone does not seek treatment or depends on self-medicating, irreversible joint damage may take place that could be prevented or delayed with proper care," said Arthur Grayzel, MD, the Arthritis Foundation's senior vice-president of medical affairs.

Once the specific form of arthritis is identified, a treatment program, most often consisting of medication, rest, exercise and joint protection, can greatly reduce pain and increase use of the joints.

For information about arthritis and services that may help, check your telephone directory for your local Arthritis Foundation chapter, or call toll-free the Arthritis Foundation information line at 1-(800)-283-7800 Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The Wayne R. Gray Educational Grant Committee has selected the recipient for the 1993-94 school year. The grant was established honoring Gray for his years of service to the Indian Guide programs by the Southwest YMCA Council of Chiefs. Pictured are Lynn Gray, directress of Christian Education at Maranatha Chapel, Evergreen Park, Cheryl Baillie and Wayne R. Gray. This year, Cheryl, who resides in Orland Park, will be attending Hope College to pursue studies in ecology and biology. Cheryl was chosen as recipient of the grant for her scholastic achievements and service to the YMCA and community.

Wayne and Lynn are members of the committee established to develop criteria for the grant, administer and evaluate the applications from qualified members of the Indian Guide programs. The third member of the committee is Lorelle Cutforth, principal of Covington School.

The grant is available to all members of the Southwest YMCA Indian Guide programs, past and current, who wish to pursue studies at institutions of higher education and can fulfill the criteria. Members of the Indian Guide programs who have received the grant include Audra Gray, Oak Lawn, 1988; Pamela Tomczak, Burbank, 1989; Andrea Ber, Palos Hills, 1990; Christine Gibbs and Jason Gray, both of Oak Lawn, 1991; Christine McAley, Alsip and Joseph Cwiklinski, Oak Lawn, 1992.

Homicide Memorial

For the past four years, the Cook County State's Attorney's Office has held an annual memorial for the victims of homicide and reckless homicide. It is a moving tribute to the dead and a chance for survivors to mourn and share memories. Attendance has grown from fewer than 100 to more than 1,000.

"This ceremony makes you realize the enormous price so many people have paid," said Cook County State's Attorney Jack O'Malley, "but is also an instrument for healing in our community."

The ceremony features a photo memorial board bearing the faces of hundreds of victims' weddings, graduations, families, boyfriends and girlfriends. Last year's photo board showed a toddler peeking from the folds of her mother's skirt.

The memorial is scheduled in Chicago's Grant Park, in Arvey Field facing Lake Michigan, on Saturday, June 19th at 12 noon.

Athletes And Eating

Summer brings out the athlete in almost everyone. But the outcome of a golf outing or softball game can be affected by what is eaten on the day of the event. Dietitians at Dairy Council of Wisconsin offer several nutrition tips to maximize your competitive edge.

Don't skip meals as breakfast, lunch and dinner provide calories and nutrients for energy; eat three to four hours before an event and choose a variety of foods from the five food groups: breads, fruit, vegetables, meat and milk; choose high-carbohydrate, high-energy foods such as fruit, vegetables, breads, cereals, pastas and milk; drink water before, during and after competition to prevent dehydration and, in addition, eat small snacks frequently during all-day events. Fruit, cheese, crackers and yogurt are wise choices.

Governor's Home Town Awards

Gov. Jim Edgar recently announced the winners in the 12th annual Governor's Home Town Awards competition, recognizing the contributions made by thousands of volunteers whose efforts improve the quality of life in communities throughout Illinois.

"Volunteers are the foundation on which our communities are built," said Edgar, who presented the awards. "Throughout our state, volunteers are contributing time, money and talent to make sure important community projects and services are addressed. From counseling youths to building bridges and providing emergency services, their unselfish contributions to their communities are making life better for their neighbors. The Governor's Home Town Awards are a way for those of us in state government to recognize and thank these dedicated volunteers for their service. Hundreds of Illinois communities today proudly display road signs commemorating their selection as Home Town Award winners. This year's winners again show that spirit of community pride and volunteerism is alive and well in Illinois."

The Governor's Home Town Awards competition is administered by the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs (DCCA), in close cooperation with the Department of Aging and the Lieutenant Governor's Office of Volunteer Services. DCCA Director Jan M. Grayson said winners were selected from a pool of 92 applicants.

The Governor's Home Town Awards are presented in six categories, based on community population. Projects must involve economic development, community service, community facilities, human enrichment, achievement by youths or achievement by senior citizens. Entries are judged by impartial volunteers on the basis of local need and community participation, as well as results and continuity.

In communities with a population of 12,001 to 17,500, Hickory Hills won the first place senior award for senior volunteers who helped supervise children's activities and park tours.

In communities with a population of 17,501 to 33,000,

Oak Forest won the first place youth award as Arbor Park Middle School students helped clean up and decorate a local depot.

Palos Hills received a third place in the youth awards as the youth board organized a haunted house to entertain kids at Halloween. Palos Hills also received a first place senior award for its senior advisory board which addresses the needs and concerns of senior citizens.

In communities with a population of 33,001 to 86,000, Oak Lawn took first place in the general award for the American Red Cross and the PTA which provided first aid training for Sward School pupils.

Traffic Safety

By Secretary of State George H. Ryan

Illinois law determines who has the right-of-way in any traffic situation. However, courtesy and common sense can be just as important in preventing accidents.

Q. What does Illinois law say?

A. When two vehicles approach an intersection from different roads at the same time and there are no stop signs, yield signs or traffic lights, the driver on the left must yield to the driver on the right. But the driver on the right should be prepared to yield if the driver on the left does not.

Q. Who must yield at a four-way stop intersection?

A. When two or more vehicles arrive at about the same time, the first driver to stop should be the first to go and the others should take their turns. Take your turn when it comes. If another driver turns in front of you, let him go and avoid a crash.

Q. What about turning left at an intersection?

A. Yield the right-of-way to oncoming traffic when turning left at an intersection, alley or driveway. If you are in an intersection with traffic lights, you may finish your left turn even if the light changes to red. If you are not in the intersection when the light turns red, you must wait for a green light before turning left.

State Senators Address School Funding Problems

The two ranking Republicans on the Senate Education Committee say they have focused this spring on giving local school boards greater flexibility in solving their own problems. Assistant Senate Majority Leader Frank Watson (R-55) and State Sen. Patrick O'Malley (R-18) say they have both enjoyed the opportunity to address education issues from a new perspective that favors more local control.

"With Senate Republicans in the majority for the first time in 18 years, there is no longer an attitude that bigger checks from the state can solve every problem," said Watson, the committee chairman. "Certainly we could use more money for education, but Education Committee members have found that some schools' difficulties arise from stringent state mandates, rather than a shortage of money alone."

O'Malley, who serves as vice-chairman of the committee, says he and his Republican colleagues pushed for an agenda that shifts the power and responsibility for education from the state to the local level. "We are working to decentralize education and put local school boards back in control. They know the situations in their schools and are better able to judge them than legislators at the Capitol," O'Malley said. "We also want to give schools more flexibility in personnel matters to allow them to get the most for their education dollar. Our goal is to provide quality educational opportunities for our children."

O'Malley said it was impossible this year to implement the school funding plan proposed by the Task Force on School Funding. "For the first time since the school aid formula was instituted in 1972, we have a proposal before us that would substantially change how schools are funded," he said.

"It would make the state the primary funding source. However, the state simply isn't in a position to assume the additional financial responsibility at this time, so the plan is on hold. I would expect it to remain on hold until we build a consensus to provide the additional funding. In building that consensus, I believe property tax relief will be an essential component."

"Throwing money at any school system, whether it is in Chicago, the suburbs or downstate, will not by itself solve problems. We must have the commitment and the will to put the education of our children ahead of special interests," O'Malley said. "The City of Chicago and the State of Illinois can no longer afford to have tens of thousands of our youngsters graduate year after year without the necessary skills to compete for jobs in today's increasingly technological work environment."

RR Crossing Repair

At the regular meeting of the Oak Lawn Village Board on Tuesday evening, Mayor Ernest Kolb announced that IDOT will be repairing the railroad crossing at 108th and Central and the 111th St. crossing west of Cicero Ave. The trustees turned down a request to allow a petitioner to install a chain link fence on his property at 10240 S. Washington, who said he wanted to keep children going to school and adults from taking shortcuts across his lawn. It was suggested that instead of the chain link fence, he put in bushes. He said there were bushes there when he purchased the property, but they were removed for the widening of 103rd St. and at the moment he cannot afford to put in bushes and he already has the fencing. The vote to deny his request was 5-1.

James Pink, attorney for James & Sons Jewelers, asked for a special use for his client to loan money. He said they have operated this business for more than a year, but the board had just passed an ordinance prohibiting pawnbrokers and he felt the board should give them some consideration since they had permission to operate this type of business. They were told the new ordinance denies the request.

Trustee Marjorie Joy brought up payment of $812 to Attorney James J. Tierney which was deleted from disbursements the previous month and she moved to approve payment. Trustee Michael Walsh pointed out that the board had paid a large amount of money to Burt Odelson the former village attorney, to research federal compliance laws and they have not received the report and that Tierney had also been asked to do some of this research and has not reported back to the board. When put to a vote it was turned down 4-2.

Kolb said there will be a receptacle at the village hall, 110th & Kilpatrick, and at the park district where one may drop off telephone books for recycling starting July 28th.

Trustee William Kean said he has had requests from residents about speeding on 107th St. He suggested the village look in to a special sign used by the Village of Hinsdale which will record the speed at which one is driving, give a warning and after the third offense a ticket will be issued. The sign can be moved from street to street.

Trustee Cy Holesha, who congratulated the work done by Don Canning and the street department for clearing up light poles and other items stored around the water tank in Dearborn Heights, said everything was moved out and new sod put down, making it like a small park.

Trustee Joy asked the staff to look into the sidewalks along 103rd St. which are inaccessible to handicapped. She has seen a handicapped man in a motorized wheel chair riding on the street because the curbs are too high for him to get on the sidewalk.

Trustee Ron Stancik said that Commonwealth Edison has been very reliable, but for the past two years they seem to be unable to provide power after thunderstorms and when asked about it they suggest getting generators to provide power during a blackout. He also said the communication is not working as it should. He has set up a meeting with Edison for Wednesday and all the trustees are invited.

He also said the Doyle/Gilbert matter has been going on for some time and all the board is getting allegations. He asked that a complete transcript of what is going on be provided, one for each of the trustees. The coverup concerns him and he feels it should be held at an open meeting because this is sworn testimony.

A committee to review the resumes for the position of village manager was appointed by Kolb; Trustees Walsh and Stancik, and Village Clerk Jayne Powers.

A police department commendation was given to Sergeant Peter Dubiel for successfully averting a possible suicide; and a fire department commendation was presented to Ron Klingensmith of the Chicago Ridge Fire Department, who on his way to work saw smoke at a house at 9716 S. McVicker Ave. and alerted the residents, then notified the Oak Lawn Fire Department who kept damage confined to the 2nd floor of the dwelling.

Employee recognition awards were given to Richard Santoro, Harold Spruth, Michael Dix and Alfred Janowski, all of the police department. Firemen with 25 years were John Chickerrillo, Donald Hall, Robert Radtke, Verne Brace and Earl Couch, also building inspector Dan Prychitko.

Serving 20 years were Betty Murphy, police department; David Tobin, Douglas Kasper, Gerald Danaher, Thomas Hosek and Richard Moran of the fire department; Alan Wierdak, street department; Rochelle Hatton senior citizens director with 15 years; and 10 year awardees were Kenneth Dangman Jr., police department and Michael Denton, equipment maintenance. All were presented with a plaque and a check.

Insurance Plan

Legislation to make it easier for small-business owners to purchase affordable health insurance coverage for their employees has been passed by both houses of the Illinois General Assembly and now waits Gov. Jim Edgar's approval.

House Bill 655, has been strongly supported by the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB) the state's largest business advocacy group with 21,000 members.

"This legislation allows small businesses the same flexibility as big firms that self-insure, thus exempting themselves from many state-mandated health insurance coverages," said John R. Davis, NFIB/Illinois state director. "It passed with strong bipartisan support, which demonstrates that Illinois lawmakers are becoming increasingly conscious of the health care and business care concerns of their small-business constituents. NFIB/Illinois particularly appreciates the effort that the sponsors gave to this needed health care reform."

According to Davis, S.B. 655 eliminates a year-long time lapse between when a small business could cease its coverage under costly conventional health insurance plans and when it could purchase more basic insurance.

"Each new state-mandated health coverage provision has added another layer of cost, which has forced small businesses to increase deductibles, require higher co-payments from employees or cancel health insurance for employees altogether. This new legislation will give small businesses more flexibility to develop affordable benefit packages that better meet the needs of employees and their families," Davis pointed out.

"Over two-thirds of Illinois small-business owners already make employee health insurance coverage available," Davis said. "Of those who don't, nearly half cite the high cost as the primary reason. If a financially stressed business faces the difficult decision of dropping health coverage rather than adopting a more economical plan, this legislation offers a viable solution that helps the business continue health insurance protection for its employees and their families."

Trustees Seated

Newly-elected library board member Joann Buschbach and re-elected members Shirley Barrett and Marion Sullivan were officially seated at the May board reorganization meeting. New officers, elected to serve one-year terms, are Bob Honkisz, president; Lois Gasteyer, vice-president; Nancy Czerweic, secretary; and Shirley Barrett, treasurer. Meetings were set for 7:30 p.m. on the third Tuesday of each month in the library's Rotary Room, 9427 Raymond Ave.

Library director Dr. James

Casey reported that the total circulation of library materials for the first four months of 1993 was up by more than four percent over the same period last year, an increase of 9,870 or approximately 86 more circulations per day.

In regular business, the board approved payment of $33,963 for library materials, $21,282 for general operating expenses and $279,645 for personnel. The board continued its review of personnel policy and approved the 'Avenues to Excellence II' review required for state per capita grants.

GED Legislation Awaits Edgar Action

The Illinois General Assembly has passed legislation co-sponsored by State Sen. Patrick O'Malley (R-18) to recognize the role community colleges in Cook County play in helping dropouts earn their high school equivalency certificates. Senate Bill 221 states that in Cook County a general education development (GED) certificate shall contain the signature of the State Superintendent of Education, the chief executive officer of the institution where the GED instruction occurred, and any other signatures authorized by the State Superintendent.

"Some community colleges in Cook County currently provide GED course work, but all GED tests and certificates are still administered by the various regional superintendents," O'Malley said. "If community colleges are going to provide this valuable service to students, it is important that their contributions be recognized."

Senate Bill 221 will become law when signed by the governor. The legislation is also sponsored by State Sen. Aldo DeAngelis (R-40).

Storm Relief Office

The Small Business Administration (SBA) has confirmed its intention to establish a disaster relief office in Oak Lawn in the public safety facility, 9446 S. Raymond Ave. Staff from the SBA opened the office to assist area residents who were flood victims.

The SBA's program offers loans to eligible individuals at a rate of 4%. Information and applications will be available at the disaster relief office.

Sponsors Anti-Pollution Bill

Congressman William O. Lipinski (D-3) recently co-sponsored the Pollution Prevention and Incineration Alternatives Act of 1993.

This bill would forestall the construction of unnecessary garbage and hazardous waste incinerators which threaten the financial well being and environmental health of communities around the nation. Furthermore, the bill would require applicants for new hazardous waste incinerators to demonstrate that the facility will not harm the local economy or interfere with any toxins reduction program. The billers would also have to certify that a new facility would not create adverse environmental and public health effects before any new hazardous waste incinerators are permitted. These provisions would also apply to cement kilns, boilers and industrial furnaces which burn hazardous waste and are currently exempt from strict environmental controls.

In regard to his support of this bill, Congressman Lipinski stated, "my co-sponsoring of this bill is a result of my concern and the concern of the public regarding incineration as a method of solid waste disposal." In addition to his opposition to the waste incinerators, Lipinski noted, "there are two serious shortcomings of incineration as a method of solid waste disposal. First, waste incinerators have been plagued by high cost overruns and high operating costs. Secondly, and maybe more importantly, burning trash also releases large amounts of lead and mercury which may cause birth defects, neurological damage and immunological disorders."

Lipinski notes, "unnecessary garbage and hazardous waste incinerators threaten both the fiscal and environmental health of our communities, this bill will reduce the dangers of garbage incineration and give recycling and pollution initiatives a chance to get off the ground."

The Pollution Prevention and Incineration Alternatives Act of 1993 would impose a time out on new construction or expansion of municipal solid waste incinerators until 1997. States and the EPA would be required to use that time to determine whether there is adequate capacity in existing units. They would also have to examine the economic viability and health impacts of new incinerators in low income or minority communities. This bill, co-sponsored by Lipinski, also establishes a siting requirement prohibiting the location of hazardous and municipal solid waste incinerators near sensitive areas such as hospitals, places of worship and drinking water sources.

Re-Elected

Walter Burnett Jr.'s recent re-election as chairman of the Young Democrats of Cook County (YDCC) is more than just a personal triumph. His second term victory is the first for an African-American and sets a new course for the future leadership of the Party.

Burnett, administrative assistant to Cook County Recorder Jesse White, was raised in the Cabrini-Green area and attended South-eastern Illinois University. He rose through Party ranks to be elected to city vice chairman of YDCC and executive director of the minority caucus of the Young Democrats of America in 1991. He became YDCC chairman in 1992.

"YDCC is an opportunity for young leaders to make an impact on the direction the Democratic Party will take in the 21st century," Burnett said. In those terms, YDCC is doing its part to help the Democratic Party get stronger every day."

Long Range Library Plan Told

A four-year long-range plan was adopted by the Oak Lawn Library Board of Trustees at its regular meeting on June 15th. The plan, complete with goals and objectives, was initiated with a "Planning for the Twenty-First Century" workshop on Jan. 30th. At that time, community representatives, members of the Friends of the Library, staff and board trustees met in an all-day session to determine the direction the library should take as it moves into the future. Based on the results of that meeting, library staff developed the final plan as a working document.

The board also approved the library's personnel policy and Freedom of Information Act. The per capita grant application was approved for submission to the state.

A mid-year review and revision of the budget was approved. Since the library mortgage has been paid off, payment funds were shifted to materials. Suburban Library System (SLS) references, which were on library shelves, will be moved to Oak Park Library. The additional money will be enough to replace the most important reference tools.

The board approved closing the library for staff inservice days on Monday, July 26th; half-day on Tuesday, July 27th; and Friday, Aug. 20th. The July dates were established to enable SLS to move with as little inconvenience as possible to library patrons.

Dr. James Casey, library director, told the board that May circulation increased by 13 percent over the same month last year. He reported that an inventory of the library's fixed assets will be accomplished in late summer, a task which had been recommended by the auditors.

In regular business, the board approved payment of $45,293 for library materials; $29,046 for general operating expenses; and $144,853 for personnel.

The board meets at 7:30 p.m. on the third Tuesday of each month in the Oak Lawn Rotary Room, lower level of the library, 9427 Raymond Ave. (5300 W. 95th St.).

Guidelines For "Green Advertising"

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) recently issued guidelines about "green advertising." Some common product labels which may cause consumer deception are "ozone friendly," "environmentally safe," "recyclable," "biodegradable" and "photodegradable." The guidelines are the FTC's administrative interpretations of laws, not laws which can be enforced. According to these guidelines, environmental claims should be substantiated in order to avoid consumer deception.

Instead of simply claiming that a product is made from recycled material, the FTC advises that manufacturers should specify how much of the product, or of its packaging, is recycled. A claim of recycled content should also specify whether the recycled materials are pre-consumer or post-consumer waste. Pre-consumer waste refers to that produced during the manufacturing process. Post-consumer waste refers to that which has been used and discarded by consumers, such as newspapers, plastic, aluminum cans and glass bottles.

General claims of "biodegradable" and "photodegradable" products can be misleading. Consumers should be aware that landfills are built to minimize access of light and moisture, done to prevent pollutants from entering the air and water supply. Even materials like food and paper may take decades to decompose in a landfill.

The term "ozone friendly" generally refers to products which don't contain chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs), ozone depleting chemicals. However, some products may contain hydrochlorocarbons (HCFCs) instead of CFCs. Though HCFCs are not as harmful as CFCs, they still deplete the ozone layer.

Consumers should also be wary of statistical claims. Some products claim such things as "20 percent less packaging." It is unclear whether this means 20 percent less than the product's previous packaging or 20 percent less than another brand's packaging. Also, even if this product now has less packaging, it may still have more packaging than other similar products.

So when you see a product with a general environmental claim, look for more specific information. And remember to think about whether this claim actually means anything.

Local Girl Scouts Garner Achievement Awards

Every May there are celebrations of many kinds about goals reached over the previous year. For older Girl Scouts, the end of the activity year means the time to tie together the achievements symbolized by earning the organization's highest honors for members. South Cook County Girl Scouts celebrated at a special dinner at which Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts who earned Silver and Gold Awards were recognized by the council, their families and friends.

The Gold Award, which can only be earned by high school-age Senior Girl Scouts, has very demanding requirements. These include the ability to set and reach goals, earning other recognitions which demand a variety of skills, self-understanding, various kinds of service, demonstrated leadership ability, exploration of career options, volunteer or employed work in a designated area of interest and a project which produces a tangible benefit to others.

In addition to their Girl Scout endeavors, these award winners are usually also very active in school, do well academically and are frequently involved in sports, community and church activities.

This year's recipients include Kathleen Chafec of Oak Lawn, Arrowhead Troop 272, who planned and carried out a winter encampment for the other Scouts of her association, including making all arrangements and planning activities; and Annemarie Bennick of Evergreen Park, Troop 538, who collected baby clothes and furniture for a home for abused women and children.

Five members of Ridgeland Troop 202 earned the Gold Award. Kristie Machtan of Chicago Ridge, Heather Mannix of Oak Forest and Michelle Peters of Worth collaborated on planning an overnight for sixth grade Junior Girl Scouts, based on the "Becoming a Teen" badge, with consultants who spoke on drugs, peer pressure, sex, AIDS and pregnancy. Christina Peters of Worth and Amy Michelle Weis of Chicago Ridge arranged a workshop for third grade Brownie Scouts about personal safety and avoiding abuse, as part of the "Staying Safe" contemporary issues program.

Jennifer Koclanis of Oak Forest, Orland Troop 159, organized a "Thinking Day" program for her association, to recognize and promote the day when Girl Guides and Girl Scouts around the world remember each other and the birthday of Lord Baden-Powell who founded Scouting in England.

Jennifer Lisula of Orland Park, Troop 598, responded to a community need by organizing and collecting donations of money and goods for children at a crisis center. Jennifer Plath, also of Troop 598, helped Junior Scouts complete requirements to earn the swimming badge by using planning, teaching and swimming skills.

In addition to the Gold Award winners, a number of Cadette Scouts earned the Silver Award, the second highest honor available to members. The requirements are similar, although not quite as extensive as for the Gold Award.

From Arrowhead Association Troop 105 in the Oak Lawn area were Jennifer Bale, Chris Czemski, Nicole Matuszewski, Maura Mulvey, Paula Obuchowski, Joanne Statkus, Sarah White and Gina Wierdak. Also, from Arrowhead Troop 105, Michelle Morin and Heather Wittig. Also from the Oak Lawn area, Cattail Creek Troop 491, were Jamie Desch, Beth Forsyth and Mary Pat Newren.

Maple Troop 711, in the Burbank area, had recipients Donna Carey, Danielle Cueto, Lisa Gruber, Sharon Houdek, Elizabeth Humphrey, Erika Martin, Julie Moore, Tracy Sheridan and Jenny Soma.

Ridgeland Troop 373, in the Worth-Chicago Ridge area, had Margaret Dwyer, Renee Machtan and Colleen Winchester.

Palos Troop 467 recipients included Whitney Bareither, Dana Delach, Becky Hopkins, Lauren McCoy, Jill Pine and Becky Provencher.

From Orland Troop 333 were Kimberly Ann Bialek, Lindsey L. Hart, Cheryl Jean-Holt, Vanessa Rose Kress, Ellen Meany, Kimberly Ann Petska, Amanda Joy Stell and Keli Ann Witt.

Seniors Program

"Hoping to actually make the Forest Preserve District of Cook County a place for the young and old alike, the district is initiating a senior citizens program," announced Cook County Board President Richard Phelan. "Most seniors are in a prime position to take advantage of the district because they are retired. We are offering programs easily accessible to them which meet their special needs and interests. Everyone should be able to enjoy nature regardless of their age."

Phelan said the district, through its special events office, is organizing senior activities in coordination with senior homes, retirement homes and community centers throughout the county. Picnics, ice cream socials, trips to Brookfield Zoo and the nature centers are some of the activities being offered.

"It is important to reach out to senior citizens," Phelan pointed out. "The Forest Preserve District belongs just as much to them as to the young. We want to encourage their usage of the Forest Preserve District."

Joseph Nevius, general superintendent of the district, said the district is catering is programs to the physically challenged as well as the ambulatory. Generally there are not many organized outdoor activities for groups of seniors. The district, however, has many outdoor sites accessible to senior citizens with special needs.

Nevius added that naturalists are available to visit senior centers and present programs with nature themes. Additionally, the district's canine unit will give demonstrations to interested senior groups. The district, in conjunction with the county, also has a speaker's bureau which can provide speakers on a variety of topics to senior citizen groups and centers. The district can basically tailor any of its programs to meet the needs of seniors or it can design a program especially to meet their interests.

"We are in a unique position to greatly enhance the lives of an under served segment of the community. Seniors need to know that we are here to serve them," Phelan said. "It is my hope that the county's seniors will find an exciting and stimulating avenue of activities to explore with the district."

More than 1,000 seniors are expected to attend the district's first senior citizen picnic on June 30th. More events are planned throughout the summer. For more information on the district's senior programs or speakers' bureau, contact 708-771-1015 (speech/hearing impaired: TDD 708-771-1190). Special accommodations can be arranged.

Immunization Proof

Effective September 1993, the Illinois Department of Public Health is requiring that all school age children (kindergarten and older) provide proof of receiving a second dose of measles vaccine or written proof of immunity. The health department is urging parents to act now and have their children immunized before September.

"Our estimates show that there are potentially 200,000 children in suburban Cook County who need to be immunized," said Board President Richard Phelan. "We have been working since last year to help families meet the new requirement." In addition to Cook County Department of Public Health immunization clinics, in-school clinics have been held in several school districts, reaching over 15,000 children. "These extra clinics have helped to address the problem, but we have a long way to go before all suburban children go to school in the fall," he added.

The CCDPH offers immunization clinics free of charge to suburban Cook County residents. Parents should remember to bring their child's immunization record when attending a clinic. For more information on a clinic nearest you, call (708) 445-2400.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

By Congressman William O. Lipinski

As our state and federal governments consider reducing their budgets for Medicaid and Medicare - we must decide whether the so-called savings are real or illusory.

Lick a half-filled balloon, as you squeeze down in one area - it pops up in another.

That is what I fear happens when the government cuts Medicaid and Medicare reimbursement levels to medical providers - their losses are shifted to those of us who have insurance. Last week we learned that hospital costs in the Chicago area for patients with insurance have increased 12.3 percent last year (four times the rate of inflation). In spite of the fact people are spending less time in the hospital. I believe to make up for the money they lose on Medicaid and Medicare patients.

All this government-forced cost-shifting raises a serious question. Is the government the solution to our health care cost crises or an important contributing factor to it?

Cutting and slowing Medicaid and Medicare reimbursements has not really saved our society any money - Instead of reducing reimbursements, what we really need to do is find ways to reduce useless usage.

Consider this. Medicaid recipients go to the hospital 4.5 times as much as people who have insurance. They go to their physicians 3.6 times as much and use prescription drugs at 2.2 times the rate as people with health insurance. Paying less per visit doesn't really save us money if the number of visits increase.

Why does this happen - in large part because for them it's free (something people pushing a Canadian-style system should think about).

It is clear that we can continue to reduce what government reimburses those medical providers - but until the government finds a way to reduce these people's medical consumption - we as a society will not really be spending any less. And, it is misleading to imply we will. Instead we will just be fooling around - playing with a half-filled balloon, one that the more the government squeezes - the more the rest of our costs pop up. You see, cuts in Medicaid spending without reductions in Medicaid usage will simply result in a hidden tax hike for the middle class.

Health Care Reform

PUT THE LID ON PREMIUM CAPS

The people who are leading the charge toward health care reform are headed in the wrong direction.

The Clinton Administration's professed allegiance to fixing the nation's health care system through increased competition has dissolved into calls for price controls which are the antithesis of free enterprise.

Doctors, hospitals and drug manufacturers are already hard at work trying to shoot down that trial balloon, so the Health Care Reform Task Force is now floating premium caps, a disguised version of price controls aimed at insurance companies.

To some people, insurance companies may seem to be monolithic, uncaring entities that deserve to have their premiums restricted. But this stereotype is as wrong as this latest Clinton Administration idea is shortsighted.

Insurance is the only segment of the American health care system that is competitive. Insurers have been mirrors to the problems associated with the health care system, not the cause of those problems. Premiums increase because the costs of making sick people well again, continue to increase.

In addition, efforts to reform the health care system would be hamstrung by limiting insurance premiums. One of the main goals of reform is to make sure all Americans are insured. But insurance companies cannot cover high-risk applicants without spreading the risk and the costs among a larger group. That means everybody's premiums would have to increase. To restrict that increase would put insurers into the position of having to turn away high-risk applicants or face significant solvency problems.

Health care reform also requires major investments in new systems to reduce paperwork and improve the flow of information to consumers. How can companies accomplish those things without adequate capital generated by premiums?

And just as with the more general concept of price controls, premium limits do not attack the underlying causes of rising health care costs, they only deal with the symptoms. Putting limits on premiums is like trying to control a fever by tinkering with the thermometer.

It's been said that physicians don't cure illness, they help the human body to heal itself. President Clinton would do well to apply that concept to the country's ailing health care system. Government should provide the assistance and guidelines for the natural market forces of competition to produce the cure.

World War II Workers

By 1939, nearly 50,000 Americans worked in the aircraft industry. World War II saw the total increase to over two million in 1943; production zoomed to 95,000 planes a year. Working day and night, wartime workers built 12,000 ships, 300,000 planes and 87,000 tanks. By war's end, two million heavy machine guns, six million bombs and 9,000 pieces of artillery had been produced.

More than half the WW II workers in defense plants were women. Furthermore, women represented more than a third of the entire wartime work force. The war also meant greater job opportunities for blacks and other minorities; one in 10 wartime workers was black.

Both the American Federation of Labor (AFL) and the Congress of Industrial Organizations (CIO) pledged not to strike in World War II. Collective bargaining took a back seat as government agencies steered the wartime economy. By war's end, paychecks had risen 15 percent, while prices soared more than 40 percent.

A coal strike in 1943 and wildcat walkouts throughout the duration betrayed mounting discontent.

These facts about the labor force during WW II were compiled for "The American Worker" a U.S. Department of Labor publication.

Sheriff Sheahan Warning

Cook County Sheriff Michael F. Sheahan is warning citizens throughout the county to beware of over-the-phone solicitations from callers claiming to represent the Sheriff's Office.

Sheahan issued the warning after his office received numerous complaints about telephone solicitations by individuals seeking funds for a Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) program.

"The public should know that there is no employee in the Sheriff's Office authorized to make phone solicitations for any departmental program," Sheahan said. "Our Internal Affairs Division is investigating these reports and we will do our best to track down the individuals involved with this scam."

Police departments throughout the county have reported receiving numerous complaints regarding similar unauthorized solicitations.

Those making the solicitations often identify themselves as members of law enforcement agencies, such as the Cook County Sheriff's Office or fraternal police organizations.

While some police officers' unions conduct legitimate phone campaigns, Sheriff's Deputies are strictly forbidden to make solicitations for donations while acting in an official capacity.

According to Sheriff's Police investigators, most callers claim they are seeking cash donations for programs aimed at fighting drug abuse among the young. They then offer to come personally to the home to pick up the payment. In some cases, the solicitors have asked the victims to tape the cash donation to their doors for pick up later that evening.

"People should be suspicious of any caller that asks for money," Sheahan said. "No matter how legitimate or worthy a cause might sound, you should never be quick to make a cash donation based on a phone conversation with an unfamiliar caller."

Law Info

Attorneys will provide free legal information during The Chicago Bar Association's Call-A-Lawyer program, Saturday, July 17, 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Chicago-area residents who call (312) 554-2001 will speak to volunteer attorneys with experience in various areas of the law.

Call-A-Lawyer is designed to assist the public with answers to basic legal questions. Attorneys will be available to discuss personal contracts, small business matters, criminal issues, wills, and more.

The program is staffed by attorneys from The Chicago Bar Association's Lawyer Referral Service, a public resource for obtaining experienced legal counsel. Lawyer Referral Service attorneys work in private practice but volunteer their services for Call-A-Lawyer.

Call-A-Lawyer is usually offered one Saturday morning of each month. Every year, over 1,200 city and suburban residents contact the program for legal information.

Residents of Evergreen Park gave atheist Robert Sherman a 'hot' reception, not a 'warm' one at Monday night's village board meeting. In response to Sherman's charge that the slogan 'Village of Churches' violates the principle of separation of church and state, several of those attending the meeting suggested that Sherman "Leave Evergreen Park alone." The slogan has been a part of the village for more than 40 years and the consensus of residents is that it is a statement of fact and certainly not an endorsement of any religion.

Reverend Steven Warner was an articulate spokesman for the village as were Martin Ozinga Jr., Gen Kondracke and Ray Johnson. Johnson coined the slogan in 1951 when he was a village trustee.

Mayor Anthony Vacco echoed the sentiments of attendees when he said that everyone in the village would be happy if you (Sherman) went home. Sherman and three others who classify themselves as atheists who accompanied him, all live outside the boundaries of Evergreen Park.

Sherman would not divulge the name of the village resident he alleges called his attention to Evergreen Park. He said he would take no further action unless a village resident decided to file suit. According to Sherman, the resident is afraid of 'governmental retaliation' if identified.

Members of St. Christopher's Parish are preparing for their 46th annual Fiesta which will be held on Wednesday, July 14 through Sunday, July 18 at 147th and Keeler, Midlothian.

Tom and Anita Waicekaskas, publicity chairpersons, report that this year's Fiesta will be the biggest and best in its history. Even the pennant bound Chicago White Sox will have a Fan-Van there on opening day to kick-off the event.

Congressman Harris W. Fawell (R-13) will hold two town hall meetings this Saturday. The first is at Lockport Central Square from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. The second is at Orland Park Civic Center, 14750 Ravinia Ave. from 11:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m.

It was wall to wall people Tuesday night as hundreds jammed the Martinique Restaurant to honor Cook County Assessor and 19th Ward Committeeman Tom Hynes at the 19th Ward Democratic Party annual fundraiser.

The Chicago Board of Election Commissioners wants Chicagoans to have a taste of Democracy!

Chicago Election Commissioner Arnette R. Hubbard said that during the Taste of Chicago festivities the Board will have a voter registration booth open at the southwest corner of Jackson & Columbus. The booth will be open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. during the Taste of Chicago, from June 25th through July 4th.

"Voter registration is a fast and simple process that will only take a few minutes time," Commissioner Hubbard said. "It's a convenient way for unregistered persons to qualify to vote in next year's elections."

To register, two pieces of identification are needed, one with a home address.

For further information, Chicagoans can call the Election Board at 269-7900.

Federal Storm Loans

Gov. Jim Edgar announced the U.S. Small Business Administration has granted his request for assistance to businesses, homeowners and renters in Cook and DuPage counties and surrounding areas as a result of water and wind damage from torrential storms earlier this month.

"This is welcome relief from the SBA for the people of northeastern Illinois," the Governor said. "This assistance will help them put their businesses and homes back in order and recover from the damage caused by two days of high winds, hail and heavy rainfall."

Interest rates for the federal disaster loans for eligible homeowners and businesses will range from four to eight percent.

The SBA opened four disaster outreach centers where applications for the loan assistance covering physical damage and economic injury may be obtained.

They are located at the Department of Human Services, 8516 S. Commercial Ave., Chicago; Foster Park Field House, 1440 W. 84th St., Chicago; Department of Human Services Mid-South office, 10833 S. Halsted Ave., Chicago, and Justice Village Hall, 7800 Archer Rd., Justice.

Information and applications also are available by calling the SBA at 1-800-359-2227, or TDD 404-347-3751.

Other counties covered by the SBA announcement are Kane, Lake, McHenry and Will, as well as Lake County, Indiana.

The Governor requested

Revenue Increase Over Last Year

Illinois General Revenue Fund revenues for May were $1.174 billion, 11.1 percent higher than in May of 1992, the sixth straight month that monthly receipts exceeded those of the comparable months in the prior year, Comptroller Dawn Clark Netsch reported.

Leading the increase were federal receipts, which for the fourth consecutive month made up the largest the SBA action after declaring a state disaster so state resources could be mobilized to provide assistance in battling floodwaters and dealing with other problems caused by the storms.

proportion of revenue growth.

Minus short-term borrowing, revenue growth for the fiscal year is $544 million, up 5.1 percent over fiscal 1992.

To reach the Bureau of the Budget's projection of 5.2 percent revenue growth for the year, revenues for June need to be $73 million or 6.7 percent higher than June of 1992, Netsch said.

Public Health Grants

The Illinois Department of Public Health has awarded grants totaling $157,000 to 18 local health departments and one municipality to assist in surveillance and control of container-breeding mosquitoes.

"The grants will help track and control the mosquito population and, in turn protect the health of our citizens by reducing the probability of mosquito-borne diseases," said Dr. John R. Lumpkin, state health director.

The grants were awarded based on a number of factors, including the presence of the Asian tiger mosquito, major used tire sites, past causes of mosquito-borne encephalitis, geographic region and

Plan New Insurance Company

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Illinois, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Iowa and Blue Cross of South Dakota recently jointly announced their intention to combine their operations into a new company, providing health care coverage to more than 3.6 million people.

The new entity would combine two of the strongest Blue Cross and Blue Shield Plans in the nation into a company with reserves of $740 million. In the insurance industry, the level of reserves is the standard measure of financial solvency.

The organizations are Health Care Service Corporation, the corporate name of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Illinois; and IASD Health Services Corporation of Iowa, which includes Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Iowa and Blue Cross of South Dakota. They would retain their individual operations and locations for the foreseeable future and a unified board of directors would be created in 1994.

"By combining our capabilities, we will be better able to achieve our common mission of assuring as many citizens as possible access to affordable, quality health care," said Raymond F. McCaskey, president and chief executive officer of Health Care Service Corporation. "Both companies have outstanding employees dedicated to assuring that policy holders and health care providers continue to receive the same dependable service to which they have become accustomed."

"As we enter an era of far-reaching reform in our nation's health care system, the new corporation, because of its strength, would be in a far better position than either corporation alone to face future challenges and shape a secure destiny," said Robert D. Ray, president and chief executive officer of IASD Health Services Corporation and former governor of Iowa. "Our customers will be foremost in our planning. They will see no change in the way they receive service as we move toward joining these companies. Over the long term, our goal is to use this union to provide the best possible service to our customers in the most efficient way."

The new entity will also present many opportunities for cost efficiencies through economies of scale and sharing of systems and information. In the future, such cost savings are expected to translate into more affordable rates for policy holders. Additionally, more capital will be available to take advantage of opportunities to improve service.

Both boards have signed a non-binding memorandum of intent to combine their operations. Details of the final agreement are being worked out and will be shared when available.

The proposed union must be approved by the insurance regulators of Illinois and Iowa, both boards of directors and the Plans' members before it is finalized. It will also be reviewed by the insurance regulators of South Dakota.

The new organization in brief*: number of policy holders: 3.6 million; revenues: $4.1 billion; number of claims paid: 41 million; dollar amount of claims paid: $3.8 billion; assets: $1.7 billion; reserves: $740 million; employees: 6,300; national ranking: by reserves, 2; by revenues, 3; by policy holders, 4. *Based on rounded 1992 figures.

SHARE FOOD

Are you experiencing too many days left at the end of your paycheck? SHARE FOOD/Chicago may be your solution for stretching your food budget. The program is equally suitable for families, senior citizens and other adult individuals. In fact, a recent change in the method of packaging the food has increased the program's appeal to seniors and singles.

through "host" organizations such as churches, clubs, associations and other groups. IOF Foresters ChildPrint, a free fingerprinting and child identification program, is now being offered at no charge to local businesses.

"This is a crime prevention program that assists in the event of a missing child and gives the police an opportunity to act promptly," says Dennis Ray Martin, president of the National Association of Chiefs of Police. "Time is a vital part of the process. Every hour that goes by gives us less of a chance to find the child."

For the past five years, IOF Foresters ChildPrint has organized local fingerprinting programs in stores, schools, day care centers and at fairs and community events, sparking interest from businesses. This year marks a new drive to organize with corporations. Employees bring their children to work, usually on a weekend day, to be fingerprinted and photographed.

For more information, or to set up a fingerprinting day for your business, call the IOF Foresters Better Parenting Info Line, 1-(800)-922-4-IOF.

of the MacBrides, I found signing on to H.R. 712 only natural. These are the kinds of measures which we, the United States, must take up against the widespread discrimination practices which occur in the North of Ireland against the nationalists."

Observe Caution On New Campus

"Students going away to any college need to realize they will no longer be living in a place where Mom or Dad oversees the security of their home," says Bernard Pleskoff, Loyola University Chicago's dean of residence life. "Students must take responsibility for their own safety."

Pleskoff, who frequently presents safety programs for other university housing directors across the country, recommends that students make a careful assessment of their new living quarters before they get caught up in the excitement of the new school year. While most schools, including Loyola, have well-trained security staff who watch for potential problems, he suggests that students moving into residence hall facilities take a good look at their new home on the first day.

"Make certain that the entrances and exits to your building are well-lit, that shrubbery near the building is trimmed to eliminate hiding places and that you have security screens if you have ground floor windows," Pleskoff said. "If any of these things aren't right, be sure to tell your residence hall advisor or a security officer."

Pleskoff also suggested the following tips: always lock your door when you leave your room, even if it's only for a minute and especially if your roommate is asleep; don't ever prop open or disable the locking mechanisms on entrance and exit doors; don't hesitate to report any suspicious people or activities in the halls to security or your residence hall advisor and always walk with others or use the campus escort services after dark.

In addition, students moving into off-campus apartments often are accustomed to living in well-secured residence halls and neglect to assess the safety of their new accommodations, said Pleskoff. He suggests they ask if the locks have been re-keyed or changed before moving in; look to make sure there is a dead-bolt lock on all outside entrance doors and that the bolt is at least one inch long; make sure all outside doors are solid-core wood or metal; look for a place with a peephole in the front door or windows near the door to see who is at the door; be certain that any window air conditioning units cannot be removed from the outside and check for smoke detectors and a charged fire extinguisher.

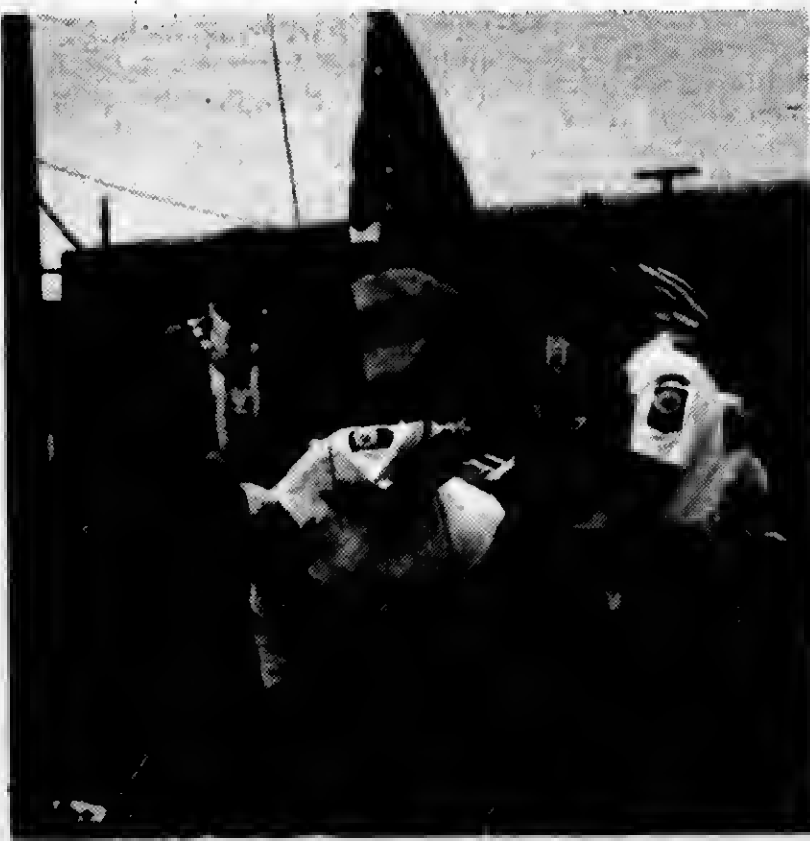

"Obviously these tips don't cover everything, but they should make students think about some things they may not have paid attention to otherwise," Pleskoff concluded.

The Oak Lawn Elks Lodge No. 2254 celebrated its annual Flag Day services at the lodge, 107th and Central Ave., where approximately 100 members and guests commemorated the "Birth of the American Flag." Oak Lawn Reviews

by Ann Bennett
422-0486

Well, the BULLS did it and it was really a "squeaker" with a 99-98 score made in the last minute of play by John Paxson. But the Suns put up a terrific battle. Oak Lawn had its own parade Sunday night with a number of cars going up and down 95th St., blowing their horns.

The Oak Lawn Area Chapter 3558 of AARP will meet on Monday, July 12th at Our Lady of Fatima K.C. Hall, 5839 W. 95th St., at 1 p.m. Lois Harris, program chairperson, has secured the services of Congressman William Lipinski who will speak on current issues concerning senior citizens. Members and friends are invited to come. Felix Waitches is president and one may call 422-5065 for information.

Mrs. Marna Bale, a former long-time resident, who retired to Florida, arrived here on June 10th, to attend the graduations of her grandchildren Heather Bale, granddaughter; Janelle Schultz, great-granddaughter, both from Simmons School; Alan Bale a grandson; and Jason Schultz, a great-grandson, both from OLCHS. She did not get to the graduation of another grandson, Adam Olejniczak who graduated in St. Charles, MO.

Marna and her daughter Betty Schultz arrived in time for the annual birthday party dinner celebrated by members of the Oak Lawn Fire Department Auxiliary held on June 15th at Alexander's Dumpling House. Plans for their card & bunco party were discussed. Judy Walker is president.

Reading Program Wins Award

For the sixth time in the last nine years, the U.S. Department of Education (DOE) has selected the Chapter 1 program from Community High School District 218 as one of the nation's finest of its kind. No district in the United States has won the award of merit more times than District 218. Each of District 218's three Chapter 1 components has now won the award twice in the award's nine-year history. The DOE presented District 218 staff members with the award at the meeting of the International Reading Association. District 218 is among four school districts from Illinois to receive this award, and among 86 school districts from the United States.

Chapter 1 is a federally-funded program designed to help educationally disadvantaged children improve basic and advanced skills. Specifically, Chapter 1 helps improve skill levels in math and English for students who score at least one year below average on eighth grade standardized exams.

According to the DOE, the award-winning programs "have several elements in common, including significant parental involvement, efforts to integrate education and support services, attention to multicultural diversity, and using classroom time more efficiently, which may include extending the school day, week or year."

The state board of education nominated District 218 for the national award. Criteria for the award include test scores, grade promotions and courses completed, student self-assessment, teacher and parent ratings, as well as discipline and attendance rates.

District 218's award specifically recognizes the program's summer component. The summer program, which starts again in early June for a class of incoming freshmen, contains a cross-curricular approach to academic work and an outreach initiative in which district staff visit students' homes. Although the cross-curricular program was piloted only three years ago, the staff has worked to refine its design to achieve greater skill development. It offers a combination of art, science and English.

"Our cross-curricular program supports and reinforces the learning of basic and advanced skills through application. The result is that students achieve a more advanced skills level than in the past," says director of special projects Beverly Guzy, who coordinates the district

Chapter 1 program.

Students devote part of the six-week program exclusively to basic skill development in English and math, but then the cross-curricular component comes into play. Part of the skill reinforcement happens as students develop a team approach to learning as they participate in the projects.

Cross-curricular projects included analyzing owl pellets to discover the owl's diet, learning how to use a microscope and studying various bones; accompanying art projects included drawing fossils from observations, sculpting animals, illustrating biomes and creating unique organisms for particular biomes and, finally, related writing activities included essays on science topics and autobiographies written 10 years into the future, with students writing as though they had achieved some of their ambitions.

The second primary component of the program focuses on district staff visiting the homes of students. Last summer, they reached more than 80 percent of the homes. District 218 staff meets with students and their parents to improve communication and answer questions they may have about high school.

"It really makes the parents and students feel more welcome," says Guzy.

Chapter 1 programs are in place at Eisenhower and Richards High Schools. Representing the district at the awards ceremony were Guzy, Richards Chapter 1 coordinator Allan Burnson, science teacher Larry Layne and English teacher Lori Ralston.

Other staff members who contributed to the award-winning 1992 summer program were summer coordinator Todd Shafer; teachers Laura Anderson (art), Judy Becker (science), Dottie Beeler (math), Diann Hunter (reading), Maggie Kelly (writing), Mary Ellen Kelm-Palacios (teacher aide), Ray Kropp (math), Charles Rumpf (reading), Nick Scheman (science), Rosanna Steffen (computer lab) and secretary Arlene O'Connor. In addition, the Eisenhower outreach staff included Sandra Stepien (leader), Carol Diaz and Terry Gifford. The Richards outreach staff included Joe Fowler (leader), Susan Anderson and Eileen Jaeger.

In the past, District 218 won the Award of Merit in 1987 for the summer program; in 1985 and 1989 for the math program; and in 1986 and 1990 for the English program.

Teacher Dies

Alice Schneider died recently at Friendship Village, Schaumburg, where she had been a resident since 1976. She would have been 97 years old May 14. Mrs. Schneider spent 23 years as an educator in the schools of Oak Lawn-Hometown District 123.

ALICE SCHNEIDER

"I never knew a woman more admired and respected than Alice," noted former teacher Kathleen Sarracino. "Even though she retired in 1966, people still talk about her and ask about her. For her 95th birthday, she received 72 cars from former parents and pupils." A native of Milwaukee where her father was an Episcopal clergyman, Mrs. Schneider was married to the late Frederick "Fritz" Schneider, a music editor who died the year she retired. There were no children and her only survivor is a brother, John "Jack" Frost, a 90-year-old former drama teacher in Milwaukee.

Mrs. Schneider began her local career in 1943 as a teacher at Covington School, then became principal at Cook Avenue School from 1952 to 1955. In 1955, she became the second principal at McDonald School, and remained there until she retired.

"She knew every child's problem" recalled Mrs. Sarracino. "She would explain that one child was depressed about skin problems, another was quarrelling with his folks and distracted about it. She would suggest that we try to give the child a little leeway for a while."

"It was great to substitute at McDonald," Mrs. Sarracino continued. "You knew that everything you needed to teach the scheduled lessons would be there, at your fingertips."

Parents who worked with her were also admirers. "She had a solid steel backbone," recalled Mrs. Thomas Johnson, a former PTA officer and parent. "I never saw her slouch, and I never did much slouching myself...In front of her, Alice Schneider's respect was definitely a prize to be strived for, and guarded once won."

Barbara McCoy was a teacher at McDonald when Mrs. Schneider was principal, and the McCoy children attended the school. Mrs. McCoy and Mrs. Schneider were long-time friends. "There are so many memories of Alice over the years. One I love to recall is coming to see her and finding her recording a book for Educational Tapes for the Blind. She'd point to the wing chair for me to sit and wait until she was finished. She seemed to know I enjoyed this, and she'd read on and on. This is a very happy memory of a truly remarkable lady."

According to Vivette Ravel Rifkin, president of Educational Tape Recording for the Blind, Mrs. Schneider devoted many hours taping for this organization. She recorded more than 600 reels, mostly college textbooks for blind students. Mrs. Rifkin recalls, "She recorded for us from 1968 until 1978. She was a very conscientious, intelligent and loyal volunteer. She was well-liked in the organization and much appreciated."

Memorials may be sent to Educational Tape Recording for the Blind, 3915 W. 103rd St., Chicago, IL 60655, (312) 445-3533.

Students Take Placement Tests

The English and science departments of Oak Lawn Community High School are pleased and proud to announce that 32 of the school's seniors took advanced placement tests in English and/or biology. The tests, developed by the college board, enable students to earn college credit if their scores are high enough. Tests are graded on a 1 to 5 scale. Most colleges require a "4" or "5" to "place out" of a college-level course.

Preparation for these tests come through two honors-level programs at the school. Beginning with English 11-Honors for Freshmen, Humanities-I & II-Honors and Expository Writing I & II Honors for sophomores and juniors, seniors are enrolled in the Advanced Placement English-Honors course. Extensive writing, research, and the close analysis of literature are the major characteristics of these classes.

In science, students begin with Freshman Biology-Honors, move to Chemistry-Honors as sophomores, Physics-Honors or Advanced Chemistry-Honors as juniors, and then take Advanced Biology-Honors as seniors. Many of these students also take the Biological Instrumental course and the Anatomy and Physiology course as preparation for future careers. Thus, a number of students graduate with 5 and 6 years of science credits.

Students taking advanced placement test in English were Pearl Anderson, Christopher Brown, Eric Brown, Deepak Dass, Jenny Franzen, Mina Gacki, Melissa Jodelka, Stephanie Kavanaugh, Kelly McNeela, Edward Palmer, Jennifer Paske, Jagruti Rana, Stephen Strum, Christy Venhuizen, Donald Wallace and Christina Wojtysiak.

Students taking the test in biology were Aziz Abed, Sharon Abelman, Pearl Anderson, Christopher Brown, Eric Brown, Mary Champlain, Terra Frederick, Mina Gacki, Richard Hoggren, Stephanie Kavanaugh, Gina Liao, Michael Manallas, Jerome Murphy, Michelle Orban, Penny Roak and Dawn Marie Sommersett.

Soccer Camp

St. Rita High School, 7740 S. Western Ave., is sponsoring its second annual youth soccer camp from Monday, July 12th through the 16th. The camp is open to seventh and eighth grade boys as well as incoming freshmen. Sessions run from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. The camp covers skills, positioning and rules interpretation while offering hours of fun for all campers. Individualized instruction aids participants in sharpening offensive skills such as dribbling, shooting, passing and ball control. Defensive skills such as shadowing, marking and trapping will be covered along with special goal-keeping instruction.

The camp will be staffed by head coach Tim McCarthy, his staff and IHSA referee Kevin McAlinden. McCarthy was a member of the 1982 state regional championship team and is in his third year as head coach. McAlinden is a referee certified with the IHSA, AYSO and the USSF and has been a soccer coach and referee for over 13 years. Several team members of the varsity Kicking Mustangs will act as counselors.

While the camp's objective is to teach the basics of soccer, it is hoped that everyone has a great time learning the game and its many rules.

The cost of the camp is $50 a participant which includes instruction, a T-shirt and a camp ball. All participants should attend camp in proper attire (athletic shoes, shorts and shin guards).

"We're Number One" was the chant loudly proclaimed by the villagers of Evergreen Park, almost 1000 strong, as they welcomed back their newly crowned Little League State Champions into their home stadium. They won the state title by breezing past Kankakee in the championship game played in Elgin by a score of 9-1 in 1969.

"This team signified a truly well-disciplined, outstanding group of winners depicting the pride and joy of Evergreen Park. As their record indicates, this team demonstrated why they were the finest Little League baseball team in Illinois. They put Evergreen Park on the map," said Coach John Swider.

Don't Interfere With Wildlife

Conservation Director Brent Manning advised individuals to refrain from interfering with wildlife they may come across in wooded areas, local parks or forest preserve districts.

"Each spring people find young animals, including fawns, and wrongly assume they are abandoned," Manning said. "What some individuals don't understand is that the mother does have to leave her young occasionally to feed. She will return."

Nature protects young animals by camouflaging them with mottled coloring and giving them little or no scent that predators can detect. Yet sometimes when the mother returns, she finds her young taken away, not by a coyote but rather by a person who thinks he or she is benefiting the animal by removing it from the wild.

In the case of white-tailed deer, for example, a fawn gives off very little scent, has a spotted coat for camouflage and will lie motionless if it notices any movement, all to avoid detection by predators.

John Buhnerkempe, forest and grassland wildlife section head for the department, said even if a person is sure the mother will not return, if she has been struck by a vehicle, for example, it is illegal for individuals to take wildlife they find.

"Wild animals are protected by state and federal laws and can only be cared for by licensed wildlife rehabilitators," Buhnerkempe said. "These animals are not meant to be pets and these laws are in place to help return the animals to their natural environment as soon as possible."

Someone encountering a wounded animal should contact the nearest conservation office and inform a police officer of the animal's location so he or she can transport it to a licensed wildlife rehabilitator, but should first inform a CPO of his or her intention. The names of licensed wildlife rehabilitators by county are available by calling the Department of Conservation at (217) 782-6384.

Another reason for leaving wildlife in the wild is the diseases they can transmit to humans and domestic animals. Rabbits, for example, may be infected with roundworm, a potentially fatal parasite to humans. Some wild animals can carry rabies (a viral disease that attacks the central nervous system) and tularemia (a bacterial disease carried by infected rodents). Wild animals also may be infested with ticks, fleas, lice or other parasites that can attack people or family pets.

"Some people find it difficult to leave a young animal out in the woods, but they should remember it is natural for the animal to be there," Buhnerkempe said.

Marist High School 1993 graduate, Patrick Sullivan, son of Judy and Tom Sullivan of Oak Lawn, has been awarded a scholarship to attend Northern Illinois University, DeKalb. This athletic scholarship has been awarded to Sullivan for his accomplishments in soccer.

While at Marist, Sullivan was an active member of the intramural program and a four year letterman of both the baseball and soccer teams.

CATCH AND RELEASE FISHING IS CATCHING ON
WHAT IS CATCH AND RELEASE FISHING? Catch and release fishing is the practice of returning fish back to the water quickly and in such a manner that the fish is likely to survive.

WHY SHOULD ANGLERS PRACTICE "CATCH AND RELEASE FISHING?" Fishing in Illinois is different now than it was 20 years ago. The number of anglers has increased dramatically during this period. Advancements in fish catching technology have also put increased pressure on the limited fishery resources.

As the growing number of anglers get better at catching fish, the big fish get caught faster than the water body can grow them, which means fewer and fewer big fish. The release of big fish back to the water can mean another angler might catch this fish again.

HOW SHOULD ANGLERS CATCH AND RELEASE FISH IN ORDER TO MAXIMIZE THE POTENTIAL FOR THE FISH TO SURVIVE? Different species of fish have various tolerance levels for stress caused by being caught. For example, large mouth bass and walleye tend to expend their energy rapidly and seldom become seriously exhausted. Fish such as stripers, muskies and northerners are more sensitive to this type of stress and must be handled quickly to insure their survival upon release.

...Land the fish as soon as possible. Playing a fish until it is exhausted will cause it to build up lactic acid and will diminish its chance for survival.

...Refrain from using a dip net. Netting tends to disrupt the protective mucous covering the fish and that increases the possibility of disease once the fish is back in the water.

...No fish should be grabbed around the abdomen because the internal organs are fragile. Handle toothless fish by gripping their lower jaw. Grab a fish with teeth behind the gill covers. Don't squeeze directly on the gill covers and never handle a fish by depressing the eyeballs.

...Wet your hands before handling a fish to reduce the loss of the fish's protective mucous coating covering its body.

...Handle the fish with care when removing the hook. Avoid excess handling and don't drop the fish.

...Keep the fish in the water as much as possible during hook removal. Long-nosed pliers can be used to dislodge the hook while the fish is in the water.

...Don't attempt to remove the hook if it is lodged in the gullet or throat. Don't attempt to jerk or pull on the line to remove the hook. Simply cut your line and release the fish. Fish released in this manner stand a good chance of surviving.

...Never throw a fish back into the water. Gently place the fish into the water and let it swim away.

...To revive a fish hold it upright and move it back and forth (gently) so that water is forced over the gill filaments.

...Never place a fish on a stringer if there is a possibility that you might release it. A properly aerated live-well or an ice chest filled with water and a little ice is better for holding fish temporarily.

...To release lake trout taken from deep water, grasp the fish at the narrowing in front of the tail with one hand, while supporting the body from underneath the head. Then, push the fish forcefully head-first down into the water towards the bottom. It is not necessary to deflate the air bladder by squeezing or puncturing with a needle.

On the other hand, if the fish is deeply hooked, and is legal to keep, the angler should keep and utilize the fish.

Clean Vessel Act To Enhance Environment

A new federal grant program established under the Clean Vessel Act will soon make sewage management from boats easier and environmentally safer. The National Marine Manufacturers Association (NMMA) supported an amended version of the Clean Vessel legislation which not only benefits boaters with improved availability and convenience of pumpout facilities, but also ensures a cleaner and healthier aquatic environment.

Like other fertilizers, human waste contributes to algal growth and thus oxygen depletion in the water, making breathing difficult for fish and other marine species. Discharging waste into the water also introduces bacteria which can transmit diseases to swimmers and shellfish beds. Although it is illegal to discharge raw sewage into U.S. waterways, a current deficiency of pumpout facilities hinders compliance. According to a recent national survey of recreational boaters, the most important determinant in their use of pumpout stations is convenient location. In the same survey, however, boaters rated both availability and convenience of pumpouts low in all coastal state regions, outside of the Great Lake waters.

The five-year federal aid grant program to be administered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will provide boaters more places for emptying boat holding tanks and portable toilets by awarding $40 million in matching funds to states for construction of such facilities. Funding for the program will come from the Sport Fish Restoration Account of the Aquatic Resources Trust Fund, commonly referred to as the Wallop-Breaux Fund.

Rice Names Athletic Director

Brother Rice High School has named Mike Ryan as new athletic director effective July 1st. A 1981 graduate of Brother Rice, Ryan takes over for Tom Uraski '79, who remains as a teacher at the school. Ryan has been a teacher at Rice since 1990 and also dean of students, a post he accepted in 1991. Ryan takes over an athletic program that has grown tremendously under Uraski's lead. During the past school year, the Rice varsity football team went to the Prep Bowl for the first time in 13 years, the varsity track team won the Catholic League championship for the first time in 15 years and the varsity baseball team sent nine players to either the All-Catholic League or honorable mention team, including Mike Stritch, winner of the Tony Lawless Award as best player in the league. Rice baseball, including the freshman and sophomore teams went a combined 59-14-1 for the season.

MIKE RYAN

The varsity basketball team boasted all-Catholic League and area 'Player of the Year,' junior Jim Sexton during its successful 92-93 campaign. Water polo, a traditional Brother Rice winner, took second in the state. Soccer had its first All-American ever, junior Billy Savarino, who is on target to break the state's scoring record next season. In addition, Brother Rice welcomed a new program, volleyball, to its expanding sports lineup.

"I look forward to taking over and hope to continue Brother Rice's long tradition of athletic excellence," Ryan said. No stranger to "Rice Pride," Ryan was the "Crusader" mascot for the school during his days as a student.

In 1989, Ryan became the school's sophomore football coach and assistant track coach. From 1990-91, he was the school's head track coach. Upon graduating from Northern Illinois University, Ryan taught at De LaSalle Institute from 1986-1988. During that time, he was freshman football and wrestling coach, as well as defensive coordinator for varsity football. Ryan and his wife, Ellie have three children: Meghan, 4, Catherine, 3, and Patrick 2.

Football Camp

St. Rita High School, 7740 S. Western Ave., is holding its annual grammar school football camp from Monday, July 19th through Friday, July 23rd at the school's Pat Cronin Field. The camp is open to all 6th, 7th and 8th graders as well as incoming freshmen. Sessions begin at 10 a.m. and end at 12 noon. Covered during camp sessions will be basic offensive and defensive football fundamentals and skill techniques. The kicking and punting games will also be discussed as well as an introduction to weight-lifting techniques. The camp will make use of the expanded facilities at St. Rita's brand-new Doyle Stadium complex. All participants receive a camp T-shirt. The camp is a non-contact instructional camp that requires only athletic clothes and shoes.

The camp will be staffed by head coach Todd Wernet and his assistant coaches. Several varsity athletes will act as counselors. Wernet has been named the Catholic League 'Coach of the Year' twice and his teams have qualified for the state playoffs in six of the past eight years. The Mustangs have won more Catholic League titles than any other team in the 1980s and 90s.

There is a $35 fee due on the first day of camp. Participants are asked to wear athletic shoes and loose-fitting clothing. For more information, call 925-6600.

Gausman Wins Honor Award

Lewis University track standout Wileen (Willie) Gausman of Oak Lawn capped an impressive four-year career with the Flyers by winning her seventh All-America honor. Gausman claimed the honor with a sixth place finish in the 1,500-meter run at the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field National Championships in Abilene, Texas. Gausman finished the race in 4:35.27. The social work major narrowly missed an eighth award, finishing ninth in the 5,000-meter race, held just over two hours after she finished the 1,500. The top eight runners in each event are named All-America. Gausman also qualified for the national meet at 800 and 3,000 meters, but did not participate in those events.

"It would have been great to see Willie end her career with a national title, or the eighth All-America," head coach Jeff DeGraw said. "The second race so close to the 1,500 was just too much for her."

Gausman leaves Lewis as the school's most decorated runner. She was named All-American twice each for cross-country and indoor and outdoor track. She also leaves holding an incredible 15 Lewis University records including her participation on six relay teams.

"It's sad to see Willie go," DeGraw said. "She is not only a tremendous and dedicated athlete, but has been an outstanding representative of the university. It will be a long time before anybody has the impact on our program that Willie has."

Scout Night

Calling all Scouts! This Saturday, June 26th, Santa Fe Speedway hosts the 16th Annual Scout Night, which was rained out last week. All Scouts and leaders in full uniform will be admitted free on this night, sure to be fun-filled for kids of all ages. On tap are the "My Favorite Race Car" Coloring/Model Building Contest, balloons, the colorful flag parade to kick off the night's festivities and much more.

Four divisions of NASCAR stock cars are set to do battle on the quarter-mile clay oval: Late Model, Sportsman, Lightning Rod and S.T.A.R. cars. Gates open at six, time trials are at seven, the flag parade is slated for 7:30 and action will roll off the blocks at 8 p.m. In Santa Fe's top Late Model division, action has been hot and heavy in the early going with a host of former champions and veterans alike in the hunt for the NASCAR/Winston Racing Series Championship Crown.

In the top spot as we enter June is 1990 Champion, Tinley Park's Bob Pohlman, Jr., who has been red-hot, notching five feature events to his name in 1993.

Awardees

Harold L. Richards Principal Dr. Dan McAllister announced that 32 seniors have received academic fitness awards from President Bill Clinton. Recipients of the awards must maintain a 3.3 grade point average on a 4-point scale.

New Head Coach

Tom Pallardy has been named as new head basketball coach at St. Laurence High School. Pallardy succeeds Dennis Freyer who resigned after three years for personal reasons. Pallardy, who also serves as the school's head baseball coach, was pleased with the appointment.

"I'm extremely happy with this opportunity. I've learned an awful lot from many different coaches," said Pallardy, who considers himself a student of the game. "I'm hoping to put together a competitive, growing, improving program."

Pallardy accumulated a 68-59 record in the previous five years as the Vikings' sophomore coach. Prior to that, he was a varsity assistant for three years.

"The demands in coaching are great," he said. "However, with support from the people around me, I think we can get the job done. I'm looking forward to taking St. Laurence basketball to the top."

"St. Laurence has always been able to field competitive, hard-working teams," he continued. "I would like to bring back some of the fun involved with high school kids playing basketball. After all, it's a game."

"Our biggest challenge is going to be to stay competitive. The Catholic League is a very tough conference to be in. Putting quality teams on the floor is a main concern and a top priority," he said.

"We have an excellent senior class returning. There is some size and good guard play. I'm very optimistic for the upcoming season. As sophomores, these seniors went 19-8 and were very competitive against the teams in the Catholic League. I'm hoping that continues," he concluded.

Pallardy, the 1993 Catholic League Lawless Award winner as the league's top coach, is hoping that Viking basketball fortunes are headed in the same direction as that of the baseball program.

PROPOSED CHANGES IN METHODS AND STANDARDS FOR SETTING PAYMENT RATES IN MEDICAID

There are a number of changes being contemplated in the Illinois General Assembly that may affect the methods and standards for setting payment rates for long term care facilities and hospitals under the Illinois Medicaid Program. Implementation of these changes July 1, 1993, will be contingent upon final action by the General Assembly. A brief description and estimate of the decrease in annual aggregate expenditures follow.

- Calculation of the fringe benefit factor that is applied to reimbursable wages would be based on the statewide average fringe percent rather than the assigned 21 percent. The change would affect nursing facilities. Estimated fiscal impact is $8.6 million.

- For facilities for the developmentally disabled, wages would include benefits which will be based upon the average benefit percent to total salaries calculated. The estimated fiscal impact is $1.7 million.

- Change a multiplier that increases reimbursable wages from 6.2 percent to 5.5 percent. The change would affect nursing facilities. The estimated fiscal impact is $5.4 million.

- Delete health and fitness category from the Inspection of Care Program. The deletion would affect nursing facilities. The estimated fiscal impact is $5.6 million.

- Delete social services level 2 category from the Inspection of Care Program. The deletion would affect nursing facilities. The estimated fiscal impact is $5.7 million.

- If the state does not receive provider assessment revenue, or similar funding from an alternative source, in addition to the above changes, significant rate cuts may be required. The cuts would affect nursing facilities and facilities for the developmentally disabled.

- If the state does not receive provider assessment revenue, or similar funding from an alternative source, significant hospital reimbursement rate cuts may be required.

If any person or entity wishes to comment on these changes, they may do so by sending comments to:

Ribbon-Cutting

Governor Jim Edgar shares the ribbon-cutting ceremonies with Chief Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford marking the opening of the Expedited Child Support offices on the 14th floor of the 32 W. Randolph Building in Chicago recently.

The program, featuring nine hearing officers and four judges, will hear IV-D cases in one downtown Chicago location, ensuring an efficient team operation. Last year there were over 104,000 cases heard in the various Parentage Courts throughout the county. The program is jointly funded by the federal government and the state.

Bank Uses Recycled Paper

The First National Bank of Chicago announced that the checks it provides to its retail customers are now printed on recycled paper.

"First Chicago has an on-going commitment to implement recycling programs wherever possible," said W.G. Jurgensen, executive vice president and head of First Chicago's Community Banking Group.

"We use recycled paper for our brochures and our annual report, and a year ago we started recycling checks for those customers who participate in our CopyCheck program. By issuing checks made from recycled paper, we are giving our customers the knowledge that First Chicago cares about the environment."

First Chicago will absorb the additional cost for recycled checks. The first check styles printed on recycled paper are the Skyline wallet, Skyline duplicate and the safety paper checks, which make up more than 80% of First Chicago's annual check order volume, or about 60 million checks.

"To understand how many checks that represents, just place the 60 million checks end-to-end, and that will reach around the world from Chicago to Shanghai, China," Jurgensen said. "By using recycled checks, we will save 62.5 tons of paper annually, or approximately 400 trees."

First Chicago is the first commercial bank in metropolitan Chicago to offer checks made from recycled paper. The checks are manufactured by the John H. Harland Company. Additionally, the cardboard boxes used for mailing checks are made of recycled paper, and the vinyl checkbook covers are produced in an environmentally sound fashion.

"The next time you receive a new batch of checks from First Chicago, look for the familiar recycle symbol which will appear just to the right of your name and address," Jurgensen added.

The First National Bank of Chicago, a subsidiary of First Chicago Corporation, has more than 70 locations throughout the metropolitan area. Its branches in the downtown area and in the city's south and south suburban communities are located at One First National Plaza; 35 W. Wacker Dr.; Dearborn Station; 4730 W. 79th St.; 4363 S. Archer; 8340 S. Kedzie; 6245 S. Western Ave.; in Little Village, Pilsen, Burbank, Oak Lawn, Orland Park, Worth, and Lansing. First Chicago offers a complete line of financial products and services.

Entry fee for the tournament is $150 per team which covers the cost of officials, awards and refreshments.

The alumni softball tournament is a great event that brings together St. Rita graduates from many different class years to compete against one another on the field and, more importantly, to have fun sharing memories of their days at St. Rita," said Jim Segredo, director of development/alumni.

There is a 15-player limit for each team. First and second place finishers will receive awards. Team entry forms, rosters and fees must be received by July 8th. After the tournament, there will be a gathering for all participants and their families on the school grounds.

This year's tournament will again be held on the school's campus at 77th and Western. Teams should arrive early to warm up and register for the event.

"GOOD DAY CHICAGO" DEBUTS.....One wakes up with so many questions---What's the weather like? What did the Cubs and White Sox do? What's happening in local politics and how did Chicago survive another night of crime? These and many other questions will be addressed beginning this coming Monday, June 28, when viewers will be able to prepare for the day ahead by watching a brand new, fast-paced local morning newscast, "Good Day Chicago," which will be aired weekdays from 6 to 9 am on WFLD-TV. Hosting the new show will be Darryl Dennard, Marianne Murciano and David Rose. Walter Jacobson, principal anchor on the station's 9 pm newscast, will offer his timely commentaries on issues of the day.....Meanwhile, Carol Maria and Channel 5 have finally come to terms on a new multi-year contract. The NBC owned and operated station also has announced that Mark Suppelsa will join Channel 5 News as weekend anchor and reporter beginning sometime in July.

REBECCA DEMORNAY (inset) stars with Don Johnson in the runaway motion picture hit "Guilty as Sin," playing at local movie theatres all over the Chicago area.....Arnold Schwarzenegger has never lost a battle in the war against crime. As a Los Angeles police sergeant, "the terminator" keeps his streak alive in the flick "Last Action Hero" which is picking up a lot of the going out action at movie houses all over the Chicago area....Tom Hanks, Meg Ryan and Ross Malinger star in the romantic comedy, "Sleepless in Seattle," which opens at movie theatres all over the Chicago area tomorrow.

PAUL ANKA, the talented singer and songwriter, will appear in concert for four shows only opening July 22 at Drury Lane Oakbrook Terrace. It is hard to believe, but Anka is celebrating his 35th year in show business this year....Goodman Theatre Associate Artistic Director Michael Magglo has announced that Goodman Artistic Director Robert Falls will stage Tennessee Williams' classic, "The Night of the Iguana," as the third play of the Goodman's 1993/94 Mainstage series with the play set to open on March 4 of next year. "Dancing at Lughnasa" will be the first play in the series and is set to open on September 17 and run through October 23 of this year. "Richard II" will open next January 14 and "A Little Night Music" will round out the series running from June 17 through July 24.

OBA BABATUNDE, LARRY MILLER, KATHLEEN TURNER AND DENNIS QUAID (inset) star in MGM's adventure comedy, "Undercover Blues," which is set for release next month....Prompted by the success of early test screenings, Universal Pictures is moving up the release of John Woo's "Hard Target" to August 20 to maximize summer play time for the action thriller starring Jean-Claude Van Damme.

HERE 'N THERE.....A lot of people are wondering how many of the 535 members of Congress will take up the offer made by the Major League Baseball owners to buy tickets to this year's All-Star game in Baltimore. The tickets are all out in left field, but that's where Washington politicians spend most of their time anyway.....Anyone who has ever watched a sporting event will probably remember "The Rainbow Man." He was the guy who would always manage to get himself situated somewhere where the cameras would pick him up with his brightly colored "rainbow hair" and hoisting aloft his "John 3:16" sign. Well, Rollen Frederick Stewart, 48, probably won't be seen on TV for awhile because he was recently convicted of holding a motel maid hostage for nine hours while he could explain "the love of God" to her. The Los Angeles Superior Court jury found Stewart guilty of counts stemming from the incident at the Hyatt Hotel near Los Angeles International Airport.

Awards

The recent announcement by the National Safety Council that 14 bus operators were winners of their million mile award, marks an impressive 16 million miles of safe driving for Pace, the suburban bus service. Charles Epps, from Pace's South Division, Markham and Bernardine Kernats from Southwest Division, Oak Lawn, are two million-mile winners.

This nationally recognized award for professional drivers requires the bus operator drive a million miles, or approximately 12 and a half years, without a preventable accident.

Pace bus operators have achieved this award despite facing challenges such as hazardous weather conditions and increasing suburban congestion, while at the same time ensuring passengers safety and satisfaction. Drivers are responsible for traveling along 234 routes in more than 230 communities in a region 15 times the city of Chicago. Even so, the additional 14 drivers brings Pace's total million mile award winners to 195.

Poster Contest Winner

Secretary of State George H. Ryan announced that Kevin Lomonof of Oak Lawn is among the winners of the eighth annual bicycle safety poster contest. Kevin, an eight year old second grader at St. Germaine School, placed second in the kindergarten through second grade category. The contest is sponsored by Ryan's office and Trek USA.

"With summer just around the corner, bicycles will soon fill our streets," Ryan said. "It's important for motorists to drive defensively and watch out for bicyclists, especially children."

In 1991, there were over 4,800 bicycle accidents in Illinois, resulting in 27 fatalities. Forty-five percent of the injuries and 29 percent of the fatalities involved children aged 5 to 14.

Ryan urged parents to discuss safe bicycling habits and skills with their children, noting that bicyclists must observe the same traffic safety laws as motorists. Bicycle 'Rules of the Road' manuals are available at all driver's license facilities. Ryan said that parents should also make sure that their children wear approved safety helmets when riding.

The poster contest was open to students in kindergarten through eighth grade. Each school forwarded its winning entries to the secretary of state's office for judging.

POLICE CALLS

The following incidents were listed in the official reports of the Oak Lawn Police Department. Readers are reminded that an arrest by police does not constitute a finding of guilt and only a court of law can make that determination.

He completed painting the exterior and interior of her home and on the 11th, DeWitt went out for some food and returned at approximately 10 p.m. Five minutes after he returned, DeWitt left the house and the victim noticed her keys and vehicle were missing. Her husband suggested they wait before notifying the police and after 12 hours, DeWitt returned the Chrysler LeBaron on the 13th. No further action was taken.

Robert A. Michaels of Chicago Ridge reported that someone had taken a brown leather case containing several items of jewelry from his car parked at the Oak Lawn Hilton, 9333 S. Cicero. Officer James Martin, who had answered the call, remembered that he picked up a brown leather case containing jewelry, found in the McDonald's restaurant at 9128 S. Cicero. Michaels came to the station to see if it was his property. He gave a detailed description of the contents. Michaels pointed out that items were still missing and it was determined he was in the Oak Lawn restaurant with his car parked outside when the burglary took place. THE CHIROPRACTIC X-RAY

If your examination includes an x-ray, there are usually two important reasons why a doctor of chiropractic will do this.

First, he wants to be sure there are no complications in your case that might prevent or delay recovery. Using the x-ray picture, he can see if there are any obvious signs of fractures, malformations, or diseases present. This helps him decide whether to accept or refer your case.

If there's nothing present to prevent the results you're seeking, he'll look for the cause of your condition and determine how it can be corrected. His prime area of search is for misalignments of the spinal vertebrae. Any pressure or irritation to the nerves within the spine or as they leave the spine may cause health problems in other parts of your body, depending where the affected nerves extend.

Through a gentle chiropractic adjustment he can correct any misalignment and remove the nerve pressures and irritations that are causing problems. This can relieve the pain without recourse to drugs or surgery.

If you have any health questions please feel free to call our office.

New Plate Review

Secretary of State George H. Ryan recently called on his newly-appointed License Plate Task Force to recommend policies for licensing the 8 million vehicles registered with his office.

"Some major questions have been raised over the past few years about the Illinois license plate," Ryan told the 20-member task force at its initial meeting in the state Capitol.

"These aren't questions that should be answered in a piecemeal fashion because each of them has implications for the state treasury, law enforcement, traffic safety and other organizations.

"I'm looking to this group to hear those concerns and to develop a comprehensive, wide-ranging policy that will create a framework for future decisions on license plates."

One of the key issues before the group will be whether the state should undertake a program to replace the license plate now on 6.3 million passenger cars registered in Illinois.

When originally created in 1984, the multi-year passenger car plate was designed for five years' use. By next year, however, nearly 20 percent of all passenger plates in use will be more than 8 years old.

Also on the table will be questions about the proliferation of special license plates, fees charged for personalized and vanity plates and whether vehicle dealers should be allowed to use a single license plate.

The task force will be headed by former state Rep. Manny Hoffman, a longtime agent for State Farm Insurance Co.

"Manny comes into this process with no preconceived notions about what our state licensing policy should be," Ryan said.

"As a former state representative, he understands the process, and I think he will be a very effective consensus builder."

Stormy Weather

Another round of heavy thunderstorms came through the southwest suburbs over the past weekend. Most of the problems were experienced in Oak Lawn.

According to Oak Lawn Mayor Ernie Kolb, "There have been some power outages in the northwest section of the village. It started at around 3 a.m. Monday. At least there hasn't been any mass flooding this time."

Kolb added, "Some streets have been filled with water, but the power outages are the most important problem. This weather is getting a little scary. It never seems to stop. It just keeps coming."

Make Dean's List

Joanne C. Limber and William P. Stalker, both of Oak Lawn, have received recognition on the Dean's List for the spring semester at Bradley University, Peoria.

Faculty Award

Timothy Mulcahy, son of Kathy and Tim Mulcahy of Oak Lawn, was honored with the Marist High School Faculty Award at the 1993 graduation ceremony. Library Friends

The Friends of the Oak Lawn Library organization is looking for people who are interested in supporting the library by becoming members. According to Dorothy Bergstrom, president, proceeds from membership fees are a vital part of the group's fundraising.

"Most of our members serve by sending in their dues and enjoying the bonuses that go with that including, but not limited to, $2 discounts on trip reservations, preview admission to the annual book sale and informative letters two or three times each year," Bergstrom said.

She noted that the Friends Board of Directors takes care of monthly business and the planning of activities. Members interested in becoming involved are invited to attend board meetings. Also, many members volunteer annually to assist at the four-day book sale which is the group's major source of funds.

Since there is no paid staff, all proceeds raised by the Friends are used to support the library and its services. Since its inception 15 years ago, the organization has furnished supplies, equipment, programs, activities, artwork, landscaping, materials and a variety of other contributions amounting to more than $100,000.

Friends of the Oak Lawn Library is a not-for-profit state-chartered organization. Its officers are elected at the annual membership dinner-meeting in June of each year.

For additional information about membership, contact Evelyn Stanton at 424-3360; for trip information, Jeanette Fowler at 636-5018 (evenings); and for general information, Mary Nelson at 422-4990.

The Federal Home Loan Bank of Chicago announced that Southwest Federal Savings & Loan Association of Chicago is the recipient of its Community Support Service award for Illinois. The award ceremony was held on June 8th in the Southwest Federal corporate offices, 3525 W. 63rd St. The award recognizes outstanding achievements in Community Support activities.

Southwest Federal has received an 'outstanding' rating under the Community Reinvestment Act (CRA). The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) recognized its management's extensive involvement with housing organizations and nonprofit groups in meeting the credit needs of the community, Board of Directors involvement, its active involvement in Home Loan Bank of Chicago leading programs, and noted that the company solicited loans from all segments of the community with significant lending being made in low and moderate income areas.

Southwest Federal spearheaded the development of 64 units of housing for low income elderly households in the Marquette Park area. It worked with the Greater Southwest Development Corporation and recruited other lenders to form a consortium to serve as applicants for financing the project using the Federal Home Loan Bank's Affordable Housing Program (AHP) funds.

Southwest Federal also became one of the bank's early and frequent borrowers of low cost Community Investment Program (CIP) funds to finance rehabilitation of a mixed use residential-commercial building by a minority owner-contractor; to finance new construction of single family housing in the area; and was the first to use the bank's CIP letter of credit to collateralize the State Treasurer's linked deposit program to make loans to low and moderate income families.

$1 Million Appropriated For I & M Canal

Congressman Bill Lipinski (D-3) is pleased to announce the appropriation of $1 million for capital improvements to the Illinois and Michigan Canal National Heritage Corridor. The appropriation was included in the Energy and Water Development Appropriations bill passed by the House of Representatives.

"With passage of this legislation, the House has demonstrated its commitment to protecting a valuable natural resource," said Lipinski. "I am pleased that I was able to secure funding which brings federal dollars home to Chicago and the entire state of Illinois."

The I&M Canal Corridor was designated by Congress in 1984. It was the first "partnership park" of its kind and is now a model for such parks throughout the nation. Federal funds are appropriated to the Army Corps of Engineers for planning of capital improvement projects as authorized by the Water Resources Development Act of 1992. As a result, the federal government will now contribute 50 percent of the cost of selected planning projects.

Following years of continued effort by the Illinois Congressional delegation, Lipinski has ensured that the necessary steps are being taken to preserve this treasure for future generations. This legislation marks the first time Congress has appropriated federal funds on the I&M Canal Corridor projects and follows Lipinski's successful 1992 effort to authorize funding in the Water Resources Development Act.

The I&M Canal Heritage Corridor runs through the city of Chicago and extends to LaSalle/Peru.

"The projects which this appropriation will fund are critical for the survival of the corridor. The I&M Canal has been included on the federal government's list of endangered landmarks. I am pleased that by our action Congress is allowing the Army Corps of Engineers to solve a long-standing problem and make a tremendous contribution to Illinois. I hope that our work with the Corps on these projects will be a model for future arrangements for partnership parks throughout the country."

Pay CEO's For Performance

The editors at Commerce Clearing House (CCH), the leading tax law publisher, have noted that public debate over executive compensation has worked its way into various versions of the 1993 tax legislation. In current House and Senate versions of the tax bill, publicly-traded corporations will be denied a business deduction for executive compensation, primarily salary and benefits, exceeding $1 million. The bills define those affected as the chief executive officer and the next four highest compensated officers in a company.

"Executive compensation is a high profile issue and shareholders in particular have been very vocal when CEOs receive compensation that appears to outpace their corporation's performance," said Martin Bush, managing editor, federal tax reporting group, CCH. "The legislation could push corporations to tie executive pay more closely to performance and give independent shareholders more control over setting performance goals."

In both bills before the House and Senate, the deduction limitation would apply to compensation for services and the cash value of other remuneration, such as benefits.

A closer look at the details seems to indicate Congress is stressing pay for performance, according to Bush.

"The proposed legislation excludes certain types of compensation. For example, dollars paid to executives who meet one or more performance goals is not taken into account when determining corporate deductions," said Bush. "However, it lays out strict guidelines for how those performance goals will be set, allowing independent shareholders and outside directors to play a major role in determining those goals."

Other compensation that won't be taken into account includes: compensation paid in the form of commissions directly related to the individual performance, payments to a tax-qualified retirement plan and amounts excludable from the executive's gross pay, such as employer-provided health benefits.

CCH is the leading publisher of tax and business law information. Among the 300 publications published annually by its 1,200-person editorial staff are "Tax Day," "Standard Federal Tax Reporter" and "U.S. Master Tax Guide." In addition, the company continually tracks and publishes, within 24 hours, tax legislation from the House and Senate.

'Buckle-Up' Winner

First Lady Brenda Edgar announced that Alan Howard is the winner of a statewide "Buckle Up" poster contest promoting safety seat and safety belt use. The event is sponsored by the Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT), traffic safety division in cooperation with the Illinois State Board of Education, educational service regions.

"I am excited to see such interest in safety awareness by so many young people," Mrs. Edgar said. "The enthusiasm generated by this contest is a tribute to the awareness of these children and to the safety programs in our state."

The winning entry features a young man climbing into a pick-up truck with the message "Don't Forget to Buckle Up!!!"

Howard, a fourth-grader, and his family were brought to Springfield through funds provided by AAA Chicago Motor Club. His first prize of $100, donated by the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police, was awarded during a reception at the executive mansion.

The poster design will be duplicated for outdoor sign use, and the Outdoor Advertising Association of Illinois, Inc. will post the winning entry on donated signs throughout the state. In addition, Howard's poster will be part of a traffic safety calendar planned for 1994.

The contest ties in with Mrs. Edgar's "Help Me Grow" campaign for children, a public/private partnership with Ronald McDonald Children's Charities. The First Lady's program highlights seven areas of prevention and provides a toll-free number, 1-(800)-323-GROW, for parents to call for information about state programs and services in each area. The area currently being highlighted is child safety.

"Buckling up is important to growing up healthy and safe," Mrs. Edgar said. "Alan's message will remind people, especially young people, to buckle up every time they travel."

The poster contest was developed as part of a campaign to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the child passenger protection act. All fourth grade students in the state were invited to participate because most were born the year the law took effect. More than 225 entries were received from around the state.

Burris Warns On Flooding Repair Scams

By Attorney General Roland W. Burris

Q. Due to the recent spring flooding, I had quite a bit of damage done to my recreation room and need to hire a home repair contractor to do some work. What is the best way to go about finding a reputable contractor and how can I protect myself from being ripped off?

A. Avoid doing business with door-to-door salesmen or repairmen who solicit for business over the telephone. Instead, obtain referrals from family members, friends or neighbors who have had similar work performed. Ask potential contractors for references on previously completed jobs and call people to see how satisfied they were with the job. Be suspicious if a contractor cannot or will not give references.

Also, make sure that the contractor you choose is insured by requesting that a certificate of insurance be sent directly to you from the contractor's insurance agent.

Always obtain a written contract and make sure the contract contains the name, phone number and address of the contractor. Read the contract carefully before signing and make sure it includes start and finish dates for the work to be performed. Do not pay the full amount until all the work has been completed, including the cleanup.

Cabinet Status Good For EPA

By Dr. Richard L. Leisher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Elevation of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to cabinet status, which now seems a foregone conclusion, denotes a coming of age for the environmental movement, and with that transition comes much more objective scrutiny by the news media.

For more years than I care to remember, the business community waged a lonely battle for application of common sense to environmental regulation. We contended that environmental rules and policies should be based on sound science and objective cost benefit analysis. Most of the time, we saw our most objective arguments casually dismissed as self-serving efforts to avoid costs associated with environmental cleanup.

Given this one-sided nature of the debate, it is not surprising that our government has embarked upon many ill-conceived environmental crusades that have consumed vast resources while producing little benefit. In some extreme cases, such as the nationwide asbestos removal program, our best efforts have served primarily to create hazards where none existed before. We now know that the evacuations of Love Canal, New York, and Times Beach, Missouri, were unnecessary. President Clinton has expressed indignation that more Superfund money goes to pay lawyers than to clean up hazardous waste dumps. Time after time the public has been panicked by alleged dangers, such as Alar on apples, which later proved to be mostly illusion.

Fortunately, the criticisms of such foolishness by business groups and think tanks over these many years are at last receiving a fair, and most favorable, treatment by the press. Earlier this spring, The New York Times ran a series of four hard-hitting articles, prominent on the front page, acknowledging many of the wasteful follies carried out in the name of environmentalism. A few weeks later, The Washington Post weighed in with an in-depth analysis of the great global warming scenario, also on the front page, which concluded that most scientists now deem concern about global warming to be greatly exaggerated.

Given the influence of the Times and the Post and the prominence they accorded these stories, it is fair to infer a sea change in the making regarding environmental coverage. This is not to suggest the news media will abandon its longstanding advocacy of environmental causes, anymore than the public will abandon legitimate concern for the ecosystems we live in, or business will abandon its traditional leadership in developing effective pollution controls.

Rather, these reports denote a maturing of the news media references to cartoonish 'anti-environment' forces, whose existence has never been established, and less willingness to promote panics in response to pleas from well-meaning but ill-informed celebrities.

From now on, environmental groups and government agencies will be required to provide hard evidence to justify expensive regulatory initiatives, and to respond to heard questions from regulated industries. This exercise will prove educational for them and beneficial for the rest of us.

Autodesk Awards

Moraine Valley Community College was recently honored with five awards at the eighth annual Autodesk, Inc. Authorized Training Center Managers Meeting. The college's AutoCAD authorized training center received awards in the categories of instruction, curriculum, facilities & equipment, enrollment, and overall performance. In the category of enrollment, Moraine Valley's center was ranked number one in the United States, training approximately 800 industry professionals during the past year.

Moraine Valley is the only college in the United States to win all five awards along with the highest enrollment ranking.

"It is truly an honor for Moraine Valley to receive these awards," said J. C. Malitzke, assistant professor of drafting at MVCC. "Our success is a team effort from everyone involved; the administration, directors, managers, marketing, instructors and technicians."

Since the awards were established by Autodesk in 1989, Moraine Valley has received awards each year.

Senator Simon Says Thanks To George Bush

By U.S. Sen. Paul Simon

I have sent the following letter to former President George Bush:

Dear Mr. President:

This is a letter of gratitude.

You and I do not share the same political party and we have differed on some things over the years, though we have also worked together on issues.

The large majority of American troops that were in Somalia have now returned, and it is a good time to thank you for the decision you made to intervene. Historians may regard it as your finest hour, for never before in world history has such a large military operation been launched for the sole purpose of saving human lives.

In mid-November, Sen. Howard Metzenbaum and I were in Somalia, in a nation without a government, ruled by chaos, in which I saw slow death by starvation everywhere. I have seen grim things around the world, but never like this, and I hope I never see anything like this again. More than 350,000 people already had starved to death and another two million were on the brink of starvation.

It would have been the largest mass starvation in any nation since the Irish famine of the 1840's.

I returned from Somalia on a Sunday evening. On Monday morning I called United Nations Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali and Secretary of State Larry Eagleburger, urging immediate action. I would have called you but you were in Connecticut attending the funeral of your mother. I urged the Secretary of State to call the UN Secretary General and to talk to you when you got back. He did both, and you asked Larry Eagleburger to fly to New York to discuss the situation with Boutros-Ghali.

That Thursday you called a meeting at the White House that included about a dozen people, including the Secretary of State, Vice-President Dan Quayle, Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney, General Colin Powell, two House members and Sen. Hank Brown of Colorado and myself.

Everyone did not agree on what should be done, nor on the length of time American troops would have to remain if they went. Clearly there were risks. If there were no risks, it would not have been necessary to use the military.

Ultimately the decision rested on your shoulders. After having lost an election, with a new President coming in soon, it would have been easy to do nothing and hand the decision to Bill Clinton. But tens of thousands of additional lives would have been lost in the interim.

You made the tough decision - and the right one.

Eight American servicemen lost their lives. We all mourn that loss, but their families should find consolation in knowing the great humanitarian mission they performed in their final days. They helped to save two million lives.

I am sure there are moments when you look back on your presidency and wish you might have done this or that differently. But one of the decisions which should give you and all Americans pride is using U.S. troops so effectively to save lives. In a few days after that Thursday meeting, the first American troops arrived there. And without your leadership, it would not have happened. No other nation could have performed that function.

Give my greetings to Barbara. I am sure she shares the pride I have for what you did.

Sincerely,
Paul Simon
United States Senator

Floods

It was reported by a spokesman for Governor Jim Edgar that the state will not ask President Clinton to declare the sites of this month's flooding as federal disaster areas. This action would disqualify flood victims from federal grants.

The Small Business Administration will provide uninsured homeowners with some relief in the form of 4 to 8 percent loans.

The ruling came after the Chicago City Council's budget committee approved a resolution to seek a disaster declaration which would have provided low-income flood victims with the federal grants. It was pointed out that low-income residents might not be able to repay the small interest required by the SBA loans.

Mike Lawrence, Edgar's spokesman, stated that state officials thought that the flood damage did not warrant federal assistance. He said the Illinois Emergency Management Agency (IEMA), the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and Chicago officials agreed that the SBA loans and the state-disaster declaration were sufficient.

Holiday Hours

All Secretary of State offices and facilities will be closed for Independence Day, Secretary of State George H. Ryan announced. The holiday is observed by all state agencies.

Driver Services facilities outside Cook County, which normally are open Tuesday through Saturday, will be closed Saturday, July 3rd and will reopen Tuesday, July 6th. The Chicago West, Midlothian and Niles facilities in Cook County, now open Tuesday through Saturday, also will be closed July 3rd and resume business July 6th.

Other offices and facilities will be closed Monday, July 5th and will reopen Tuesday, July 6th. The only exception is the Ford City facility in Chicago, open seven days a week in the Ford City Mall. That facility will close at 5 p.m. instead of 8 p.m. on Monday, July 5th.

Questions On Clinton Health Care Plan

By Congressman Harris W. Fawell
13th District

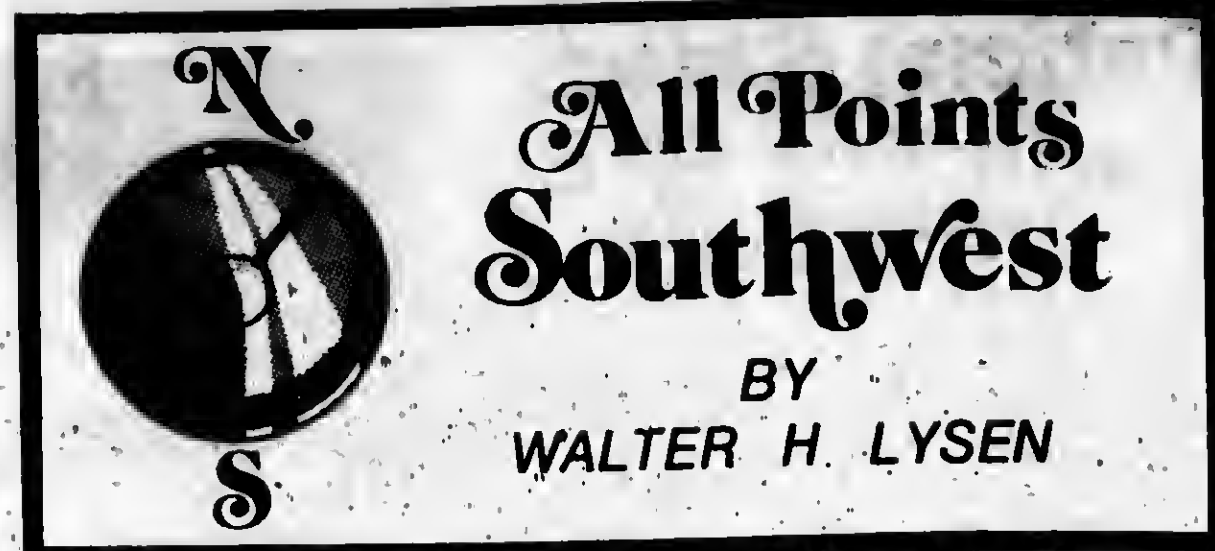

The Clinton Administration's new health care policy is still being written. Only a few of the details are out but the catch word is "managed competition," a concept being presented as the solution to our health care problems. Few average Americans truly understand this reform model. So far, discussions among policymakers and lawmakers have been conducted in a language that sounds mysterious and abstract. After all the months of serious talk on the subject of "managed competition," there are still many questions.

The "managed competition" concept is based on the idea that the government can decrease health care costs by offering doctors, hospitals and insurers incentives to work together in partnerships called Authorized Health Plans (AHPs). This is to be the health delivery group through which almost every citizen would receive health care coverage. The program would include coverage for the estimated 37 million currently uninsured.

Acceptance into an AHP would be mandated at a uniform premium, regardless of one's past or present medical condition. That is, low health risks would subsidize, to an extent, high health risks. Persons living under the poverty level would be fully subsidized by the federal government.

To guarantee purchasers could assess the price and quality of different competing plans, a single intermediary group called a Health Insurance Purchasing Cooperative (HIPC) would be established in a region. By selecting qualified AHPs and providing quality, cost and choice information to consumers, the HIPC would "manage" the market. Most employers and individuals buying coverage on their own would go through the HIPC.

Large employers of more than 1,000 would be able to go directly to one of possibly three regional AHPs. Membership in a HIPC is also expected to be mandated. In addition, price controls could be superimposed upon the authorized health plans.

The Evergreen Park Independence Day Parade steps off at 6:15 p.m. on Friday, July 2nd. The event has historical significance, not only as the beginning of the Centennial Celebration of the incorporation of the community, but as the 25th annual Independence Day Parade in the village. The first parade chairman was Anthony Vacco, who became mayor later that year and has been the mayor of Evergreen Park ever since. He celebrates his silver anniversary as chief executive officer of the village later this year.

The parade is not only a testimonial to the continued health of the village but a tribute to Vacco for his effective leadership. Vacco is recognized by his peers as the number one mayor in the Southwest area as evidenced by his tenure as president of the Southwest Council of Mayors and by leaders throughout the state as an effective leader when he was chosen president of the Illinois Municipal League a few years ago.

ALL POINTS salutes Evergreen Park, its fine Mayor, village officials and residents on 100 years of progress as this great community moves into its second century. The Centennial slogan sums it up... "Cherishing Our Past: Nurturing Our Future."

Illinois license plates, which have not been changed for nine years, are to be reviewed by a 20-member task force concerned with re-designing the plates. Secretary of State George Ryan appointed Manny Hoffman, former Mayor of Homewood and State Representative as chairman of the group. The only 'untouchable' on the plates is the "Land of Lincoln" slogan, legally a part of Illinois license plates since 1954.

"It's time to redesign and replace the almost indestructible plates, originally made to last five years but now nine years old," Ryan said.

Ryan added that all aspects of the plate, other than the Lincoln slogan, are expected to be reviewed, color, design, shape and size including 'vanity' or personalized plates.

License fees now produce approximately $600 million annually and are used for roadbuilding. Considerable revenue can be expected if the number of specialty plates is increased. Drivers are assessed more for the 'vanity' or personalized plates.

A National Health Board (NHB) would be required to approve the creation of an AHP, much as the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) approves new stock issuances. The NHB would 'police' the AHPs and define basic health policy and minimum benefits that must be provided by AHPs which might go beyond the minimum benefits and offer a plan that includes, for example, prescription drugs. The delivery of health care would occur through the AHPs, which would operate in partnership with health care providers somewhat along the lines of HMOs (health maintenance organizations) or PPOs (preferred provider organizations) or some other type of managed care arrangement.

As one can easily see, this is a costly total reorganization of the health care system. It will alter the way we currently spend 14 percent of the gross national product (GNP), in 1992 dollars, more than $800 billion dollars. It could also alter how people choose their health care providers.

The new system is designed to reduce leverage that both the insurance and medical industries have over prices and benefits. At this point we don't know if "managed competition" is an answer or an illusion to the galloping health care costs facing this nation. It's just one of many proposed solutions which will be considered by Congress this session.

Township's New Hours

Worth Township Clerk Thomas "Bud" Gavin announced that new hours for the township offices have been implemented by the supervisor and board of trustees.

Gavin stated a motion was made and duly passed at the regular meeting on Thursday, June 24th eliminating Thursday evening hours. The new hours for the service offices are Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; there will be no evening or Saturday hours until further notice.

Patient Cured

A 57 year old Australian returned home recently a new man. While in America for a Bible convention in Harvey, Errit Petrusma was cured of a potentially life-threatening heart condition by doctors at EHS Christ Hospital and Medical Center, Oak Lawn. But what makes this story even more interesting are the circumstances that led him to EHS Christ Hospital, one of few Chicago-area hospitals with the technology to cure him.

Since age 18, Petrusma had suffered periodic episodes of heart palpitations caused by a condition known as supraventricular tachycardia. His heart's normal rhythm would suddenly speed out of control. There was not enough time between beats for the heart's chambers to fill with blood. So although the heart would pump ferociously, not enough blood was being circulated, which could be fatal.

Flying to Chicago, Petrusma felt this familiar racing of his heart, but he passed it off as excitement. On the Tri-State bus ride from O'Hare International Airport to his hotel in Harvey, however, Petrusma's heart sped out of control. He became extremely dizzy and nearly fainted. The bus driver radioed ahead for an ambulance, which met the bus.

Petrusma was rushed to EHS Christ Hospital with a heart rate over 200 beats per minute. There, cardiologists Pierre Abi-Mansour, M.D., and A. Tom Petropoulos, M.D., determined that Petrusma was an ideal candidate for radio frequency catheter ablation. Using this recently-developed non-surgical procedure, physicians can cure patients experiencing severe tachycardia and eliminate the need for any future treatment.

Understanding that he was at constant risk of sudden cardiac death without it, Petrusma chose to have the condition corrected. One day later he was able to return to the Bible convention completely cured of the heart problem he'd had for nearly 40 years.

A final interesting twist: On his way home, Petrusma was greeted by a familiar face when he boarded the Tri-State bus to the airport—Tyrone Delagarza, the same driver who had called an ambulance to take him to the hospital one week earlier.

Two Sworn-In

Acting Chief Circuit Court Judge Donald P. O'Connell (right) administers the oath of office to Sharon Shapiro and George Sullivan as the Director & Assistant Director, respectively, of the court's Expedited Child Support Program. Shapiro & Sullivan will direct eight hearing offices—all attorneys—in a centralized downtown Chicago location. The program, jointly funded by the federal government and the state of Illinois, is designed to speed up payments for child support and to prevent women from going on welfare.

Observing the ceremony, held in the Daley Center, are Thomas F. Cunningham (left), Executive Officer, and Jeffrey M. Arnold, Administrative Director of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Judge O'Connell was filling in for Chief Circuit Court Judge Harry G. Comerford who was out of town.

"Voter registration is a fast and simple process that will only take a few minutes time," Commissioner Hubbard said. "It's a convenient way for unregistered persons to qualify to vote in next year's elections."

To register, two pieces of identification are needed, one with a home address.

For further information, Chicagoans can call the election board at 269-7900.

"TO CONTROL BENEFIT COSTS IN PLACES LIKE KENTUCKY AND TENNESSEE, THERE'S NOTHING LIKE AN INSURANCE COMPANY FROM ILLINOIS."

MICHAEL R. SEIBOLD, SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT, MARKETING

Let's say you're headquartered in Illinois. But, to lower operating costs, you've moved manufacturing or distribution to a rural location in the South or Midwest. Who's going to keep an eye on your benefit costs away from home? Who'll make sure the quality of care and the service your people get is what it should be?

The answer to both questions is Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Illinois.

And the key is local control.

Through our affiliated Blue Cross plans, we'll give you access to more provider networks than anyone else. We'll put you on a single claims system. And we'll bring advanced managed care cost controls right down to the local level."

WHEN YOU HAVE BLUE CROSS, YOU HAVE IT ALL.

- ☐ Local cost and quality control through our national network of affiliated Blue Cross plans.
- ☐ Money-saving PPO networks in 90% of US cities with more than 100,000 population.
- ☐ Efficient claims administration and responsive customer service.

WE HAVE IT ALL.

Centennial Parade Is Hailed

The first Evergreen Park Independence Day Parade in 1968 marked the Diamond Anniversary of the incorporation of the village. The 1993 edition, marking the Centennial Celebration of the incorporation, is the 25th straight at which Francis X. Gallagher has served as general chairman. Other milestones during this Centennial Year are the 100th year the Sisters of Little Company of Mary established the Order in the United States; the 100th year of the establishment of the first church in Evergreen Park, the First United Methodist Church. It is the 25th year Mayor Anthony Vacco has been chief executive officer of the village.

In addition to Gallagher's role as general chairman, Dennis Duffy is parade chairman and the event is co-sponsored by the village and the chamber of commerce. Units step off at 6:15 p.m. from 95th and Pulaski, continue east on 95th to Francisco, then north to 91st where they disband. The slogan for the Centennial is also the chamber of commerce and parade slogan, "Cherishing Our Past: Nurturing Our Future."

Judges are to be stationed along the parade route and there is to be no stopping for special routines at the reviewing stand, 95th and Utica. Performance of the units is to be assessed along the parade route and in case of ties in judging, duplicate prizes will be awarded. Trophies, ribbons and awards are scheduled to be presented at the "ForEver Green" Historical Pageant performance on Saturday, July 10th.

At dusk, everyone is invited to view the spectacular fireworks display at Duffy Park, 91st and Millard, also featuring a command performance by the Imperial Youth Band. In addition, a party with sandwiches, refreshments and dancing is planned at the Evergreen Park American Legion Post No. 854, 9701 Kedzie, beginning immediately after the parade.

"Don't miss the Centennial Parade," says Chairman Gallagher. "It is going to be the 'best ever' and great weather is guaranteed."

The Centennial Headquarters, which is open from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, has extended hours on Friday, July 2nd. The HQ is to be open all evening during the course of the parade for the convenience of shoppers. Centennial memorabilia including T-shirts, sweatshirts, coffee mugs, 'stock certificates,' keychains, buttons, caps, etc. are available for purchase.

Chamber Asks Denial Of IEPA Appeal

The Illinois Environmental Regulatory Group, an affiliate of the Illinois Chamber, today filed a statement with the Illinois Supreme Court urging the court to deny a petition for leave to appeal filed by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA) in the case of Grigoleit Company vs. IEPA.

In Grigoleit, the Illinois Court of Appeals ruled in favor of Grigoleit and asked that sanctions be imposed against the IEPA. The basic issue is whether the IEPA must obey an order of the Illinois Pollution Control Board, or if it can act independently of that order. The board ordered the agency to issue an operating permit to the company after a successful appeal of the agency's denial of that permit. The agency refused to issue the permit; Grigoleit appealed to the board again. The board ordered the agency to grant the permit, but did not impose sanctions against the agency.

The Appellate Court unanimously ruled in favor of Grigoleit and remanded the case to the board to impose sanctions against the agency. Now the agency wishes to have the Supreme Court again review the issue.

"The primary concern to the chamber is one of certainty," stated Sally A. Jackson, chamber president and CEO. "The business community must know that a final decision of the agency can be appealed to the board, and that a regulated business can rely upon the board decision."

"The division of authority between the agency and the board has been in place since the Environmental Protection Act was first adopted in 1970," she continued. "The agency, by its action in Grigoleit would, in one fell swoop, turn a well-respected system upside down for no good reason."

The Illinois Environmental Regulatory Group's plea to the Supreme Court concludes with the following: "The authority of the board to issue mandates to the agency requiring issuance of permits is clear and unequivocal. Allowing the agency to take a fresh look at permits upon remand violates the scheme of responsibilities envisioned by the legislature when it created the environmental regulatory system. The appellate court's decision rejecting the agency's attempt to alter the checks and balances of the system was proper. The decision (of the Appellate Court) avoids the unnecessary delay and expense fostered by the agency's contrived system, and rids the present system of confusion and uncertainty."

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

President Clinton has replaced his BTU (Big Time Unemployment) tax on energy with a tax on gasoline. As someone once observed, that giant sucking sound you here is money leaving your wallet.

Gas taxes unfairly burden the working poor, foster regional inequities, diminish freedom by penalizing mobility, punish an already reeling economy and even imperil public safety. And they won't help to balance the budget. Any increase in revenue collected at the pump would be more offset by revenue losses resulting from the tax hike's overall impact on the area's economy.

A gas tax increase would hit especially hard those who could least afford to pay. The Congressional Budget Office reports that families earning less than $5,000 per year already spend eight times more on gas taxes than people with incomes over $50,000. Should we try to balance the budget on the backs of the poor?

A cost hike for vehicle fuel cannot help but be reflected in the cost of everything we buy. 82 percent of all goods moved in this country move over the nation's highways. Fuel can amount to 20 percent of all vehicle operating expenses. Thus, Americans get a double whammy of higher prices at the gas station and at the grocery store.

A study conducted for Rep. Dick Armey by the staff of the Joint Economic Committee estimates that a 5-cent per gallon gas tax would decrease American economic output over a five-year period by $32 billion, with job losses running around 637,000.

Gasoline taxes would conserve energy the same way the Great Depression did and would raise the deficit not lower it. The real problem anyway is that although federal revenues went from $599 billion in 1981 to $1,092 trillion in 1992, spending went from $678 billion to $1.4 trillion.

A fuel tax is really a tax on mobility, and in a modern society mobility is freedom. Increasing the cost of mobility makes it harder for suburban and rural folks to get to work, school, church and stores. Americans rely on their cars for more than 80 percent of the trips they take, travelling some 1.9 trillion miles, according to the Federal Highway Administration.

Even if politicians don't care about growth, equity, and freedom, they should care that gas taxes kill. Gas tax levies inflate gas prices, creating an incentive for smaller, lighter cars. Reducing the weight of a car by 500 pounds increases traffic deaths by 2,200 to 3,900 a year, according to a 1988 Brookings-Harvard study.

Higher gasoline taxes won't sop up the tide of red ink governments create, because the deficits have not stemmed from a lack of revenues. Instead of shaking down highway users for imaginary deficit reduction, the government should make the tough but necessary choices to clamp a lid on the continued high rate of spending growth.

A British commentator recently inquired of Americans how they liked taxation with representation. Not much, to those politicians who want to raise yet another tax yet another time, I say don't help us anymore. We can't afford it.

Sincerely,
s/s Daniel John Sobieski

Chip Beck Scholarship

PGA Tour star Chip Beck, of Highland Park, presented the 1993 Chip Beck Scholarship award to a Chicago-area caddie, William Siffermann, 17, of Western Springs at the start of the Sprint Western Open's Coca-Cola Junior Clinic at Cog Hill Golf & C.C., Lemont.

The scholarship was the second awarded by Beck, who established the scholarships in 1992 in association with PGA Tour Charities, the Evans Scholars Foundation and Hilton Hotels.

Funds for the scholarship program came from a $1 million bonus paid by Hilton Hotels after Beck shot a record-tying round of 59 in the PGA Tour's 1991 Las Vegas Invitational. PGA Tour Charities, which received $250,000 of the bonus, earmarked its share for the Chip Beck Scholarship program. Each year, for 20 years, an individual PGA Tour event will be designated by Beck for the rotating Chip Beck Scholarship. This year he chose the Sprint Western Open.

The qualifications for the Chip Beck Scholarships are similar to that of Evans Scholars, with the additional caveat that the recipient must be from the same geographic location as the designated tournament. Recipients also fully participate in the Evans Scholars Program, sponsored by the Western Golf Association since 1930.

Cindy Park, 18, of Las Vegas, Nevada, received the first Chip Beck Scholarship award in 1992 at the Las Vegas Invitational. She will be a sophomore this fall at Loyola Marymount University in Los Angeles, Calif.

State-Of-The-Art

Gov. Jim Edgar recently introduced a new high-tech system designed to increase child support payments in Cook County by at least $6 million next year. Gov. Edgar commented that the new technological system will revolutionize the handling of child support cases for the benefit of thousands of Illinois families.

Letter To The Editor

Editor:

The Cook County Board is currently conducting hearings to get public input on their proposed solid waste plan. Although this plan is similar to some of the most forward-looking and environmental plans in the country, it is being attacked by so-called environmentalists for one reason, because it identifies trash-to-energy as an element of its trash disposal program. It doesn't take an expert to understand that we cannot recycle 100 percent of our garbage. And, if we can't recycle 100 percent, then we have to figure out what we're going to do with what remains. By bashing trash-to-energy, the so-called environmentalists are in essence supporting landfills, which take up a lot of space, must be monitored for decades after closing, and have potential environmental effects of ground water pollution and uncontrolled methane gas releases that are much more difficult to monitor and control than modern trash-to-energy facilities.

The county board has developed a sensible plan for dealing with our trash. They should be commended and not condemned for their foresight.

Sincerely,
Ray Murphy

OUTDOORS

By Jim Kirby

DA BULLS - DA BEARS, and now "DA BOAT" - The last thing I needed was a new boat. I have at least a dozen friends who invite me fishing aboard everything from john boats up to 36' cabin cruisers. My 12' aluminum boat with 3 HP motor is ideal for small lakes, ponds and shallow rivers.

While attending an outdoor writer's conference at Big Cedar Lodge on Table Rock Lake near Branson, Missouri last September, Tracker Marine extended the use of guides and boats of our choice to use during after-conference hours.

I made the mistake of trying out a "DEEP V" 16 footer with a 60 HP engine. I fell in love with the boat. Much to my surprise, my wife Mary who attended the conference with me urged me to buy the boat. Her reasoning - I could fish where, when and with whom I wanted, including Mary, my daughters and granddaughters who like to fish but are never invited on my friend's boats.

As an outdoor writer I attended all the outdoor and boat shows during January, February and March. I found myself spending a great deal of time looking at boats, motors and boat trailers. The number of fine boats on the market, is staggering and boggled my mind. I started to compare construction details, materials, warranties, performance, safety considerations and of course prices. I narrowed the field down to three boat manufacturers but couldn't get that "DEEP V" Tracker off my mind.

I was definitely in the market for a boat I could load and unload myself and feel safe on the "Big Pond," (Lake Michigan) and fish other rivers and lakes. I visited several local boat dealer showrooms and when I walked into HOLIDAY BOAT SALES in Lynwood, Illinois, I spotted the 1993 Magna 17' DEEP V FISH Tracker aluminum boat with a 90 HP engine. This was the boat for me, plenty of storage space for rods, tackle, etc. plus the large automatic/manual aerated live-well.

The folks at HOLIDAY BOAT SALES were quick to point out the advantages of the 17', 90 HP over the 16', 60 HP boat that I used on Table Rock Lake. I ordered the 17' MAGNA FISH with 90 HP (the 90 HP will enable me to pull water skiers and get off the water quickly if a sudden change of weather should occur).

I ordered the complete Tracker Package - boat, motor, trailer, trolling motor, electronics, boat cover, plush seats, etc. Buying the complete package enabled me to purchase everything I needed at a VERY competitive price.

I took delivery of the boat in early April and have fished the Big Pond 5 times, The Illinois River and 2 lakes in Northern Wisconsin. The 90 HP engine came in mighty handy when a wind shift and resulting 4-5 ft. cresting waves caught me 3 miles out on Lake Michigan. I still find it hard to believe that a 90 HP engine can troll at only 1 1/2 miles per hour, engine performance has improved over the years.

Our CHICAGO BULLS, "DA BULLS" were on their way to a THREE-PEAT, so I aptly named the boat - "DA BOAT." The name on the sides have caused strangers to suggest that I must be from the Chicago area.

Tracker Marine builds a wide range of boats for all uses and price ranges. HOLIDAY BOAT SALES at Route 30 in nearby Lynwood, carries the complete line of Tracker Boats. Stop in and visit GLENN PAZANIN or PAUL SZOTEC for answers to your boating needs or call them at 708-758-0405.

BOATING SAFETY - Statistics show that a large percentage of boating accidents are alcohol and drug related and resulting drownings preventable, if the occupants had been wearing life jackets. "Let's be careful out there - don't become a statistic."

KURT BOGOTT

Pair Of Cougars Sign Pro Contracts

Saint Xavier University baseball players Kevin Sefcik and Kurt Bogott have been recently selected to play for a professional baseball team.

Sefcik, a four-year shortstop with the Cougars, signed with the Philadelphia Phillies and is currently playing in Batavia, New York. Sefcik, a graduate of Andrew High School was selected this year to the District 20 All-State Team. In his junior year, Kevin had been named National Association Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) first team All American. He plans to return to St. Xavier in the fall to complete classes.

Bogott, a junior for the Saint Xavier Cougars, and the team's left-handed pitcher, signed with the Boston Red Sox and has left for Ft. Meyers to begin play. Bogott is a graduate from Sterling Newman High School in Sterling, Illinois, and was also named this year to the District 20 All-State Team. He will return in January, '94 to complete his senior year.

"The athletic department is excited to be a part of such good news for our players," Saint Xavier University Athletic Director Lynn O'Linski said. "We will, however, greatly miss their enthusiasm and skills for next baseball season."

Western Open

The 90th Open Championship of the Western Golf Association is now underway at Cog Hill Golf and Country Club, Number 4 Course (Dubsread) at 119th St. and Archer Ave. in Lemont.

152 golfers from all over the world are out to capture the first prize of $216,000 or win a chunk of the total $1.6 million in prize money. First tee-off time today was at 7:30 a.m. Cash awards are to professionals only.

Ticket prices are $20 grounds; $25 grounds and clubhouse and a season badge for $80.

Title sponsor of the event is the Sprint Corporation with the Evans Scholarship Foundation the beneficiary under the guide of the Western Golf Association.

Ben Crenshaw is the defending champion (1992) who scored a 12 under par 276 to beat Greg Norman by a shot. Also in the pack are Russ Cochran who captured the first Western at Dubsread ('91) and Mark MacCumber who won in 1983 and 1989 at Butler National.

Public parking is available at Mount Assisi High School (adjacent to the 15th hole) and off both sides of Archer Ave. on the southeast side of the course (adjacent to front nine). This lot will accommodate 15,000 cars.

This is the third Western Open at Cog Hill which will host the Western through at least the year 2002.

Dubsread course record is held by Jeff Sluman who in the third round in 1992 shot a 9 under par 63. Sluman launched his round with birdie-eagle and finished with five straight birdies. He tied for seventh three shots behind Crenshaw.

Top Argo Athletes

At the recent spring sports awards banquet, Argo High School honored those athletes who have made a year long commitment to participation and involvement at the high school. These students have shown the dedication to work at three sports throughout the year and in many cases excel at these sports. In this age of specialization, to have the ability and desire to compete in three sports is a tribute to these students who want to be their best in every area.

Senior three-sport athletes include Christine Boshnak, Cerardo Corona, Adena Hawkins, Inocencio Prado, Jerry Roach and Andrea Stanek. Junior three-sport athletes are Marc DalPonte and Julie Jerosz. Sophomore three-sport athletes included Jason Bartleman, Clint Bergunder, John Eaton, Johnny Hamilton, Kelly Novak, Jim Palmer, Courney Parrott, Teresa Ponce, Gina Provenzale, John Redwinski and Juan Saenz. Freshmen three-sport athletes are Jaime Escobedo, Erii Flannigan, Elisar Rosales, Daniel Rudman and Carrie Volk.

Vikes Come In Third

St. Laurence Vikings varsity baseball team emerged from the state tournament with a third place finish.

They took a 6-4 decision over Crystal Lake South for the placing. A late four-run rally in the seventh inning put the Vikes over the top. Ken Benson and Chris Dobrowski clouted two-run singles while Jason Amato pounded a double and Wayne Druktenis connected for a single.

"We had a great year," beamed Viking Coach Tom Pallardy. "We wanted to be recognized as one of the better teams in the state and we accomplished that goal. We want to continue that trend."

Stock Car Races For The Holiday

The good place to celebrate this Fourth of July weekend is at Santa Fe Speedway. On Saturday and Sunday, July 3rd and 4th, Santa Fe Speedway hosts its annual Fourth of July Weekend Celebration. It's two days of NASCAR stock cars dueling on the quarter-mile "track of clay" combined with Santa Fe Speedway's very own "one of a kind" dazzling aerial and ground fireworks display. Both nights include a full program of Late Model, Sportsman, Lightning Rod and S.T.A.R. cars. Gates open at 6 p.m., time trials at 7 p.m., race time is set for 8 p.m. The "Most Spectacular Fireworks Show in Town" will kick off at racing intermission.

The pyrotechnic extravaganza will be carefully orchestrated and presented by veteran Master of Ceremonies and track announcer Terry Kimes, in association with Santa Fe Speedway's fireworks pyrotechnicians.

The weekend's racing will be explosive as drivers compete for the championship of each division. The NASCAR/Winston Racing Series is as close as ever as the mid-point of the season approaches. In the Late Model division, Bob Pohlman, Jr. of Tinley Park leads Dennis Erb, Sr. of Carpentersville by a few scant points while the rest of the field, including Frank Heckenast, Charlie Barys, Bill Knippenberg, Sr. and Larry Steen, close in.

In the Sportsman division, Ted Loomis holds a slim lead over his brother, Jim Loomis, Jr., and Steve Fuller.

Santa Fe Speedway is located on the corner of 91st and Wolf Road in Hinsdale, 24-hour hotline (708) 839-1050.

100 Inning Game

DePaul's women's softball team is hosting its ninth annual "100 Inning Game" on Saturday, Aug. 21st. The game is played to raise funds for the DePaul women's softball program. The contest, which pits DePaul alumni softball players and various dignitaries and celebrities versus the present DePaul softball squad, takes place on DePaul's Lincoln Park campus at Wish Field, 900 W. Belden Ave. The 100 inning contest gets underway at 10 a.m. and lasts approximately seven hours.

Last year's women's softball team finished 38-28 and advanced to post-season play for the second straight season as DePaul competed in the National Invitational (NIT) championships. In 1994, DePaul will be playing such national powers as defending national champion Arizona along with Texas A&M, Creighton, Southwestern Louisiana and Nebraska.

Immediately following the 100 Inning Game at 6 p.m. will be the 101st Inning Dinner in DePaul's Alumni Hall. Admission to the dinner is free. During dinner the "Grand Slam Raffle" will take place with a grand prize of two airline tickets to Hawaii. Other prizes include a week's travel and accommodations in Scottsdale, Arizona during the 1994 Major League Baseball spring training season plus a 27" color TV and a special mystery prize.

For more information about the game or donating, contact Karen Loiacono at (312) 362-8656.

"50" Classic

On Friday, July 2nd, Santa Fe Speedway hosts the McDonald's "50" Stock Car Championship on the big half-mile clay oval. In excess of forty of Mid-America's top "Clay Oval Giants" are set to do battle for the top prize - a whopping $5,000-to-win. The Sportsman division will also toe the line on Santa Fe Speedway's larger oval on this night. Gates open at six, time trials are at seven, drop of the green flag, 8 p.m.

In addition, the McDonald's "50" will be Double Point Night, awarding all NASCAR drivers with double the points for their efforts. This will give the drivers an opportunity to break free from the tightly-packed standings.

Currently, Bob Pohlman, Jr. leads Dennis Erb, Sr. by only a scant few points in the Late Model division and Ted Loomis heads off Steve Fuller in the Sportsman ranks.

Summer Roundup

Even though the regular season is behind them, high school teams keep in practice with summer league contests.

Monday Game (June 21)

Providence 8 - Andrew 4
The Celtics took an 8-4 decision over the Thunderbolts in West Division play. T-Bolt hurler Dave Massat lasted only one inning before being pulled by Coach Frank Ganser.

On the offensive side for Andrew, Scott Frawley tallied an RBI and a double.

Wednesday Game (June 23)

Andrew 6 - Lincoln-Way 2
The Thunderbolts invaded New Lenox and struck down the Knights 6-2 during South Division action.

Hot T-Bolt bats belonged to Craig Senese and Kevin Callaghan, who emerged with a double and a pair of RBI apiece. Additional hitting skills were displayed by Eric Horvath and Anthony Arrigoni with run-scoring hits.

Senese earned the win in relief of starting hurler Jeff Neumann. Senese put in 4 1/2 innings of work and allowed only one run on three hits and fanned three.

Friday Game (June 25)

T.F. South 4 - Andrew 2

The T-Bolts came up short as they faced the Rebels in Tinley Park. Rebel pitchers fanned 10 T-Bolts while Jay Walsh was pegged with the loss after going a mere one-third of an inning.

Productive sticks for Andrew belonged to Dan Leatherman (1 for 3 with a double, RBI and run scored) and Kevin Callaghan, who had a sacrifice fly.

Survey Indicates Drug Use Down

A new national survey showing a decline in illicit drug users in America is encouraging but indicates the nation has much more to do in the fight against substance abuse, according to Lt. Gov. Bob Kustra, who coordinates the state's efforts against substance abuse.

"This survey shows that messages about the dangers of substance abuse are being heard and heeded; but millions more must be reached," said Kustra. "Illicit drug use is on a steady decline -- from 24 million illicit drug users in 1979 to 11.4 million today. While heavy drinking is a continuing problem, alcohol use by minors dropped 38 percent from 1988 to 1992.

"It's my hope that the encouraging survey results will give renewed strength to those waging this battle on the front lines, the community activists determined to rid their neighborhoods of drug peddlers and the violent crime and poverty they bring with them. This survey also shows that our efforts to educate young people about the risk of substance abuse is working, and those prevention efforts must continue."

The 1992 National Household Survey, which was released recently by the National Institute on Drug Abuse, reported a decline in illicit drug use in most age categories since 1979. Drug use among older Americans, those in the age group of 35 and older, has increased indicating a trend affected by the aging of those who engaged in drug use in the 1970s.

"Our system of community-based prevention helps each community in Illinois identify and reduce risk factors and build upon individual community strengths," Illinois Department of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse Director Jim Long explained. "The results of this national survey shows us that prevention works and encourages us to continue our efforts."

Kustra noted that the rates of illicit drug use and heavy alcohol use continue to be highest among those with the lowest number of years in school. Among 18 to 34 year olds, those who had not completed high school had the highest rate of illicit drug use (14.3 percent). College graduates had the lowest rate (7.3 percent).

"Clearly, substance abuse saps the ability and the desire of young people to stay in school," said Kustra. "But the rest of us cannot give up on them. Community groups working together with police, clergy and government social service agencies can make a difference. We can strengthen our families and neighborhoods and keep our commitment to educate our children -- and our adults -- about the dangers of substance abuse and help them straighten out their lives."

The survey also showed no decline in the number of people who use cocaine frequently. However, the number of occasional users of cocaine continued to decline from 4.3 million in 1991 to 3.4 million in 1992.

Recognizing that treatment is critical to any reduction in the number of frequent cocaine users, the Illinois Department of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse has applied to the federal government for a $5 million grant to increase the availability of drug treatment services in Chicago.

MADD Group Holds One-Day Workshop

Mothers Against Drunk Driving, Illinois presented a one-day workshop about anger for drunk driving victims entitled "Are You MADD?" Many victims have intense feelings of anger and rage since the crash. Most have never felt this kind of anger, and wonder if they are 'crazy.' Being with others who express similar reactions can be reassuring. The workshop included support groups and information on ways to cope and deal with anger.

Denise McDonald, MADD, Illinois' victim services director stated, "We are not here to give victims 'the' answer nor can we take their pain and anger away. But, all victims are helped by having a chance to tell their stories again and again. By being with other victims, they learn they are not crazy and are not alone. They also learn their feelings are a normal reaction to a very abnormal event."

Comments from some who attended the workshop include, "It helped me realize I'm not alone in my anger," "It was a way to vent a lot of anger and deal with it in a satisfying way" and "I feel a bit calmer inside."

MADD offers one-day workshops and support groups for victims and their families at no charge. If you are interested in attending or know someone who would be interested in attending future seminars and workshops, call the MADD office at (312) 782-6266.

If you are a recent victim and need assistance, call the victim hotline number at 1-(800) 253-6233 (253-MADD).

The seven women who will guide the Little Company of Mary Hospital and Health Care Centers Auxiliary were installed recently at a special mass in the Hospital Chapel celebrating the occasion.

President Mary Lou Zidek of Evergreen Park will preside for the second consecutive year. She will work with other officers: First Vice-President Marilyn Wohlberg of Beverly, Second Vice-President Laura Shallow of Evergreen Park, Treasurer Alfreda Jablonski of Evergreen Park, Financial Secretary Evelyn Tobin of Chicago, Recording Secretary Maryellen Chambers of Palos Hills, Corresponding Secretary Betty Norris of Evergreen Park, and immediate past president Joan Claussen to guide this body of close to 400 volunteers who work steadfastly to support the Sisters in their healthcare mission.

Year after year, the auxiliary conducts a wide range of activities to support the Sisters. For example, funds raised through Extravaganza (a drawing), Sweepstakes (several drawings), Reflections (fashion show), and other activities, will go toward payment for equipment in the cardiology department and the maternal/child unit. Other projects are held for the sole purpose of raising money for the Little Company of Mary Sisters' Domestic and Foreign Missions. The auxiliary also runs the newly-renovated 2800 Gift Shop on the hospital's ground floor. Volunteers staff the shop and proceeds from sales directly benefit the hospital.

In addition to monetary donations, the auxiliary provides spiritual and emotional support as well. For example, 60 representatives served as honor guard at mass celebrating the Sisters' 100th Anniversary of providing health care in America.

Annual LincolnFest

During the Fourth of July weekend, downtown Springfield will be transformed into one of the largest free street festivals in the Midwest, featuring non-stop entertainment and hundreds of attractions for people of all ages.

"Our emphasis will continue to be on providing a good, family-oriented event," said Nanci Unterbrink, president of the 1993 LincolnFest Board of Directors. "The fantastic kids/family area that received so much positive reaction last year will return, bigger and better than ever."

As many as 250,000 people are expected to fill an 18-square block area downtown for the 13th annual LincolnFest. Springfield, the capital of Illinois, is located in the middle of the state, just three hours driving time from Chicago. New this year will be an animal circus, storytellers, puppet shows, a new carnival with more rides and games, and an old-time medicine show. A simulator, much like the ones used by astronauts, will be available for adults to try driving a race car or flying a plane. Lots of new roving entertainers will add to fest-goers' enjoyment.

Returning attractions include a petting zoo, chess matches, a 'gold mine' where youngsters can hunt for treasure, and the City of Springfield's Safety House that teaches proper methods for getting out of a burning house.

"The big band sound was a favorite for many senior fest-goers," said Unterbrink. "When you watch a couple glide across the dance floor or see a five year old feed an animal in the petting zoo, it makes you realize the broad appeal LincolnFest has for our city, state and region."

Contract Service Agreements

Action to instigate contractual service agreements for the Worth Township Youth Service Bureau, clinic personnel, annual and monthly auditing firms was taken during the June 24th board meeting.

"There have been some slight changes in the clinic health care service agreement," noted Supervisor Joan Patricia Murphy. "Now it more closely aligns our contract with those that are suggested by the state public health department."

Township Attorney Larry Gallatta explained, "This is a unique situation where all of the clinical health care people are independent contractors. This endures to our benefit in the fact that it excludes us from agency liability as a result of their actions, but at the same time, it puts us at a little bit of a handicap because we don't have any direction or control over them."

Gallatta added, "We have the right to let the public-at-large in the township know that we are not liable for their actions. Also, the keeping and maintaining of medical records is discussed in this agreement and those records have been determined to be the property of the township. No information may be released about patients without prior written knowledge and consent of this board. We also have the right to appoint a review committee to oversee the clinic."

Gallatta also mentioned, "The doctors in the clinic must be licensed, carry malpractice insurance, be in good standing and a certified member of a medical staff in a local hospital."

Trustee Jack O'Connor told the board that he would like to take on the responsibility of conducting additional background checks on doctors who apply for clinic positions. He is interested in talking more extensively to hospital administrators about these doctors.

Youth Commission Director Helen Malevitis reported, "I am getting a lot of court referrals. These are DCFS (Department of Children and Family Services) cases that in order for the parents to qualify to have even some hopes of getting their children back into the home, they are mandated by the courts to take the parent program. Now the judges are making direct referrals and that is wonderful. I have also been researching a new program called 'Nurturing Parents and Children,' something relatively new."

Neil Nunamaker, director of the youth service bureau, pointed out, "During June, we have had 15 new cases with 14 new families. They have come from eight different communities throughout the township and there have been nine different charges, which is what the parents or police have said is the problem with the child. There are a lot more hard-core kids coming in and the biggest age group is from 12 to 17. It is a challenge just to get them in for counseling."

During the public participation portion of the meeting, Bob Marshall, president of the United Way of Alsip, addressed the board. "We are an eight-member board made up of residents of Alsip and Garden Homes. We help to support 14 different social service agencies in the township such as the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Southwest YMCA, Sertoma, and the PLOWS Council on Aging. We were able to raise $112,000 last year. I am asking that there be a campaign drive conducted among township employees. This would be accomplished through payroll deductions."

Supervisor Murphy told Marshall that she would allow one of his organization's representatives to come and talk about this campaign with the employees. It would be up to the individual employee if they wanted to contribute or not.

Factory History

In the mid-1800s a factory system began spreading from New England to New York, Pennsylvania and the newly-emerging states beyond. Banks were created by the hundreds over the next 40 years. America's abundant resources, expanding territory and growing population lured capital from both here and abroad, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's History of the American Worker.

SHOW AND TELL....A half a century ago before the military was preoccupied with "Don't ask, Don't tell," three young sisters captured the hearts of World War II servicemen with such runaway musical hits as "The Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy of Company B," "In Apple Blossom Time," and "Beat Me Daddy, Eight to the Bar." The three sisters were known as The Andrews Sisters and despite their father's insistence that they become private secretaries the girls wanted to be like their idols, the Boswell Sisters. The Andrews Sisters are now the subject of a new book written by 77 year-old Maxene Andrews. The book is titled "Over Here, Over There" and it chronicles the life of the three sisters during the World War II years and after. LaVerne Andrews died several years ago and as for Patty...well, a blood feud has split the remaining two sisters and they haven't talked to each other in years. Maxene Andrews had a heart-bypass operation 10 years ago and now she is making the rounds of book stores with one of her three daughters, Linda, and her Yorky dog who she named Murphy Brown. Maxene doesn't like to talk much about the feud that caused the split between her and her sister Patty, but she does say it was more between her and her brother-in-law. As for the book, Maxene Andrews talks about working with such musical greats as Bing Crosby, Al Jolson, the Mills Brothers and Louis Armstrong with little and unknown vignettes about each of the famous stars "The Andrews Sisters" encountered in their years in the spotlight.

PAULY SHORE (inset)

stars as a good-natured college student from Los Angeles who knows his way around the big city, but is totally out of his element when his girlfriend invites him to her family farm for a Thanksgiving vacation, in the Hollywood Pictures off-beat comedy, "Son-in-Law," slated to open tomorrow at motion picture houses all over the Chicago area....A very unusual movie, "Orlando," is scheduled to open on July 9 for an exclusive run at the Loews Fine Arts Theatre. The movie is the story of a journey through time of someone who lives for four hundred years, first as a man, then as a woman.....Universal Pictures has moved the release date of "For Love or Money" starring Michael J. Fox and Gabrielle Anwar from this month to Oct. 8. According to Tom Pollock, chairman of the MCA Motion Picture Group, and Casey Silver, president of production for Universal Pictures, the move to a later release date was to avoid the congestion caused by the record number of pictures opening this summer.

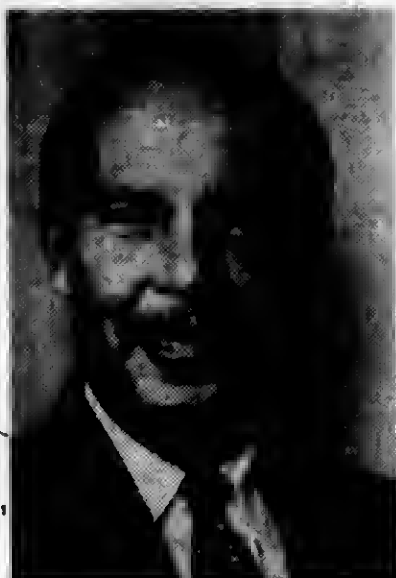

"SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS"

(inset), the Walt Disney classic made in 1937, is currently set to open at theatres all around the Chicago area tomorrow. The film last appeared in theatres on the occasion of its 50th anniversary in 1987. Quick now, who can name the seven dwarfs? Clockwise from the top right, they are: Sleepy, Sneezy, Bashful, Happy, Doc, Grumpy and Dopey...."Ruthless!," the hilarious musical comedy that has entertained Chicago audiences for over six months at Candelight's Forum Theatre, will officially close on July 25.....Is "Taste of Chicago" losing its appetite with Chicagoans? In the past week since the food-fest opened in Grant Park, we have driven by on Lake Shore Drive at all hours of the day and night to visit our son Kevin who is in physical rehabilitation at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago and seldom do we ever find traffic snarls and hoards of people flocking to the event. The joggers are out along Lake Shore Drive as usual but they are not the kind of people that would wolf down anything that comes on a stick.

REID (inset) co-star in the Caribbean musical "Once on this Island" which will be produced by the Pegasus Players and is set to open on July 14 at the O'Rourke Center for the Arts at Truman College. The famous Queen Mary luxury cruise ship looked for a longtime like it was headed for a giant can crusher. The icon of the seas has been restored to its old plush atmosphere and instead of the $18.95 admission is now free and thousands of Californians and tourists are flocking to the Queen Mary, moored in Long Beach, California.....This weekend marks the celebration of Fourth of July and we hope all of our readers will enjoy a safe and sane summer holiday and attend public firework displays. Happy Fourth of July!

Polish Summer Ball

The Polish Museum of America will hold its annual summer ball and silent auction on July 23, at the Starlight Inn, 9950 Lawrence Ave., Schiller Park. This year, PeKao Trading Corporation will be honored as recipient of the Polish Spirit Award, at the Ball: Andrzej Dachman, vice-president of the corporation, will accept the award.

The Polish Museum of America at 984 N. Milwaukee Ave., Chicago, is the oldest ethnic museum in the city, dedicated in 1937. The museum preserves the artistic, cultural, historic and literary heritage of Poles in America and the world. Its library and archives are used extensively by students and researchers of Pol-Am history and genealogy.

The major permanent exhibits consist of the Paderewski Collection, the Kosciuszko Collection, the Helena Modjeska Collection. It also houses one of the most important ancient Polish relics, St. Maurice's spear.

This emblem of power was ceremoniously presented to Boleslaw the Great in the year 1000 AD by Otto III, Emperor of the Holy Roman Empire. This imperial gesture recognized Boleslaw as sovereign ruler and King of Poland. The museum also features memorabilia of Polish Americans, artifacts of the first Polish settlement in America at Panna Maria, Texas; a collection of Polish folklore; a world-renowned art gallery, as well as a library and archives.

The public is invited to attend this formal "black tie" event, considered to be the highlight of the summer social season in Polonia. Chairman of the ball is William R. Kaplinski and co-chairman is Alderman Carol Bialczak, Chicago.

Dance music will be provided by Anthony Kowalkowski and Orchestra. Cocktails and the silent auction begin at 7 p.m. with dinner at 8 p.m. Please support this fundraiser by donating a gift to the silent auction, placing an ad in the program book or attending the ball: Tickets are $75 each.

For tickets or to make a donation, call (312) 278-3210, Ext. 119.

Caution Elderly On Medications

Studies show that people over 65 may be three or more times likely as younger adults to have problems with medications, reports the Arthritis Foundation. Although people over age 65 comprise just 12 percent of the population, they consume at least one-fourth of all prescription medications. The elderly appear more likely to misuse medications, in part because of the many different medications they often must take.

Seniors taking multiple medications also are at risk for drug interactions, where one drug alters the action of another. One danger is that adverse reactions can mimic diseases that often occur with aging.

The Arthritis Foundation points out that while no one can eliminate all problems that come with medications, there are precautions people can take to reduce the risk.

"One of the most important things you can do is have your doctor explain any medication prescribed for you, its possible side effects and potential to interact with other drugs," says Arthur Grayzel, MD, the foundation's senior vice-president for medical affairs.

The foundation offers other suggestions to reduce the risk of medication-related problems in its brochure on medications.

For a free copy, check the phone directory for your local Arthritis Foundation chapter or call toll-free the Arthritis Foundation Information Line at 1-(800)-283-7800, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

What Was Happening...

25 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK IN THE COMMUNITY

Harry "Bus" Yourell, Democrat of Oak Lawn, and Romie Palmer, Republican of Blue Island, this week loomed as two of the most powerful political forces in the Southwest area. Yourell, who Tuesday was nominated as Democratic candidate for State Representative from the 6th District and elected as a delegate to the National nominating convention, also as Democratic Committeeman of Worth Township.

Mrs. Peg Hendricks, finance director of Oak Lawn, has been named to the Local Officials Finance Task Force, it was revealed Tuesday night. The appointment was made by Gov. Samuel T. Shapiro, upon the recommendation of Theodore Joes, State director of Finance. Gov. Shapiro asked Mrs. Hendricks to attend state meetings in Springfield to aid officials in developing a fiscal management program covering all phases of local financial matters.

Sergeant Louis J. Micheletto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Micheletto of Oak Lawn received the U.S. Air Force Commendation Medal at Phu Cat AB, VietNam. Sergeant Micheletto was decorated for meritorious service as a jet aircraft mechanic at Phu Cat. He was cited for his outstanding professional skill and initiative in the accomplishment of his duties. The sergeant is a member of the Pacific Air Forces, and is a graduate of Reavis High School.

In what has been a long, drawn-out legal battle, Oak Lawn has set a target date of July 1st as the deadline for the village to take over the Columbus Manor Fire District. Village President Fred Dumke said he was concerned over the fact that residents in the fire district have been paying double taxes, a condition that must stop at once, he added.

Action on what is said to be illegal use of a parking area at Community Discount World store, 9639 S. Cicero Ave., was tabled on Tuesday night by the Oak Lawn Village Board of Trustees. Trustee Glenn E. Frankland asked for deferment on action on the special petition filed by Garden Specialties Inc., appealing a ruling by the Board of Appeals.

Laud Volunteer

Ellen Chiocca, a resident of Oak Lawn, was honored for her volunteer efforts by Illinois Parents Anonymous, which is a service of Children's Home & Aid Society of Illinois, at its recent annual meeting.

Parents Anonymous is an international not-for-profit organization committed to the treatment and prevention of child abuse. The service works to strengthen families through peer-led professionally facilitated self-help groups for parents and companion programs for children.

Chiocca drives 20 miles to volunteer her services each week as facilitator of a group, providing her insights and perspectives. As facilitator she keeps the discussions focused on parenting issues, providing support to parents and serves as liaison between the parents and community resources. Chiocca, a registered nurse and professor at Loyola University, informs her nursing students about the services offered through Parents Anonymous. During "Child Abuse Prevention Month" in April, Illinois Parents Anonymous focused its energies on raising public awareness on the dangers of shaking babies. Chiocca presented a workshop on "Never Shake a Baby" at a local parenting fair sponsored by the Kiwanis.

"She is a fine role model for the group, always listening, helping without intruding and confronting while still being loving. She believes parent support, education and involvement are key to the prevention of child abuse. Her investment in Parents Anonymous assures a bright future for all of us," said Barbara Lehrer, chairman of Illinois Parents Anonymous.

The Illinois Parents Anonymous office is a service of Children's Home & Aid Society of Illinois, the Midwest's largest private, not-for-profit child and family service agency. Residents in 40 Illinois counties benefit from the society's adoption, foster care, residential treatment, day care and counseling programs.

Parents Anonymous is open to any parent who needs support in the day-to-day challenges of raising children. There are no dues or fees.

For more information, call (312) 649-7311.

Mayoral Appointees

Karl Franson has been appointed to fill the remainder of Mayor Donald Robertson's term as Fourth Ward alderman. This action was taken during the June 8th council meeting in Hometown. In addition, Mayor Robertson appointed Edward O'Donnell to the position of member of the board of police commissioners.

Jerome Selva was presented with a plaque for his 25 years of service to the police department and in honor of his retirement. Another retired employee, Chief Nicholas Kolbasuk, was honored for his 40 years of service to the city.

A bid submitted by G&M Cement Construction in the amount of $28,025 was accepted for curb and sidewalk replacement.

Election of officers for the city's recreation commission was held and the new president is Maureen Flavey and the new secretary is Phil LaMantia.

Awards From State

Kevin Camden, Margaret Rapp and Thomas Scott of Scottsdale; Lucy Rebacz of Oak Lawn; Leslie Hargarten of Palos Park; Kathy Jacobs of Posen; Lisa Katula of Oak Forest; and Laurel Heskin of Hickory Hills are among the 168 Northern Illinois University students who recently received certificates of appreciation from the office of Illinois Lt. Gov.

Bob Kustra for their voluntary action efforts. The students, who each performed at least 15 hours of volunteer work during the 1992-93 school year, are members of the Student Volunteer Corps, a state program that was started to help college students participate in community or service activities.

The Oak Lawn Community High School Spanish I and Spanish II students of Mrs. Arlene Carrier and Ms. Georgia Lower recently completed a project that helped students learn how to appreciate the magnificent art work of modern Spanish painters such as Picasso, Dali and Miro. In studying the culture of Spain, students had the opportunity to reproduce the works of these masters on T-shirts using the shirts as a canvas for indelible paints. The T-shirts turned out to be mini works of art in their own right. Focusing on culture in this way helps students to see that the culture of the language they are learning is a living evolving thing. The culture reinforces the study of the language and helps to maintain an interest in the target language itself.

"SHOOTING PAINS"

If you're a victim of sciatica, you know what "shooting pains" are all about. The sometimes excruciating pain of sciatica frequently affects the hip, thigh and back of the leg. The ankle and foot are sometimes affected, too. But that's not where the problem is.

The sciatic nerve, the largest nerve in the body, extends from the lower spine to the back of the thigh and knee. Then it divides. One nerve goes down the front of the lower leg, and the other goes down the back of the leg.

It's the inflammation of the sciatic nerve that causes the pain. This can be triggered by an irritated nerve root. What causes the irritation? The cause may be traced to a misalignment of the spinal column that's putting abnormal pressure on the roots of the sciatic nerves as they pass between the vertebrae.

Through x-rays and other procedures, the doctor of chiropractic can locate the misaligned vertebrae. Using a gentle adjustment, he can align it properly again to help eliminate the cause and the pain.

If you have any health questions please feel free to call our office.

Approve Incinerator

In an overwhelming 6-1 vote, the Illinois Pollution Control Board has affirmed a unanimous decision by the Village of Robbins to approve siting for the Robbins recycling and trash-to-energy facility at 133rd St. and Kedzie Ave. The board's favorable decision is another positive milestone and the last hurdle for the $300 million facility. Reading Energy Company, the project developer, is now on a fast track to start lining up trash disposal contracts and begin construction.

"The board's decision was our last major challenge as we head down the home stretch on the Robbins project," said Jim DiBiasi, vice-president of Reading. "Frivolous attempts to stop the project have not been successful because the facts continue to show that trash-to-energy provides the best long-term environmental and economic solution for trash disposal."

The Pollution Control Board reviewed the siting approval process for the facility after receiving a complaint from project opponents that the local siting hearing, which took place on Dec. 22nd, 1992, was "fundamentally unfair." After holding a public hearing and reviewing testimony from supporting and opposing parties, the board concluded that the evidence showed the hearing was conducted fairly and according to the requirements of the local siting process.

"We took great pains to make sure the Dec. 22nd hearing was conducted to meet not only the letter, but the spirit of the law," said DiBiasi. "The pollution control board's decision clearly proves that the hearing's purpose was fairly served, and that the Robbins village board had sufficient opportunity to review all arguments about the facility before voting to approve siting. We are happy justice has been served."

Both Reading Energy and the Village of Robbins are anxious to move forward on the project, which has been repeatedly delayed on procedural or legal grounds. In addition to the positive pollution control board ruling, the project recently received an extension of its IEPA environmental permits and finalized a consent decree with Attorney General Roland Burris. Two independent health impact studies have shown no adverse health effects from the plant.

The village twice approved siting of the facility. In addition to creating hundreds of construction and operational jobs, the plant will increase tax revenues and attract spin-off services and businesses, such as a new bank, a greenhouse and a gas station. Over the past few years, support for the facility has grown tremendously. The facility is included in the solid waste plan of the South Suburban Mayors and Managers Association (SSMMA) and the preliminary plan of the Cook County Board. In addition, trash-to-energy has been endorsed by state and federal governments, the Illinois State Chamber, the Chicago and Cook County Building and Construction Trades Council, the Chicago Southland Regional Economic Development Coordinating Council, and others.

The Robbins facility is designed to operate for approximately 45 years, processing 1,600 tons of trash per day and producing more than 50 megawatts of electricity. When complete, the facility will process much of the household trash from Chicago's south suburbs. After recycling 25 percent of trash received, the facility will cleanly use the remaining trash to generate electricity.

More than 140 trash-to-energy facilities are safely operating in the United States, including such cities as Minneapolis, West Palm Beach, Indianapolis and Oahu, Hawaii. In Sweden, more than 50 percent of household trash is disposed of in such plants, similar to the proposed Robbins facility. Even greater percentages are realized in Switzerland, Denmark and Japan.

Tax Abatement

On July 1st, at a special meeting of the Oak Lawn Village Board of Trustees, an ordinance abating a portion of the 1992 property tax levy was approved. This abatement ordinance reduced the 1992 tax levy from $6,374,818 to $6,001,150. As a result, property taxpayers of Oak Lawn will share a total savings of $373,668. The impact of this reduction will be included on property tax bills issued later this summer.

Card Party

The third in its series of monthly summer card parties will be held by the Oak Lawn Woman's Club on Tuesday, July 20th at Pilgrim Faith Church, 9411 S. 51st Ave., featuring the patriotic theme of the month. Luncheon will be served at 12 noon by hostesses Virginia Charkon, Darleen Hubbard and Theresa Petersen.

Tickets are $6 a person and reservations may be made by phoning (708) 499-0736 or (708) 425-3238.

Sheahan and Laurie Roche, (left), director of community services, present the Sheriff's Certificate of Excellence to Frances Leske at the second annual Sheriff's Employee Awards Ceremony. Leske, an Oak Lawn resident, was recognized for distinguished on-the-job performance in the Sheriff's Community Services Division.

Creating Jobs

The Illinois Legislature has approved and sent to Gov. Jim Edgar a proposal that strives to boost job creation within small business by thwarting a state sales-tax levy on the installers of telecommunications and computer systems. House Bill 1729, co-sponsored by state Rep. Maureen Murphy (R-36), gained unanimous approval on May 25th. The Senate took similar action recently.

Rep. Murphy sponsored this measure in response to an area small businessman, who had been audited by the Illinois Department of Revenue (IDOR). Using the audit and establishing a new regulation, state revenue officials treated the contractor as a retailer and demanded the payment of 6.25 percent state sales tax.

This was a classic case of 'David vs. Goliath.' Some faceless bureaucrat in far-away Springfield decided to audit and then extract an unfair sales tax that was generally higher than the normal rate," Rep. Murphy said. "Without our intervention, this decision becomes a test case for tax collectors to levy freely on entrepreneurs. This would have had a chilling effect on small businesses, a major employer and job creator in Illinois."

HB 1729 reverses the revenue department's regulation for small businesses engaged in installation of telecommunications and computer systems.

"If the governor agrees with the legislation, then we can score a victory for the little guy, 'David defeating Goliath,' in this battle with bureaucrats," she added.

Pictured presenting the new Moraine Valley Community College flag, are James Polo, associate dean of career planning services, representing the technical, administrative, supervisory and professional staff; Joe Olmos, a Moraine Valley student and president of the Student Senate; Gail Wlot, financial aid expeditor and president of the Support Staff Association, and Randy Southard, professor of communications/literature and president of the Faculty Association. The flag was raised and commemorative items were deposited in the college's 25th anniversary time capsule on June 14th, Flag Day.

"Today's ceremony is the culmination of a year-long celebration of the college's 25th anniversary, and I can't think of a more fitting way to close those festivities," said MVCC President Dr. Vernon O. Crawley.

In addition to Dr. Crawley, Burton S. Odelson, vice-chairman of the board of trustees, also welcomed the guests.

Presenting Dr. Crawley with the American flag was June Hoyle, former regent of the Swallow Cliff Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR). The flag was previously flown above the United States Capitol Building in Washington, D.C. and was a gift to the DAR from Congressman William Lipinski (D-3).

Among the 100 staff members and friends of the college attending the ceremony were the Honorable Terry Steczo (D-35) and the Honorable Anne Zickus (R-48), both members of the Economic Development Corporation for the Southwest Suburbs.

"Items deposited into the time capsule, to be buried on campus this summer, represented every facet of Moraine Valley. When the capsule is opened in 2017, items will provide a glimpse of what the college and its people were like in 1993," Dr. Crawley said.

Included in the items in the time capsule are a rendering of the Fine and Performing Arts Center, a piece of carpeting from the Building B remodeling, a green diskette, a telephone, copies of the support staff and faculty contracts, a McDonald's napkin and cup, a Moraine Valley troll, a 'no smoking' sign, a fiber optic cable, a microfilm reel, and a copy of the 25th anniversary commemorative cookbook. Approximately 25 items were placed in the capsule by various staff members at the college.

"The flag we raise today will fly here for years, and the capsule will remain buried until the college's 50th anniversary. These are but two symbols of Moraine Valley's lasting commitment to education, this community, and all those who dedicate themselves to their advancement," Dr. Crawley concluded.

Lobbying Reform Approved

The Cook County Lobbyist Registration Ordinance was amended and approved by the Board of Commissioners at the June 22 meeting. This action reinforces an existing ordinance which only requires lobbyists to report any expenses incurred while lobbying for a specific piece of legislation.

The new ordinance broadens the scope of lobbyist activities to include all elected county officials. The old ordinance applied only to the county board president, county board members and appointed department heads under the president's office.

Additionally, the new ordinance clearly defines who must register as a lobbyist, when they must register and report, what information must be provided, which expenditures must be reported and the penalties for violations. Ultimately, the lobbyist law has been toughened and better defined.

The Illinois Department of Revenue released the tentative multiplier for 1992 which has been set at 2.0897, a 2 percent increase from last year. The department is required by law to calculate the factor to achieve uniform property assessment throughout the state.

The 2 percent increase means that property in Cook County was, on average, more underassessed than it was one year before. While the Cook County suburbs were not reassessed this year, the multiplier will boost all county assessments by about 2 percent.

Cook County Assessor, Thomas Hynes, plans to appeal the increase in the multiplier at a July 2 hearing at the State of Illinois Building. The Assessor reported that the State's formula overestimates market values in Cook County by including the value of business inventory or personal property included in real estate sale.

The Legislation Committee of the Board of Commissioners has scheduled meetings for the purpose of conducting public hearings to consider the Solid Waste Management Plan.

Cook County will hold public meetings in an effort to establish a 20-year county-wide Solid Waste Management Plan to help reduce precious landfill space, decrease the county's municipal waste by 13 percent by the year 2000 and make more effective landscape waste collection and composting programs.

The first meeting was held on June 28 at the Fifth District Courthouse in Bridgeview. A second meeting will be held on Monday, July 12 at 7 p.m. at the Third District Courthouse in Rolling Meadows. The final hearing will take place on Tuesday, July 27 at 10:30 a.m. in the board room of the Cook County Building, Room 569.

Persons wishing to testify should advise the Office of the Secretary of the Board of County Commissioners, 118 North Clark Street, Room 567, County Building, Telephone: (312) 443-6127 and submit 15 copies of any written statement to the committee.

As most of you know, the Cook County Board is making plans to draw districts for the election of county commissioners. A meeting of the Districting Committee was held on June 17 to consider rules of procedure for the committee, a schedule of public hearings and public access to the computer mapping system.

The Districting Committee shall consider many plans of single-member districts and recommend one plan for adoption by the County Board. The plan recommended to the Board shall comply with all applicable federal and state constitutional and statutory requirements.

The Committee or its subcommittees shall conduct at least six public hearings to gather public testimony on districting matters. These hearings shall be conducted in advance of the committee assembling a full plan for consideration. The meeting schedule is as follows: 1) July 7, 7 p.m., Second District Courthouse in Skokie; 2) July 21, 7 p.m., Fourth District Courthouse in Maywood; 3) July 28, 7 p.m., Sixth District Courthouse in Markham; 4) Aug. 4, 7 p.m., Chicago Urban League in Chicago; 5) Aug. 11, 7 p.m., Amundsen High School in Chicago; 6) Aug. 25, 10 a.m., Cook County Building in Chicago.

Persons wishing to testify should advise the Districting Committee of the Board of Commissioners, 118 North Clark Street, Room 1000, County Building, Telephone: (312) 629-6840, and submit 20 copies of any written statement to the committee.

Cook County Government is preparing for its third annual "County Awareness Day" celebration on July 23 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Daley Center Plaza in Chicago's Loop. The County is planning a day of innovative, hands-on exhibits and family entertainment. "County Awareness Day" was established to increase awareness about the services and programs provided by the county.

The National Association of Counties (NACO) is holding its 58th Annual Conference in Chicago July 16 through July 20. More than 5,000 county government officials are expected to attend. NACO is the only national organization that represents county governments.

The conference will focus on issues important to counties, including NACO's top priority issue this year -- healthcare. Other workshop topics include human and social services, transportation, housing, volunteerism, rural issues, drug abuse, economic development, job training, solid waste and media relations.

Most of the conference activities will be held at the Chicago Hilton and Towers.

Mark your calendar for the 2nd annual Wilderness Day celebration at Pulaski Woods West on Sunday, Aug. 8 from noon to 8 p.m. Native American Indian dances, Hody Coyote Puppet Show and arts and crafts are just a few of the things offered. Pulaski Woods West is located near Archer Ave. and 95th St.

Throughout the day, there will also be guided nature walks, music and demonstrations by the Forest Preserve equestrian and canine teams. Admission is free. The site is handicap accessible.

For more information, call (708) 366-9420; hearing/speech impaired: TDD No. (708) 771-1190.

Until next month, I am Robert P. Gooley, Cook County Commissioner.

Road Is Closed

Construction work is being done on 115th St. from Cicero Ave. to Ridgeland Ave. in preparation for widening of the street. Currently, utility work is being done. Utility companies are moving their equipment and lines before construction begins.

Work is also going to be done on the railroad crossing. The CSX Rail System is repairing and widening the crossing prior to street widening.

115th St., according to Bob Hedrick of the Cook County Bureau of Construction, will be closed for 10 days for crossing reconstruction. Work was to begin on July 6th, barring bad weather.

The marked detour route around the closed 115th St. is Cicero Ave. to 111th St. to Ridgeland Ave. to 115th St. going west.

The street widening and improvement is slated to begin in early fall.

Trinity "Search '93"

Last month, 230 students in grades 2-9 from 44 schools representing three states, participated in "Search '93" at Trinity Christian College. These students came from private, public and home schools, and were taught by 29 teachers. The students participated in projects, experiments, field trips and various "hands-on" activities in areas such as science, math, language arts, computers, foreign languages, humanities, creative dramatics and fine arts. The program, designed to emphasize enrichment and acceleration, did not include grades or tests.

On the final day of "Search," an open house and performances were staged for approximately 600 parents, teachers and friends.

Trinity announced the start of a Saturday program for all interested elementary and junior high school students beginning in January. Materials will be ready for distribution in mid-October.

Call the education office at (708) 597-3000, ext. 354, for more information.

The seven women who will guide the Little Company of Mary Hospital and Health Care Centers Auxiliary were installed recently at a special mass in the Hospital Chapel celebrating the occasion.

President Mary Lou Zidek of Evergreen Park will preside for the second consecutive year. She will work with other officers: First Vice-President Marilyn Wohlberg of Beverly, Second Vice-President Laura Shallow of Evergreen Park, Treasurer Alfreda Jablonski of Evergreen Park, Financial Secretary Evelyn Tobin of Chicago, Recording Secretary Maryellen Chambers of Palos Hills, Corresponding Secretary Betty Norris of Evergreen Park, and immediate past president Joan Claussen to guide this body of close to 400 volunteers who work steadfastly to support the Sisters in their healthcare mission.

Year after year, the auxiliary conducts a wide range of activities to support the Sisters. For example, funds raised through Extravaganza (a drawing), Sweepstakes (several drawings), Reflections (fashion show), and other activities, will go toward payment for equipment in the cardiology department and the maternal/child unit. Other projects are held for the sole purpose of raising money for the Little Company of Mary Sisters' Domestic and Foreign Missions. The auxiliary also runs the newly-renovated 2800 Gift Shop on the hospital's ground floor. Volunteers staff the shop and proceeds from sales directly benefit the hospital.

In addition to monetary donations, the auxiliary provides spiritual and emotional support as well. For example, 60 representatives served as honor guard at mass celebrating the Sisters' 100th Anniversary of providing health care in America.

'Cactus Division' Reunion

The 103rd Infantry ("Cactus") Division will hold its 29th reunion at the Hyatt-Regency Woodfield Hotel in Schaumburg from Aug. 26th to 29th. Originally composed of soldiers from Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa and Wisconsin, the 103rd saw combat in the European Theatre of Operations (ETO) in World War II.

Gen. Charles C. Haffner Jr., of Chicago, commanded the Division from the time of its inception through the first months of front-line service in 1944.

Gen. Anthony McAuliffe, the hero of Bastogne during the Battle of the Ardennes ("Bulge"), assumed command of the Division in January of 1945.

Organized at Camp Claiborne, LA in 1942, the 103rd embarked for the ETO in October of 1944. After landing in, Marseilles, the division headed for the front line in the Vosges Mountains of France. During the ensuing months the infantrymen fought against the German army in Alsace-Lorraine, the Siegfried Line, Rhine River and defended Alsace-Lorraine during Hitler's "Operation Northwind."

The 103rd liberated six concentration camps at Landsberg, Germany, after which the troops made their noted dash through southern Germany into Austria, capturing Innsbruck and slashing through Brenner Pass to meet American troops of the Fifth Army advancing north in Italy. With this link, 600,000

German troops were surrounded and captured.

The 103rd Division lost 4,558 in killed and wounded action.

State Auctions Surplus Property

Nearly 300 vehicles will be auctioned off on Saturday, July 10th by the state of Illinois, including an assortment of cars, trucks, motorcycles and boats formerly owned by drug dealers, according to Central Management Services (CMS) Director Stephen B. Schnorf.

The state vehicles include agency and motor pool vehicles and pickup trucks, according to Schnorf. In addition, the state will be selling some miscellaneous other materials, including limestone from the Capitol, sidewalk bricks, a large overhead door, concrete car stoppers and a guard shack.

The sale will be held at the state's new surplus property location, 1912 S. 10th St. in Springfield.

The vehicles seized by the State Police from drug dealers include a 1980 Saab, 1989 Jeep, 1987 Ford F250 pickup with camper, 1988 Chevrolet Nova, 1986 Volkswagen van, a 1992 Kawasaki and a 1984 boat with trailer. An assortment of other seized vehicles will also be sold at auction, including four motorcycles seized by the Secretary of State's police.

The vehicles, which are located at the new surplus property location between Ash and Laurel Sts. will be available for inspection on Thursday and Friday and up to the time of sale on Saturday. To participate in the auction, bidders must register on the day of the sale. Registration begins at 6:30 a.m. The auction begins at 8 a.m. The vehicles will be sold "as is" to the highest bidder.

Bidders can pay for purchases with cash, certified check, money order or travelers checks in increments of $100 or less. Business or personal checks also are accepted, but all checks must be supported by a letter of credit from a financial institution that includes the maximum amount of credit approved. Two types of identification must also be provided, including one with a photograph.

Food Distribution

There will be a one-day food distribution on Thursday, July 15th at Worth Township Center, 11601 S. Pulaski Road. Surplus food will be handed out to eligible families from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m., or until supplies run out. There will be plenty of food as we are going to receive over 25,000 pounds, so it will not be necessary to come early and stand in line. There will be the same amount handed out at 9:30 as there will be at 8 a.m.

Eligibility guidelines have been increased: for one person in the family the maximum income for a month will be $726; for two persons, $962; and for three persons, $1,239. For each additional person in the family, add $256.

For further information, call Bud Meyer at 371-2908.

Accreditation

EHS Christ Hospital and Medical Center recently received renewal of its accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JACHO), the nation's most recognized health care review body that evaluates hospital's quality of care. EHS Christ Hospital ranked among the top 10 percent of hospitals surveyed nationwide.

Overall, the surveyors reported that EHS Christ Hospital had achieved, and in many cases exceeded, the JACHO requirements. Areas that were surveyed over a four-day period in November, 1992, included medical staff credentialing, medical records, compliance, infection control, plant safety and quality assurance. In their report, the survey team, which included a physician, nurse and administrator, made a point of singling out several of the hospital's strengths. EHS Christ Hospital excels in the area of infection control and the hospital is ahead of many institutions in the nation in using continuous quality improvement in monitoring and evaluation activities, according to the surveyors.

EHS Christ Hospital and Medical Center, Oak Lawn, is an 841-bed teaching and referral hospital serving Chicago's south metropolitan area.

'City Of Angels' To Be Staged

Three shots ring out! A detective lies on a gurney, clinging to life. A young girl is missing, while her wealthy father lies on life support pondering which member of his clan will cause the last power outage of his existence. This scenario does not come from the headlines of the supermarket tabloids, nor from the promotions of your favorite daytime dramas; they comprise the premise behind the murder/mystery/musical "City of Angels." The critically-acclaimed Broadway hit of 1987 follows detective Stone as he finds himself tangled in the web of deceit, corruption and patricide that surrounds the famous Humphrey Bogart movies of the forties; this show is a must-see adventure patterned after the black and white movie classics "The Big Sleep" and "The Maltese Falcon."

In addition, if you need more to draw you to the Mother McAuley Auditorium on July 9th, 10th and 11th at 8 p.m., "City of Angels" details the behind-the-scenes Hollywood life of fiction writer Stine as he transforms his best-selling novel into a major motion picture bonanza. The 'catch' of "City of Angels," and what separates it from any other you may have seen, are the technical achievements that have been the 99th Street trademark over the past several years. While the Hollywood scenes appear to the theatre-goer in everyday, vibrant color, the movie scenes emerge in amazing black and white, giving the audience the true sense they have been transported back in time to the heyday of the movie thriller. To help this time warp, Cy Coleman, the Broadway composer, has added a score of music reminiscent of the great big-band sound of Hollywood's "Golden Age." Add a cast of actors, challenged to portray a "real-life" Hollywood personality and a character in the movie, throw in the vivacious sound of a Manhattan Transfer-style quartet and you have found yourself one of the most exciting musicals ever presented on the south side. This cast of talented performers includes Brian Rigg as the movie's writer, Jeff Hoover as his fictional, private-eye Stone, Cathy Smitko as both Stine's wife and Stone's girlfriend, and Cassie Dawe as Stine's mistress and Stone's right-hand girl. Additionally, John Larrabee portrays the back-stabbing movie producer, Gina Vitucci, the seductive leading lady of the movies, Giacomo Caliendo as Stone's frustrated ex-partner, and Marci Caliendo as the helpless, missing ingenue.

So come out to the Mother McAuley Auditorium to see "City of Angels." The show promises dazzling technical effects, a plot with more twists and turns than a carnival, and music that will send you out the door looking for your old Benny Goodman albums.

Camera Donation

Mothers Against Drunk Driving-Illinois and The Allstate Foundation joined recently in donating $10,000 worth of videocameras in hopes of getting more drunk drivers off the road, Secretary of State George H. Ryan said.

The donation will provide Secretary of State Police with nine additional videocameras that can be used to record DUI stops and arrests around the state.

"Videotape has become one of the most effective tools we can use to enforce drunk driving laws," Ryan said. "For drunk drivers, watching their arrest on tape is a sobering experience, and most of them end up pleading guilty. It's a case of a picture being worth a thousand objections and excuses."

With the donation, the department has a total of 35 videocameras that can be mounted inside patrol cars for roving DUI patrols.

Both MADD-Illinois and The Allstate Foundation have been past partners in Ryan's efforts to promote traffic safety.

Earlier this year, Allstate donated an additional 1,000 infant safety seats to Ryan's "Operation Precious Cargo" program, matching a previous donation of 1,000 seats last year.

The seats are available for loan -- free of charge -- at driver's license facilities statewide. Last year, about 1,200 loans were made.

Health Hazards From Flooding

Persons affected by recent flooding in Illinois were reminded by Dr. John R. Lumpkin, state health director, to take precautions to avoid potential health hazards.

Dr. Lumpkin said people should avoid contact with flood water since it can contain bacteria, viruses and other infectious organisms that cause illnesses, such as tetanus or gastrointestinal disorders.

To prevent tetanus, Dr. Lumpkin said, people should make certain they have had a tetanus vaccination within the past 10 years and protect broken skin areas where tetanus bacteria typically enter the body. He said if open sores are exposed to contaminated water, they should be disinfected and a health care provider consulted.

To avoid gastrointestinal illnesses, Dr. Lumpkin said people should not drink water from contaminated wells or public water supplies, drink floodwater or eat food contaminated by flood water.

If the purity of water used for drinking, cooking, washing eating utensils or brushing teeth is questionable, Dr. Lumpkin said people should only use bottled water, water transported from a safe source, or water boiled vigorously or appropriately disinfected.

Food items that have come into contact with contaminated water should be discarded with the exception of unopened, undamaged canned goods. Canned foods may be safely consumed if the cans are well-rinsed with a solution of one-fourth cup of bleach per gallon of water and dried before opening, Dr. Lumpkin said. The cans should not have pull-ring type openers or show signs of damage such as leakage, bulges, rust or sharp dents.

Symptoms of gastrointestinal illnesses include nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, abdominal cramps, muscle aches and fever. Individuals suffering these symptoms should seek medical attention.

Flood victims should keep a battery-operated radio available for warnings or advisories issued by local authorities and follow the instructions given.

Dr. Lumpkin said when returning to dwellings that have been flooded, people should pay attention to structural, electrical and gas-leak hazards. Battery-powered flashlights should be used when examining dwellings because oil or gas lanterns or torches could ignite flammables inside. Also, electrical equipment should be checked and dried before returning to service.

Local health departments or emergency management agencies can provide additional information on flood safety and cleanup. Dr. Lumpkin said people with flood related injuries or illnesses should seek medical assistance from their health care provider.

Dr. Lumpkin said flood victims and relief workers should always wash their hands with soap and water (bottled, boiled or chemically disinfected when no regular safe water supply is available) before preparing or eating food, after using the toilet and after participating in flood cleanup activities.

Filing Tax Complaints

Homeowners in Orland, Proviso and Rich Townships can inquire about their 1993 property reassessment notices and file complaints on Saturday mornings in addition to regular hours at the Assessor's office in the Circuit Court Buildings in Bridgeview, Markham, and Maywood as well as the Cook County Building in Chicago, Assessor Thomas C. Hynes announced.

Office hours are 8:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. until 12 noon on Saturdays. The deadline for filing complaints for Orland is July 23rd and for Proviso and Rich it is July 26th.

The additional hours are part of Hynes' special taxpayer services program called Project Reachout, where a hearing officer will speak individually with each homeowner and help them complete any complaint forms. Homeowners do need to bring along their "Notice of Proposed Assessed Valuation."

"When people receive their assessment notices is the time to ask questions and make corrections, not after the tax bills are mailed," Hynes said. He also noted that an assessment determines only what percentage one pays of all real estate taxes, but the dollar amount of any increase in those overall taxes comes from the spending requests of local taxing agencies.

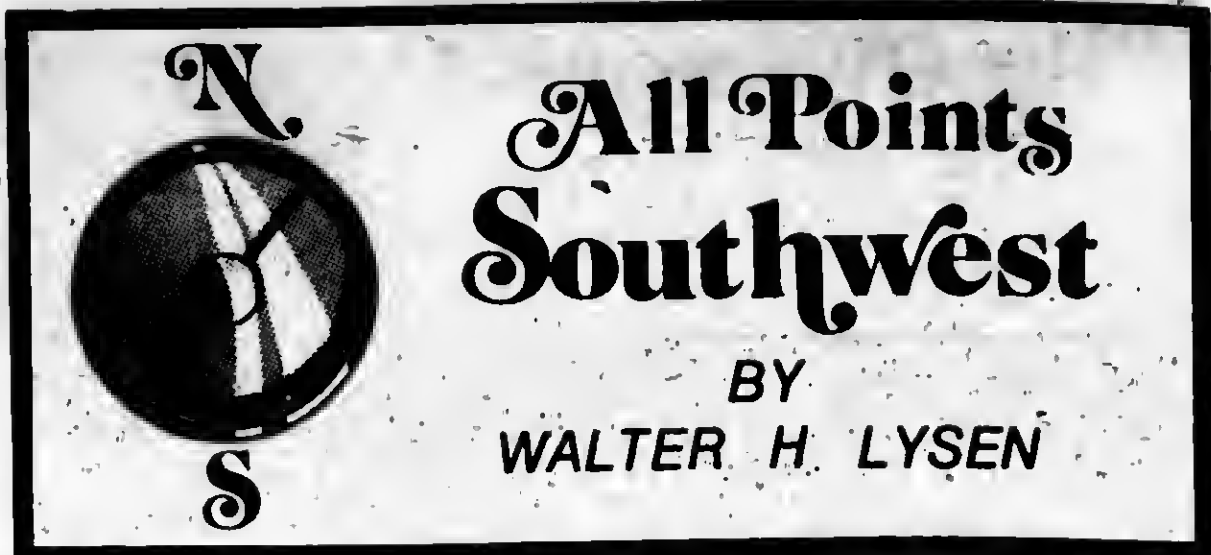

For more property assessment information, contact Hynes' office in downtown Chicago at the County Building, 118 N. Clark, Rm. 301, (312) 443-7550; TDD No. (312) 443-6181; or at any of the branch offices located in Circuit Court Buildings: in Bridgeview, 10200 S. 76th Ave., Rm. 237, (708) 974-6451; Maywood, 1500 Maybrook Sq., Rm. 005, (708) 865-6032; Markham, 16501 S. Kedzie Ave., Rm. 237, (708) 210-4100; Rolling Meadows, 2121 Euclid Ave., Rm. 237, (708) 818-2444; Skokie, 5600 Old Orchard Rd., Rm. 149, (708) 470-7237.

Homeowners may also seek assistance at their local suburban township assessor's office.

In 1789 the British consul in America reported to London that "a series of centuries" would have to elapse before a people "possessing so strong a natural disposition" to agriculture as the Americans would undertake manufacturing on a large scale. (But) in less than half a century the young republic emerged as a leading industrial nation, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's History of the American Worker.

Last Friday night's Independence Day Parade in Evergreen Park was a strong indication that the Centennial Celebration is off to a headlong start. An estimated 10,000 or more persons from the village, neighboring communities and from out of the city and state lined the parade route, cheering the 150 units marching down 95th Street.

"With this testimonial to the growth and vitality of the Village of Evergreen Park, since its incorporation in 1893, it is high time that the Postal Service recognize us for what we are, an independent village and not a part of the City of Chicago," said Mayor Anthony Vacco. "I'm still waiting to hear the official word that we are getting a suburban ZIP code, finally. It's about time and I hope to make and announcement in the next few days that 60642 is history and that we are recognized as the Village of Evergreen Park, with a suburban ZIP to correspond with our status as a 100-year-old independent community."

Palos Township Trustee Arlene Kasper and fellow Republican Beth Ann Lema of Bridgeview have announced formation of the Southwest Republican Women's Organization. The group plans to feature guest speakers on the woman's role in politics, the political process, discussions with candidates and more. Illinois Department of Central Management Services (CMS) will auction off nearly 300 vehicles this Saturday July 10 at the state's surplus property location, 1912 South 101/2 Street, Springfield. Included is an assortment of cars, trucks, motorcycles and boats formerly owned by drug dealers according to CMS Director Stephen B. Schnorf.

Vehicles will be available for inspection Thursday and Friday and up to the time of registration Saturday which is at 6:30 a.m. The auction begins at 8 a.m. Purchases must be made with cash, certified check, money order or travelers checks in increments of $100 or less. All vehicles will be sold "as is."

Community groups, professional organizations and schools in the Southwest area looking for a "no cost speaker" should contact Sheriff Michael Sheahan. Sheahan has set up a Speakers Bureau that will provide direct access and information about the Sheriff's Office, one of the largest and most diverse agencies in county government.

Speakers will provide information on the following topics: Gang Awareness, Senior Citizen Safety, Combating Drug Abuse, Establishing Neighborhood Watch Program and Child Sexual Abuse Awareness.

Bobby Rush, the new congressman for the Evergreen, Mt. Greenwood and portions of Oak Lawn is a member of the Commerce, Consumer, and Monetary Affairs Subcommittee that will examine problems facing minority and women owned small businesses at a hearing July 12 in Chicago. The hearing will begin at 8 a.m. in Room 2525 U.S. Courthouse and Federal Bldg., 219 Dearborn Ave. Rush is the ranking Democrat on the committee.

The hearings will basically determine if minorities and women are getting their share of government business and if they aren't what must be done to correct the problem.

Steve Phillips, an Eisenhower High School history instructor, was one of five announced award recipients at the 2nd Annual "Thanks to Teachers Awards" sponsored by WBBM-TV Channel 2. The program aired June 30th. Over 1,200 Chicago area teachers were nominated for the awards. "Winners were chosen for their exceptional dedication, their drive to instill a love of learning in their students and their ability to get parents, civic groups and the business community excited and involved in the educational process," said Bill Applegate, Channel 2, vice president and general manager. Chicago State University faculty helped in the selection of winners.

A recent swearing-in ceremony for new U.S. citizens in Arizona was conducted, of all things, in Spanish. ALL POINTS fervently hopes that this is not a harbinger. WE bend over too far as it is with instructions in Spanish in polling places, in buses, at telephones and the ultimate insult classes in "English as a Second Language." It is time our politicians recognize that English is the First Language, and should be the official language, of our republic. If immigrants, first or second generation descendants of immigrants wish to speak the language of their ancestral land at home or in groups of their peers, we have no quarrel. However, in the everyday intercourse with other Americans, please, please speak, write and read English. It is not only the First Language of the U.S. but is, as Latin was centuries ago, the language used by virtually every educated individual who deals in international business or diplomacy. It's time to forget these 'voters' who have their own agenda and do what is best for the country.

U.S. Small Businesses Experience Shortage Of Money For Loans

Small businesses turning to their number one source of capital, the U.S. Small Business Administration's 7(a) general loan program, are finding that the money simply is not there anymore. In fact, 7(a) loan applications are stacking up at a rate of nearly $30 million a day, according to figures released by the National Association of Government Guaranteed Lenders, Inc. (NAGGL) at a news conference recently. Record demand for the government-guaranteed loans depleted the program's fiscal 1993 budget by April 27th, leaving the SBA without any guarantee authority, with hopes pinned on supplement-tal appropriations in President Clinton's economic stimulus package. But when the stimulus bill died in Congress, the SBA's supplemental appropriations died with it, potentially leaving the program shut down until the beginning of the new fiscal year, in October.

"In the past, Congress has always recognized the value of the guaranteed loan program and kept it afloat when high demand was straining its resources," said NAGGL president Anthony Wilkinson. "We couldn't believe that they would not include SBA funding as part of a compromise package—that they would just let the doors close on the small business community's primary source of capital."

Lenders and small business owners alike find the situation particularly exasperating because the program requires so little actual cash outlay from the government. In fact, according to the SBA, the cost in actual cash outlays from the federal government, including loan losses, SBA salaries and expenses, is $2,273 per job created or retained.

The SBA simply guarantees a portion of each loan, lessening the risk to the lender and easing access to credit for small businesses, Wilkinson explained.

Safety For Kids

"Girl Thrown From Car: 3rd City Traffic Death," was a recent headline in a downstate newspaper. The story described how a two-year-old girl was ejected from a car that ran into a pole when the driver swerved to avoid another car running a stop sign. The police report said that although the victim was sitting in a child safety seat, the seat was not secured in the vehicle with the safety belt.

Surveys estimate that as many as nine of 10 safety seats are misused in some way. It is imperative for parents and other caregivers to read the manufacturer's installation instructions carefully, and select the seat most appropriate for the child's age and weight.

July 1st marks the 10th anniversary of the child passenger protection law in Illinois and is a good time to remind everyone that it only takes a few minutes before each trip to properly secure a child in a safety seat. Parents and anyone else who transports children must be aware of the hazards on the road, and ever mindful that crashes can happen through no fault of their own. The correct use of a child safety seat should be considered 'insurance' that can be cashed in when you least expect it.

Last April, a headline in the south suburbs read: "Truck Rams Car; Woman Dies." A photograph accompanying the article showed a child's safety seat lying in the wreckage. The safety seat was credited with saving the life of a four-year-old boy. Since crashes can happen in an instant, always remembering to use a child safety seat, and to use it correctly, can prevent painful, needless death and serious injury.

Parents, celebrate this important anniversary by pledging to always protect your most valuable resource, your children.

RAYMOND F. MCCASKEY, PRESIDENT AND CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

Employers join networks to gain buying power—the economies of scale. To offer their people quality health care, good service, and the best rates, wherever they may be located.

HMO Illinois is a Blue Cross HMO with more doctors in more places than any other plan. The Blue Cross PPO brings the largest statewide network of hospitals and doctors closer to home. And we've recently put a full scale Point of Service network into place in six major midwest cities.

So, if you honestly believe a health care network is a good idea, doesn't it follow that one from Blue Cross is an even better idea?"

Citizen Tax Awareness Week

Cook County Assessor Thomas C. Hynes recently commended the Illinois State Legislature for passing legislation he proposed making it more realistic for people to have a chance to oppose property tax increases.

The proposal, called Citizens Awareness Tax Week, requires all taxing agencies within Cook County to hold public hearings on their proposed property taxes during a set time every year. For example, park districts must hold their hearings on the first Sunday in December; elementary schools on the first Monday, and high schools on the first Tuesday.

"The great advantage of this plan is that interested individuals can better plan to take part in these hearings and community groups can better organize to express their members' views on unacceptable tax increases," Hynes said. "In addition, we can expect more media coverage of the hearings and proposed tax increases, which would heighten public awareness of local government spending and its effect on tax bills."

Hynes thanked the leadership in the State House and State Senate and the membership of both bodies for their support. He also praised State Rep. Thomas Dart and State Sens. Bruce Farley and Patrick O'Malley who sponsored the legislation in their respective chambers.

The bill, H.B. 2080, now goes to Gov. Edgar's desk for his signature.

"I strongly urge the governor to sign this bill and in so doing, help property taxpayers in Cook County become more informed about local government spending and better able to fight when it's out of line," Hynes said.

Background

Illinois currently has about 6,000 local taxing units in more than 36 categories. The current "Truth in Taxation" law requires them to hold hearings only if they plan to increase their levies by more than 5 percent. Although the date for filing levies with county clerks has been standardized (the last Tuesday in December), differences in fiscal years and other considerations result in public meetings and hearings being held at various times, often with little public notice. As a result, it is difficult for the public to gain a picture of how much property tax levies overall will grow in the next year. It also is difficult for citizens to have a meaningful opportunity to voice their opinions and hold their elected representatives accountable for spending decisions.

Proposal: Institute a Citizens Awareness Tax Week during which all taxing units would hold hearings before finalizing levies.

Under the proposed "tax week," all taxing units will be required to hold public hearings on proposed levies during the first week in December. The objective of the tax week is to make taxing units more accountable for their spending decisions. The concept of "truth in taxation" will be reinforced.

Given the large number of taxing unit types, the hearing schedule will require major users of the property tax to hold hearings on separate days. For example, on the first Sunday in December, park districts will hold hearings; on the first Monday in December, all school districts, except for high school districts, will hold hearings; on the first Tuesday in December, high school districts will hold hearings; on the first Wednesday in December, townships and road districts will hold hearings; on the first Thursday in December, all municipalities will hold hearings; on the first Friday in December, all counties will hold hearings; and on the first Saturday of December, all other taxing districts will hold hearings.

Results

By knowing when hearings will be held each year, interested taxpayers can plan which hearings they want to attend, and taxpayer groups can organize to express their members' views on spending levels. Better media coverage of levy increases and hearings can be anticipated, which will heighten public awareness of local government spending.

House Bill: 2080; Sponsors: Rep. Thomas Dart (D-28), Sen. Bruce Farley (D-17) and Sen. Patrick O'Malley (R-18).

Note: The original proposal, which covered all Illinois counties, was amended by the State Senate to apply only to Cook County.

Janet Hanbenreiser, a resident of Oak Lawn, is the recipient of Moraine Valley Community College's 1993 Nancy Blane Guerra Memorial Scholarship. The award was presented to Hanbenreiser by Elizabeth Sehuick, associate professor of criminal justice, at the college's recent graduation ceremony.

Hanbenreiser is a graduate of Oak Lawn High School and has attended Moraine Valley for two years. While at Moraine Valley, she was named to the President's List, and was named Academic All-American. In addition, she received all-conference honorable mention, and was named to the Region IV All-Tournament Team and the South Suburban Conference All-Tournament Team for basketball.

In the essay portion of her scholarship application, Hanbenreiser addressed the importance of an education as it relates to the global working environment.

"I'm anxious to become a business teacher in a secondary school, so I can present students with new experiences and opportunities, as many teachers have done for me."

Hanbenreiser will attend Eastern Illinois University this fall and will major in education.

The scholarship is presented annually to a graduating student who plans to transfer to a four-year college or university. It was established in honor of Nancy Blane Guerra, who was a staff member at the college for more than five years.

MDA '92 Annual Report Published

The Muscular Dystrophy Association's newly published 1992 annual report shows that MDA allocated almost 83 percent of its 1992 revenue to program services, one of the highest such allocations of any national voluntary health organization. The report contains MDA's audited 1992 financial statements, which report total program and supporting service expenses of $106.7 million for the year. Of that amount, some $82.7 million went to program services in the areas of patient and community services, research and professional and public health education.

"MDA is committed to the most efficient use of contributor dollars and to keeping overhead costs to a minimum," Lois R. West, MDA president, said. "The American people generously support our efforts because they know their contributions benefit adults and children affected by 40 neuromuscular diseases."

The year saw several important breakthroughs in the research program, including discovery of the genetic cause of myotonic dystrophy, the most common form of muscular dystrophy affecting adults. The 1992 Nobel Prize in medicine was presented to Edwin G. Krebs and Edmond H. Fischer, University of Washington biochemists whose work has been supported by MDA since the 1960s.

The financial statements, audited by the accounting firm of Ernst and Young, show that MDA allocated $47.3 million to a wide-ranging program of patient services, including operation of some 240 hospital-affiliated MDA clinics across the country. MDA's support of more than 400 research teams worldwide accounted for $19.6 million, and $15.8 million was spent on public and professional health education. MDA's 1992 total revenue was $100.3 million, almost all from individual contributions.

MDA's Labor Day Telephone is the largest single source of the association's support. The 28th annual telethon will be broadcast Sept. 5th and 6th, originating from the Sahara Hotel in Las Vegas and carried by more than 250 "Love Network" stations nationwide.

Camp Fundraiser

Americana Healthcare Center, 9401 S. Kostner, throughout the winter months held a variety of fundraisers. The residents were working toward a goal of $300. The fundraisers were held to sponsor a child for summer camp through the Southwest Special Recreation Association.

The residents raised $340 through a bake sale, plant sale and crafts made by the residents. The residents worked hard to meet their initial goal. This is the third year the residents have sponsored a child for camp.

The Friends of Central Jr. High Summer Enrichment Scholarship Program awarded scholarships to seven students. The awards were made on June 17th at the Evergreen Park Public Library. Recipients included Caryn Flynn, Jessica Hastings, Nicole Kachloubas (not present for the picture), Valerie Lazzara, Dalna Lukas, Lizzette Ortega and Lauren Shover. The girls are pictured with Janet Fettig, president of the Friends.

The Friends group is a not-for-profit organization which provides talented and gifted Central Jr. students with financial assistance. Recipients attend camps and workshops that offer advanced study in art, music, theater, engineering technology, volleyball and a number of diverse activities.

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale has named 3,045 students to its spring semester academic Dean's List. These students make up the top 15 percent of SIUC's undergraduate student body.

Dean's List recognition goes to full-time students whose semester grade point averages meet performance standards set by SIUC's various academic units. Those range from 3.25 to 3.75 on a 4.0 scale. During spring semester, 1,216 students earned straight "A" grades.

Those earning honors from our area include Jose L. Fernandez of Midlothian; Carrie A. Bettenhausen of Oak Forest; Donald E. Fricka and Bryan F. McGoldrick of Oak Lawn; Michael A. Szubert of Burbank; Jeffrey B. Herman of Palos Park; Marsha L. Dore, Donald A. Kaminaki and Michael J. Kelly of Palos Hills; Carlen M. Sedlak of Posen; Kenneth P. Sack of Evergreen Park; and Megan M. Mandel and Jason J.

Paladino of Mt. Greenwood.

Funeral Customs Museum

Anyone interested in funeral rites from Ancient Egypt to the 20th Century is certain to want to see the Illinois Funeral Directors' Museum, a mobile historical museum unveiled in 1984. The traveling exhibit is to be at Kosary Funeral Home, 9837 Kedzie Ave., from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. from Thursday, July 8th through Sunday, July 11th.

Artifacts on display at the museum include a collection of 'mourning' or 'sentimental' jewelry from the personal collection of Nancy and Virgil Davis with items from the 18th and 19th Centuries. Material used in making the jewelry is varied, such as jet, glass, gutta percha and bog oak. The most curious custom of mourning jewelry was hair from the deceased, which was woven with fine gold wire and seed pearls to form earrings, necklaces and pins.

Other artifacts include articles used for home funerals such as glassware, memorials, mementos and rare photographs. Home wakes and funerals were the genesis of many of today's funeral ceremonies and customs. These date to the time when there were no facilities known as funeral parlors. The traditions developed in response to society's need to mark death as a significant event in the lives of family and community members.

One of the most interesting items on display is an exact model of Abraham Lincoln's casket, built by special order when the 16th President was assassinated. The Irish craftsman who constructed the casket was told to create a "thing of beauty" and the ornamentation included shamrocks. The original casket was built in 1865 at a cost of $1,500.

A mainstay of the mortician's trade from the early 1800s until after the Civil War was the 'ice casket.' The 'ice casket' was used to ship remains by ferryboat or railroad or for formal wakes. Cool air from the ice helped in temporary preservation. When embalming became common practice, use of the 'ice casket' ended.

Some other items of interest in the mobile museum include reproductions of artifacts from Tutankhamen's Tomb which dates to approximately 1350 BC and gives an idea of funeral customs for royalty in that time. A golden statue of the Goddess Selket, an ivory headrest, canopic jars and jewel cases are included in the Tutankhamen display.

The public is invited and no admission is charged.

There was a nice contingent from the Johnson-Phelps V.F.W. Post and Ladies Auxiliary who attended the Americanism ceremony sponsored by the Oak Lawn Bible Church on July 4th. Russ Smkula, commander, and Penny Hempen, auxiliary president, led the group.

Belated but happy birthday to Robert Soule who celebrated on July 4th. He is the only one of the three "fire-crackers" members of the Johnson-Phelps VFW Post still here. Lefty Hurt and Jim Bennett are deceased.

The tradition of caring continues to grow at Little Company of Mary Hospital and Health Care Centers. It can be seen in the desire of the auxiliary's two health care scholarship recipients. Brenda Huskey of Chicago and Joanne Englehart of Oak Lawn, both daughters of Little Company employees, have each earned $1,000 toward their education in a healthcare field.

Brenda, daughter of Shirley Huskey of the admitting department, is currently a pre-medical student working toward an undergraduate degree in biology with minors in chemistry and psychology. A recent inductee into the Alpha Epsilon Delta Honor Society (for pre-medical students), Brenda intends to focus her studies toward a career in bio/psych research. That decision was made based on experiences as a volunteer at Loyola's Doyle Center, a day school for emotionally and behaviorally disturbed children.

"...It was my experiences with the children of Loyola's day school that made me realize the level of importance (of) health professionals, even research scientists, dealing with people, not just hooks and lab materials...it is my ultimate goal to be an advocate of the linkage between the sciences and the humanities, and to acknowledge their interdependency," she said.

Joanne, daughter of Pat Englehart of health promotions services and the women's wellness consultants, has her sights on a career in the nursing field. A recent graduate of the University of Illinois at Chicago with an English/education degree, Joanne is now pursuing a registered nursing degree from Moraine Valley Community College. Her current position in the radiology department at LCM has given her a taste for working in a health care environment.

"Truthfully, there is a lot that I owe to Little Company of Mary Hospital, because it is here that I realized my genuine desire for nursing and to eventually go into health education. Fortunately, in the radiology department, I have been surrounded by a staff that truly cares and shows great empathy for their patients," she said.

Lil Meck of Oak Lawn, Maryellen Chambers of Palos Hills and Sister Kathleen McIntyre, LCM, Little Company President, congratulate health care scholarship winner Brenda Huskey.

Property Tax Relief For Seniors

Sen. Patrick O'Malley (R-18) says a bill recently passed by the Illinois Senate gives more senior citizens the opportunity for immediate tax relief under a state program that allows them to postpone payment of their residential property taxes until their property is sold. O'Malley said the Senate unanimously adopted House Bill 317, which he co-sponsored, by increasing the annual household income eligibility limit under the Senior Citizens Real Estate Tax Deferral Act from $14,000 to $25,000.

"Seniors on fixed incomes are especially hard hit by property taxes and it's tough for them to make ends meet," said O'Malley. "But this measure enables more seniors to use more of their income for vital, day-to-day needs instead of worrying how they'll ever be able to pay their property tax bills. Just as important, it can help enable seniors to remain in and enjoy the homes they worked long and hard to buy."

The act provides that eligible seniors 65 and older can defer all or part of their residential property taxes, up to a total of 80 percent of equity. The state pays the taxes until the property is sold, which must be within a year of the taxpayer's death. The state then holds a lien on the property and is repaid the back taxes at 6 percent annual interest. The property must be occupied by the taxpayer for at least three years, cannot be income-producing and cannot have a lien against it.

The bill takes effect upon Gov. Edgar's approval.

POLICE CALLS

The following incidents were listed in the official reports of the Oak Lawn Police Department. Readers are reminded that an arrest by police does not constitute a finding of guilt and only a court of law can make that determination.

On the 26th, Robert P. Flynn of Oak Lawn reported persons unknown gained entry to his detached garage by removing fibreboard panels and stole a 27-inch man's Schwinn bike valued at $500; a Makita 10-inch power saw, $175; a set of men's Spaulding executive golf clubs and woman's Conger golf clubs, both with bags, valued at $650, for a total loss of $1,325.

James Allen of New Lenox reported he was driving west on 95th St. behind a village truck when a rock struck his vehicle and cracked the windshield. The truck was No. 72 of the public works department. Estimated cost to replace the windshield is $200.

Timothy Barzouski, 18, of Chicago was charged with underage possession of alcohol and possession of a fraudulent driver's license after he was allegedly seen leaving Kenwood Liquors at 10842 S. Cicero with two kegs of beer.

Also on the 26th, Thomas Loggins of Hometown was charged with theft after he came to the police station and admitted he had taken a wallet from a car at 9605 S. 53rd Ave.

Bill Blanchard, 29, of Chicago was charged with battery to a police officer. Police had responded to a call about a fight in progress in the Hilton Hotel parking lot, 9333 S. Cicero. Blanchard was arrested and charged with battery and when placed under arrest he asked to be taken to Christ Hospital because he thought his hand was broken. While being escorted to the squad car, he became violent with Officer Clark and the responding officer, and while being frisked for contraband, Blanchard began banging his head on the window of the squad car and screaming "police brutality" and "they're stealing my money." The police counted the money in his wallet which came to $35 cash. Blanchard screamed he had $342 and shouted obscenities at the officers and that they stole his money. He was transported to the hospital and there he threatened the officers and hospital staff with bodily harm. He became so violent he was put in leather restraints and sedated. After being sedated, he sat up in the stretcher and spit into the officer's eye and yelled obscenities. Officer Paul Hensley was admitted to the hospital where he was tested for salivary exposure and for HIV and Hepatitis B and was released. Blanchard was also charged with aggravated battery and was kept in the hospital for observation.

On the 27th at 2 p.m., Gary Oster of Oak Lawn reported persons unknown punctured two Uni-Royal black-wall tires on his van. Estimated cost to replace is $200.

At 2:29 a.m., Lori Cavanaugh of Oak Lawn said she arrived home and found a lid to a jar in her kitchen was broken. She then went to the window and saw it was open and unlocked and the screen pulled back. She then went out the rear door to investigate and entered through the front door which should have been locked. She discussed what had happened with Timothy James and both went to the bedroom where they discovered the night tables had been neatly searched. Taken was a .22 caliber handgun with ammo in a black canvas holster and three miscellaneous cassette tapes.

Michael Alilovich of Buffalo, Indiana was nabbed outside of Sportmart at 9633 S. Cicero after he was allegedly seen taking a new pair of Nike shoes, valued at $79.93, out of the box and putting them on his feet and leaving without paying. He was caught in the alleyway.

On the 29th at 4:11 a.m., Eugene Libra of Oak Lawn reported that while his car was parked in front of his house, someone entered through a window and stole a number of electric tools valued at $1,050 and it will cost $100 to replace the window.

Krista N. Adams of Oak Lawn came to the police station and said she knew her Talman Bank account savings book and her driver's license and $50 cash were placed in her glove compartment on June 14th. She discovered the items were missing and wants to obtain a replacement passbook and was informed that the offender had withdrawn $800 on the 15th and her driver's license was used for identification.

At 6:27 p.m. Diane H. Lyons of Oak Lawn reported her vehicle, a 1984 Toyota, had been keyed on the sides, roof and hood. Estimate damage is $500.

On the 30th, Wail Salem of Oak Lawn reported someone stole his gas-powered mower and an electric mower, both valued at $654, from his backyard.

At 7:42 a.m., Benney Sexton of Hickory Hills told police he left the Oak Lawn Restaurant, 5163 W. 95th St., and got into his car when the alleged offender, Colleen Borkowski of Blue Island, who had followed him to this parking lot, kicked the left door denting it. When he got out of the car, she hit him in the chin and went back into the restaurant and told her husband Peter what she had done. Estimated damage is $150 and the two parties made a settlement when police arrived.

At 8:09 a.m., Tushla Lake of Oak Lawn reported someone tried to remove the car stereo radio and caused $300 damage.

At 4 p.m., Jeffery Gallegos of Orland Park told police he was at Reilly's Daughter at 4040 W. 110th Pl. for approximately 45 minutes looking for his friends. He walked back to his car which was parked in the 4000 block of 110th St. when two males approached him. One of the offenders struck him with a club, possibly wood, and both punched him in the face and when the victim fell to the ground, they kicked him in the face. They removed his silver and gold-tone Rolex watch valued at $4,500 and $40 cash. He drove himself to Palos Community Hospital for treatment and was released.

Americana-Monticello Health Care Center recently presented a generous check to Park Lawn. The donation was a result of a walk-a-thon held to raise funds for children and adults with developmental disabilities during Park Lawn's 'Rally Week.' Over $72,000 was raised during the week-long series of activities. Proceeds go towards the further development of Park Lawn's residential and vocational programs.

Chiropractor

"Chiropractic care will not only add years to your life, but will put more life into those years," states Dr. Anthony W. Zvirblis, director of Chiro Care in Oak Lawn.

Zvirblis turned to his chiropractic career after years of unsuccessful treatment for athletic injuries he incurred as a young man.

When taking muscle relaxers and pain pills became his daily ritual, someone suggested chiropractic care. Zvirblis was so impressed with the results of his treatment, he immediately began schooling for his degree in this field.

After graduating from St. Rita High School, he received a degree from the American Institute of Technology. Next came a Bachelor of Science degree in Chemistry from Chicago State University. Zvirblis cut short his career as chief chemist for a major corporation to pursue his career in chiropractics. He graduated with honors in 1978.

Zvirblis continued his education with post graduate training in Neurology, Orthopedics, Applied Kinesiology and Accupuncture.

He has completed 300 hours in Advanced Accupuncture from the Accupuncture Society of America and is an associate member of Waseda Accupuncture College, Tokyo, Japan.

Over the past 14 years, Zvirblis has equipped his Oak Lawn facility with the latest in technology. He and the staff at Chiro Care are "committed to helping you help yourself to better health."

IS YOUR CHILD ATHLETIC?

If your child is athletic, his enthusiasm for sports can sometimes lead to problems. Minor injuries are common enough when two bodies collide at full velocity. But body contact is not the only problem.

Starts and stops at high speed, twisting and turning into awkward positions may cause strains to muscles, limbs, and back. Untempered enthusiasm may cause a youngster to try harder and play longer than is good for him. If his body is fatigued, there is greater potential for accidents and injury.

And if he's too proud to complain of minor injuries, how do you find out if there's a problem that should be treated before it becomes worse?

The best answer is periodic chiropractic examinations. These are recommended before the season begins, so he can start in top form. They're also recommended whenever an injury occurs as well as at the end of the season. Any structural defects should get the correction and treatment needed to keep your child in good health.

if you have any health questions please feel free to call our office.

MANITOWOC - TWO RIVERS, WISCONSIN. - My wife, Mary, and I couldn't pass up the opportunity to participate in the Manitowoc - Two Rivers 9th Annual VIP Fishing Derby.

This derby has a unique format: only two traveling trophies are awarded to the winning charter boat captains, one for total number of fish, the other for the largest by weight. The competition is very spirited and the intense rivalry is very evident.

Mary and I, along with another couple, were assigned to "THE KING CATCHER," a 25 ft. CARVER captained by WAYNE ZIMMER. The "King Catcher" is powered by a 350 HP Chevy engine and has all the electronics, downriggers and radios. WAYNE was born and raised in Two Rivers and has been running charters on Lake Michigan for 13 years.

Wayne's knowledge of the lake and his expertise were immediately evident. After a short 30-minute run, we started to set out the lines and within minutes we had two fish on. CAPTAIN ZIMMER set up a trolling pattern monitored by his loran, paper and digital graphs and an autopilot system, all of which he deemed necessary to assure his fishing clients of a reasonable opportunity to catch fish.

In any fishing derby or tournament, time is precious - we had to be back at the marina for official weigh-in by 11 a.m. That meant lines had to be pulled in at 10 a.m. to allow enough time for the return trip.

During our five hours of fishing, Captain Zimmer was kept busy setting up the eight rods on downriggers, flat lines, yellow bird planing boards and dipsey divers. Many different lures were used including jointed rebels, spoons and dodgers with flies. Zimmer, although very busy trying to get us fish, still had time to entertain us with interesting fishing stories, jokes, and historical and geographical facts pertaining to the Manitowoc - Two Rivers area, as well as an ongoing commentary on the Lake Michigan Fishery. This man obviously enjoys people and the charter boat business. Just being with this man was well worth the trip, the fish we caught were a bonus.

Fishermen have been known to stretch the truth, so the radio communication between the charter boat captains pertaining to size and number of fish caught was suspect, but it made for interesting speculation.

We had 10 fish on and boated five, that's batting .500. If our Chicago Cubs and White Sox could bat .500 we would be having a "Cross-Town World Series this fall."

KEVIN NAZE, an outdoor writer from Green Bay, landed a 23 lb. lake trout. This was the largest fish caught on our boat. CAPTAIN ZIMMER was elated and hoped that fish would capture the trophy for largest fish. As it turned out, the fish was 2nd to a 29 lb. lake trout.

This annual event, which included a great fish boil and brat fry, is made possible through the efforts of an army of volunteers. The Chamber of Commerce, charter boat captains, local businesses, a bus company, hotels and motels and food and beverage suppliers.

Only a three-hour drive on the interstate from Chicago, the area has much to offer in recreational and sight-seeing opportunities. The numerous unique and quaint shops staffed by tourist-friendly sales people make this area a shoppers delight.

For information on the area write THE MANITOWOC - TWO RIVER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, P.O. Box 903, Manitowoc, Wisc. 54221-0903 or call 414-684-5575.

For charter fishing, May through September, write Captain Wayne Zimmer, 711 Hillcrest Ct., Two Rivers, Wisc. 54241 - Phone (414)-793-6360.

Tournament Of Destruction

It's a night of metal mashing and fender bending as eight of the most destructive teams in racing meet for the fourth leg of Santa Fe Speedway's Tournament of Destruction Friday, July 9. See the Mean Green Machines try to hold off the 1991 Champions, Locomotives and hard-charging Wrecking Crew. Also on tap, Ladies racing, S.T.A.R. cars and the always exciting Figure-Eight competition. Gates open at 6 p.m., destruction begins at 8 p.m.

the title. Wrecking Crew's leap from fifth to third has to have the Locomotives team looking in the rear view mirror.

Santa Fe Speedway's Ladies Division is home to the closest points race. Defending Co-Champion, Liz York of Brookfield is tied with Donna Carvelli of Hometown. Both seek to break the tie Friday night.

Heritage Bank recently hosted an informational seminar on commercial lending and technology in banking for 30 bankers from China. Heritage was one of the number of banks selected nation-wide to be included in this program. The industrial and commercial bankers were sent to the United States to learn about American banking methods and business tactics. The bankers were from the Yunnan province of China and were on a 21 day United States tour, including the cities of New York, Washington, D.C., Los Angeles and Chicago.

The Heritage Bank experience included a tour of the Heritage Operation Center which provided the bankers a look at the high tech facility developed to centralize processing of the major operational tasks of the bank. Jim Wons, director of the Heritage Operations Center, provided the guided tour.

Wons indicated, "Even though we are a local community bank, we have been very progressive in centralizing operational functions for our 11 locations. This facility contains some recent innovations in check processing and handling and we are proud to show it off."

Ron Ajwani, executive vice-president of Heritage Bank, also spoke concerning commercial lending practices in the United States. Although interpreters were necessary throughout, the day ended with a lively question and answer session in which the bankers shared their experiences in China.

Ajwani was enthusiastic about the event, and stated, "Hosting this seminar was a wonderful opportunity. Even with the language barrier, the bankers were very interested in our procedures and guidelines. They were surprised at the extensive use of technology in our banking system. It was also a great cultural experience for our bankers. We were glad to be included in this tour."

Heritage Bank is a $280 million bank community, with branches in the south and southwest suburbs of Blue Island, Tinley Park, Oak Lawn, Crestwood, Palos Heights, Orland Park, Mokena, Alsip, Frankfort and Country Club Hills.

Historical Windows

The merchants and businesses of Evergreen Park are keeping in the spirit of the centennial. Many stores and service businesses have participated in historical windows, by decorating their storefronts according to a particular period in history, a selected theme, or an anniversary motif. Employees are frequently seen in the centennial costumes or attire appropriate to 1893, the year of Evergreen Park's founding. Businesses and organizations are sponsoring the banners, featuring the centennial logo and "Shop Evergreen" theme, by contributing to their cost.

Menu Mart Foods, for example, is displaying a special window, featuring newspaper articles and memorabilia from past years. Kosary Funeral Homes has made arrangements to host a mobile display unit, appropriate to their industry, in their parking lot.

Centennial officers and members of the merchant committee (left to right, seated) Chairman John McGivern, a Village trustee, Secretary Laura Shallow of Standard Bank and Trust Co., merchant co-chairman Phyllis Duffner of Advance Federal Bank for Savings, historical windows chairman Linda Kosary of Kosary Funeral Homes, merchant co-chairman Louis Cavellie and treasurer Arthur Hornharg of Hornharg-Klein Evergreen Funeral Home, recently hosted a breakfast meeting for area businesses. The format included an overview of centennial activities, a presentation of merchant promotions and a fashion show featuring costumes, worn by Celebration Belles and Brothers of the Brush chapter members.

The merchants of Evergreen Park are invited to participate in a sidewalk sale, scheduled from July 8th through July 10th. Evergreen Plaza Shopping Center has already planned its sale for the same day. This centennial celebration represents an opportunity for the businesses to promote local shopping, and to encourage residents and businesses to make their purchases and do their haying in the Village of Evergreen Park.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

The U.S. Supreme Court decision in a North Carolina case that state legislatures may be violating the rights of other voters by creating congressional districts along racial lines hopefully is the beginning of the end of ethnic cleansing, American style, a sort of electoral apartheid.

We won't accept separate but equal schools but we will accept separate but equal congressional voting districts. This troubling philosophy that mandates that each race or ethnic group must be separate electorally accepts that people won't vote for candidates whose skin is not like their own. Worse yet, it asserts that people cannot be represented except by their own kind.

Didn't we boycott South Africa for just that kind of nonsense? Aren't we herding people into electoral homelands? While normal politics aims to blur race and find common ground, racial gerrymandering keeps the racial barriers high and assumes that racial groups must be empowered, not individuals.

Neither Congress nor the country is well-served when voters are forced to see themselves first as members of an ethnic or racial group, and second as Americans. Each group gets its short-term gain. The only losers are the American people, who have to cope with an even higher level of polarization.

Tortured logic and tortured lines have led to artificial districts like the one in North Carolina which stretches like a snake 190 miles from Durham to Charlotte, often no wider than the Interstate 85 corridor.

New York City has a preposterous x-shaped district, slashing through a dozen different school districts and police precincts to connect scattered Hispanics in Manhattan, Queens and Brooklyn. For much of its meandering length it is only a few blocks wide. But it fulfills the new racial etiquette.

The relentless search for mono-racial districts is a sorry business. It makes too much of tribal identity and instead of encouraging minority candidates to rise to power by seeking the votes of all groups, it will tend to isolate them in racial enclaves and further fragment our politics and our nation.

This is one voting reform that should be unreformed as quickly as possible.

Sincerely,
Daniel John Sobieski
Chicago

Ten Thousand View Centennial Parade

For the 25th straight year the annual Evergreen Park Independence Day Parade was blessed with fine weather. General Parade Chairman Francis X. Gallagher and Parade Chairman Dennis Duffy reported that more than 10,000 people gathered along the parade route to witness the "Best parade in the history of the village." The 1993 edition of the parade celebrated the kickoff of a 16-day intense celebration of the Centennial of the Village of Evergreen Park, incorporated in 1893. This week, "ForEver Green," a historical pageant is to be staged at the high school football field on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, beginning each evening at 8:15. Events, culminating with the village-wide Interfaith Service on Sunday, July 18th are listed in today's Courier and will be listed in the July 15th edition of the paper.

Jolene Churak, president of the Evergreen Park Republican Organization and her sister Manreen Murphy, State Representative (R-36), were spectators.

Mayor Anthony Vacco waves to the crowd of onlookers from his convertible during the anniversary parade along 95th St.

State Senator Patrick O'Malley (R-18) entered a decorated truck in the parade with the 'wave of the future' in the truck bed.

The Color Guard from American Legion Post No. 854, as always, led the Independence Day Parade.

Officials from the Southwest Council of Local Governments made their annual appearance at the Independence Day Parade.

Little Company of Mary Hospital, also celebrating its 100th anniversary in the U.S., saluted Evergreen Park.

The Chamber of Commerce float featured, as it does each year, 1993 Snow Queen Amy Lavery and her Court.

Lost Boy Returned

An unidentified four-year-old Palos Hills boy, reported missing Sunday while at the Taste of Chicago, was returned home early Monday morning, July 5th.

The boy was separated from his 17-year-old sister about 9:30 p.m. at the Taste, police said. Apparently the boy was found and he gave that person his sister's telephone number. The number was called; the person left a message on an answering machine stating that the youngster was safe and left a phone number where the person could be reached.

After checking her phone messages, the sister either lost or forgot the phone number and lost contact with the person who found the child. Police stated that the boy was returned to his sister's home by the person who found him about 9 a.m. Monday morning.

Police do not know the name of the person who returned the child and said that charges would probably have not been brought because the boy's rescuer had made a 'good faith' attempt to bring the child home earlier.

Singles Dance

There will be a Good Time Charley Singles Dance at 8 p.m. on Friday, July 23rd at the Willowbrook Ballroom, 8900 S. Archer Ave. All singles are invited.

LEGALIZE DRUGS?...His best-selling novels are pure entertainment, but make no mistake—Chicago attorney Scott Turow still thinks like a lawyer. Asked to suggest ways to improve America's legal system, the author of the recently published "Pleading Guilty" and its two predecessors, "Presumed Innocent" and "Burden of Proof," takes a controversial position on drug use. "As a society, Turow states in the August issue of Playboy, as we become better adjusted to the notion that our resources are not infinite, we'll have to look seriously at drug legalization." "I've never seen the point of incarcerating people for engaging in conduct where the victims are not unwilling. I know it means addiction rates will rise. I know it's a cruel thing to do to many people, and I wish there were some alternative. But I am not convinced that the social investment in apprehension and interdiction is really worth it," Turow claims.

COMING CLEAN...For the past 16 years, California Congressman Robert K. Dornan and his wife Sallie and their five children have been avoiding any public confession of drug addiction and the dysfunctional family malaise. But now Sallie, 59, who has been involved in a number of aborted divorce suits in which the congressman's wife alleged she was beaten up by her husband, has made a public statement that she has been treated a number of times for addiction to the tranquilizer Valium. Sallie, speaking through a family doctor, admits she was treated last year at the Betty Ford Center for addiction to Valium. She says she is no longer taking the tranquilizers, but she expects her drug problem will be a lifelong struggle. Sallie, in a story in the Los Angeles Times, says her longtime drug addiction drove her to falsely accuse her husband of abuse. Now that the painful experience of drug addiction has been made public, Sallie expects to use her experience as a learning tool for other people addicted to prescription drugs. She is planning on going out on the lecture circuit and talking openly about her own addiction to Valium and the years of deceit and pain it brought her husband and her family.

Meanwhile, Congressman Dornan says his wife could provide valuable testimony to a congressional committee on women's health issues.

"When a man comes into a doctor's office and tells the doctor he is under stress, the doctor many times will tell him to 'grow up, suck it up, do pushups, get a exercise program,'" Dornan says. "But when a woman comes into a doctor's office and tells the doctor she is under stress, the doctor reaches for his or her prescription pad," states Dornan.

DON'T ASK, DON'T TELL...A leaked Pentagon document that would call for a compromise which would discharge gays from the military if they acknowledge their homosexuality has caused quite a stir in Washington. President Clinton and Defense Secretary Les Aspin would like to settle the gays in the military issue as soon as possible "and get it behind us" as one White House source said the other day. The final decision is expected to be made when Clinton returns from the Summit Conference. According to Washington sources, the leaked document would recommend discontinuing the practice of asking incoming service members their sexual orientation. However, once in the military service, anyone who openly acknowledges his or her homosexuality would continue to be discharged as they are now. The Pentagon document reflects Senator Sam Nunn's (D. Ga.), head of the Armed Services Committee, position on the controversial issue. According to a survey taken recently among members of Congress, most of the lawmakers support the "don't ask, don't tell" policy being floated as a trial balloon to end the problem. Senior military advisors from all the branches of the service are also willing to accept the "don't ask, don't tell" hot potato as law. Gay and lesbian activist groups, however, are not pleased at all with the "don't ask, don't tell" compromise and feel gays would still have to hide their sexual orientation from other members of their military units. The explosive issue is expected to be on Clinton's desk when he returns from overseas and many insiders feel the president will sign-off on the "don't ask, don't tell" compromise. The issue could then head for Congress where most members of Congress have adopted as "general principle" the part of the leaked document that states "homosexuality is incompatible with military service."

WE'RE NUMBER ONE!...The Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago (RIC) has been named for the third consecutive year as the best rehab hospital in the United States. The magazine U.S. News and World Report based its award for RIC on interviews of physicians from across the country and data collected by the University of Chicago's National Opinion Research Center. From a purely personal point of view, my wife Lola, myself and our son Brian rubber-stamp the rating because our 34 year-old son Kevin, who was in a coma for six weeks at University of Chicago Hospital, recently completed two intense months of physical rehabilitation at RIC and the expertise of the doctors, nurses, physical and occupational therapists, was the epitome of the highest standards of professional care. Way-to-go RIC and hats off to Dr. Henry B. Betts, medical director, and everyone of the dedicated staff working in conjunction with Dr. Valerie Ito, head of the 4th floor brain trauma unit, who, from our own point-of-view, helped RIC deservedly earn first place honors.

Palos Woman Is Murdered

Sheilah Doyle, 41, was found shot to death at approximately 1:30 a.m. on Sunday, July 4th. She had been put in the trunk of her car which was parked in the family garage on the 12800 block of South Mill Road, in unincorporated Palos Township.

William Doyle, her husband, notified police that she was missing at about 12:45 a.m. when he awoke and discovered she had not returned from work. Mrs. Doyle was a licensed practical nurse in the substance abuse division at Little Company of Mary Hospital, Evergreen Park. She had worked the 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. shift, according to police.

Police theorize that Mrs. Doyle was shot while in the trunk of the car and said that there were no apparent signs of a struggle. She had been shot once, in the back of the head.

If, as police believe, the killing took place in or quite close to the garage, William Doyle and the couple's three children, two daughters, 19 and eight, and a son, 17, apparently slept through the incident.

Police were searching at the scene for physical evidence; were interviewing members of the family, co-workers, friends and neighbors in an attempt to determine a motive and to identify the killer.

One police officer termed the murder "the stuff murder mysteries are made of" and another said, "We have a lot of work to do."

As of press time on Wednesday, no further clues had been reported.

Two Oak Lawn Community High School seniors were among more than 44 students from local area elementary and high schools recognized by the Oak Lawn Kiwanis Club as the "Most Improved" students for the 1992-93 school year. Dana Williams and Robert Balke were selected by the OLCHS faculty for their continued effort and achievement in academic areas while taking advantage of every opportunity in achieving the various goals they have set for themselves.

Dana's G.P.A. progressed from a 1.600 to a 3.050 during her past four years. Her behavior and attendance have also tremendously improved since her freshman year. Dana is an Illinois State Scholar and will attend Southern Illinois University and major in forensic chemistry.

Bob transferred to OLCHS as a sophomore, and his G.P.A. improved from a 1.90 to a 3.001 (currently). Bob is also highly motivated and he will attend Tri-State University on a baseball scholarship and major in teacher education.

Both students are Hometown residents.

To qualify for EIC, you must have income of less than $23,050 and have a qualifying dependent living with you during 1993. You can claim EIC when you file your 1993 federal tax return next year, or you can choose to get part of the credit in 'advance' in each paycheck during the remainder of this year.

Railway Tours

The railroads and people who love them will be one of the main elements of the 1993 edition of Chatsworth Heritage Days on July 23rd, 24th and 25th. The Chatsworth Historical Society, in cooperation with the Toledo, Peoria and Western Railroad (TP&W RR), will be offering train rides from downtown Chatsworth to the site of the 1887 train wreck that claimed more than 80 lives. An excursion train bound for Niagara Falls struck a burning bridge on Aug. 10th, 1887. The wreck remains one of the worst in the history of American railroading.

Trains are scheduled to operate on Saturday and Sunday. There is a charge for train ride tickets, with children's rates available.

The TP&W Historical Society contributes a caboose to the modern-day excursion train. Back in Chatsworth, the TP&W rail-fans also maintain educational railroad displays and operate a railroad memorabilia swap meet.

Clark Oil Scholarship Award

Most high school students do not enjoy taking tests, especially on a Saturday morning. But for District 218 students who competed on May 15th in the American Chemical Society chemistry examination, there was a special incentive. Eight local students had a chance at the $1,000 Clark Oil & Refining Corporation Scholarship.

Francesca Antonaci of Polaris High School was winner of the $1,000 scholarship, awarded specifically to the highest placing student from Eisenhower High School, Richards, Polaris or Shepard. The prize will be presented in the form of payment of tuition and fees at a college or university of the student's choice.

"For Clark Oil, this is an opportunity to reward area high school students for their enthusiasm and hard work," said Thomas S. Fredette, community relations director. "Clark is dedicated to helping our local communities, especially students who represent the future of tomorrow."

District 218 students taking the examination included: Dan Boland and David Lesniak of Blue Island, for Eisenhower; Danielle Broniecki and Dan Breier of Oak Lawn, for Richards; Wanda Laszcz and Francesca Antonaci of Oak Lawn, for Polaris; and Heather Gray of Crestwood and Sue Sullivan of Worth, for Shepard.

The Oak Lawn Village Board voted at Tuesday night's meeting to repeal an ordinance, approved by the previous village board, which called for a $1 million income tax surcharge rebate. The ordinance, approved on Feb. 23rd was characterized as a "pitiful attempt to buy votes," by Trustee Ronald Stancik (2nd). Candidates in the April 20th municipal election who had voted in favor of the rebate ordinance were all defeated, as was the mayoral candidate who supported the ordinance.

Trustee Bill Keane (6th) agreed with Stancik, calling the rebate "an attempt to buy the election, and an insult to village residents."

A court order stayed an attempt to mail the rebates to residents. The rebate checks were ready for distribution shortly before election day when a circuit court judge intervened and stopped the mailing.

According to Stancik, the cost of distributing the rebate checks would have amounted to approximately $6,000 including inserting the checks into envelopes, postage and mailing them. The envelope also was to have a letter telling which trustees supported the rebate.

In other business, a Governor's Hometown Award to the Sward School PTA for providing first aid instruction to students was given recognition. The volunteer instructors included Christine Dallio, Mary Granna, Nancy Crossett, Denise Woloszyn, Donna Roman, Eileen Molloy, Kathy Keating and Mary Dreschler.

Also, emergency medical dispatcher certificates were given to Ronald Kleinhaus, Patricia Seehoffer and Paul Warnik, and communications team leaders Jeffrey Adams, James Blackman, Irene Ruger and Bob Adamitis.

The next regular meeting of the village board is on Tuesday, July 27th at 8 p.m. Meetings are held at the village hall, 5252 Dumke Drive.

Local Housing Courts

Smaller communities in Illinois will now have the option of establishing local housing courts for enforcing building codes, under a new law sponsored by State Sen. Patrick O'Malley (R-Palos Park).

Gov. Jim Edgar has signed O'Malley's Senate Bill 36, which will allow the corporate authorities of any municipality to establish a housing court responsible for enforcing municipal housing codes and ordinances. Previously that option has been available only for communities of more than 100,000 residents.

"This new law resulted from discussions initiated by civic leaders in Blue Island, and supported by officials in other suburban communities. They have been frustrated in their efforts to enforce building ordinances, because disputed cases are often referred to an already overburdened Cook County circuit court system," O'Malley said. "Blue Island officials thought they could benefit from a local housing court, an option currently available only to larger communities. Other mayors recognized the benefits and supported my bill. Local housing courts should be more convenient and cost-efficient for municipalities, property owners and tenants."

Blue Island Mayor Donald Peloquin says the new law will allow more local control in enforcing building codes and should help expedite many of these cases.

"We are looking forward to correcting a process that has allowed buildings to be run down and abused by absentee landlords and gang members," Peloquin said.

Senate Bill 36 is cosponsored by State Rep. Maureen Murphy (R-Evergreen Park), State Sen. William Mahar (R-Orland Park) and State Sen. Robert Raica (R-24th, Chicago). It has an effective date of Jan. 1, 1994.

Lake Is Targeted For Dredging

Oak Lawn Lake, a man-made lake just south of 95th St. and east of Central Ave., may be targeted for a proposed dredging process with hopes of returning it back to life. However, Mayor Ernie Kolb stated that it is not known if the village can pay for the dredging this year due to village budget restraints. It was noted that even if the dredging can be done, the village has to find a way to pay for the more expensive task of hauling the sludge from the bottom of the lake, finding a place to dump it and preventing the lake from getting filled with silt again.

The village took ownership of the lake from the park district in 1957. The lake, about 1,000 feet long and, in spots, up to 50 feet wide, feeds into Oak Lawn Creek and Stony Creek. Since the village took control of the lake it has continually filled with silt even though portions of its banks are lined with concrete. The lake is only 11 feet deep but only a couple of feet of water flows on top because of the silt build up.

The task force is looking into a method that would pump the sludge out of the lake rather than mechanical dredging used in the past. The village, about five years ago, dammed the lake and dredged it with backhoes at a cost of approximately $200,000. One bid for the pumping project came in at $60,000.

Village officials and task force members want the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District (MWRD) to help dispose of the sludge.

The MWRD stated that help with the disposal of the sludge was unlikely since it would be an "enormously expensive" project, even though the sludge was not deemed "hazardous waste" and could be dumped in a land fill.

Bill Macaitis, assistant chief engineer for the MWRD, stated that he doubted that the agency would remove the sludge as the lake was not under the district's jurisdiction.

Forest Preserve Youth Corps Employs 100

Urging youth to make the most of the summer vacation with the Forest Preserve District of Cook County, Board President Richard Phelan welcomed 100 young persons recently to the 1993 Youth Opportunity Corps (YOC). Phelan kicked off the summer employment program at the Forest Preserve District headquarters in River Forest.

"This is a unique program, geared solely toward our country's youths," Phelan said. "There is no other program of its kind in Cook County."

Phelan began the YOC program in 1992 to expose ecologically disadvantaged Chicago and suburban Cook County youths to nature while providing them with vocational skills. During the summer, participants earn a paycheck while working in various Forest Preserve District departments during the six-week program.

They visit forest preserve district nature centers and other facilities to learn about nature firsthand. Seminars on interviewing and resume writing are also planned for the corps members. The program will culminate in August for a job fair. The YOC was able to offer twice as many jobs to economically disadvantaged youths this summer than last summer, thanks to a $50,000 grant from the Clinton Administration.

"This is a wonderful chance for the county to serve more youths who are in desperate need of employment and job training," Phelan said. "This prestigious grant draws national attention to the success of the district's YOC program. It is my hope each year we can continue to expand the YOC."

The grant money allows the district to enlarge its program from 50 to 100 participants and to also strengthen the educational component. This summer the district will work closely with the YMCA's training alliance and the Canal Corridor Association to provide YOC corps members with the additional training and education. The training alliance will help the district expand its outreach recruitment efforts; and the alliance and the district will sponsor seminars on setting personal career goals for corps members.

The Canal Corridor Association will help determine special YOC projects in the Illinois & Michigan Canal National Heritage Corridor and conduct educational programs exposing the participants to the rich history of this important corridor.

Summer Opera

The music department of South Suburban College and the 1993 Summer Opera Workshop will present Gilbert and Sullivan's "Princess Ida" under the musical direction of Dimpna B. Clarin. The event will take place on July 23rd and 24th at 8 p.m. at the Kindig Performing Arts Center, 15800 S. State St., South Holland.

Reserved seat tickets are $8 for adults and $5 for seniors and students. For tickets and information, call (708) 210-5741.

"The Forest Preserve District is committed not just to employing the youths, but to also helping them develop a greater awareness for the world around them," Phelan said. "Helping them gain self-confidence, job skills and an awareness of the environment will undoubtedly serve them well throughout their lives. Our young people are our greatest resources."

First National's 'Loan Lite' Plan

Today's incredibly shrunken interest rates have led The First National Bank of Chicago to encourage customers to consider refinancing of all kinds of current bank loans through the second phase of its summer loan promotion program.

"When people think of refinancing, they automatically think of their largest debt, their mortgage," explained W.G. Jurgensen, executive vice-president and head of First Chicago's Community Banking Group. "Our aim through this program, however, is to help people receive the benefits of low interest rates in their payments for car loans, lines of credit and equity credit lines."

The new program, in effect until July 31st, promotes the advantages of low refinancing rates, some below 7 percent, for more than just mortgages. It's an extension of First Chicago's 'Loan Lite' campaign, launched in May, which was a variable rate consumer loan program combined with a cash-rebate offer. Loan applications increased more than 50 percent as customers took advantage of that promotion.

Under First Chicago's new loan refinancing program, some of the special rates to be available between now and July 31st include new car variable rate, prime plus .9 percent; unsecured revolving line of credit, prime plus 5.4 percent; equity credit line (no closing or application costs or points), prime plus 1.5 percent for loans under $50,000, or prime plus .75 for loans over $50,000.

"These are some of the most attractive rates on refinancing in the Chicago metropolitan area," said Jurgensen. "We're anticipating that this program will be as appealing to customers and potential customers as Loan Lite proved to be."

The First National Bank of Chicago, a subsidiary of First Chicago Corporation, has more than 70 locations throughout the metropolitan area. Its branches in the downtown area and in the city's south and south suburban communities are located at One First National Plaza; 35 W. Wacker Dr.; Dearborn Station; 4730 W. 79th St.; 4363 S. Archer; 8340 S. Kedzie; 6245 S. Western Ave.; in Little Village, Pilsen, Burbank, Oak Lawn, Orland Park, Worth and Lansing.

Brookfield Zoo Renovation Plans

Cook County Board President Richard Phelan announced that the Forest Preserve District of Cook County Commissioners approved on July 7th issuance of bonds to produce, over the next three years, $16 million for capital development and renovation programs at Brookfield Zoo. Commissioners also approved an additional $5 million for Forest Preserve District's land acquisition and $2.5 million for its working cash fund.

"Brookfield Zoo has long been recognized as a star attraction in the Forest Preserve District. The zoo reminds 2 million visitors a year of the importance of wildlife around the world and right here and in Cook County," Phelan said. "The issuance of these additional bonds will ensure that the zoo will continue to enrich the lives of its visitors."

The Chicago Zoological Society, which manages Brookfield Zoo for the Forest Preserve District, applauded the commissioners' actions and renewed the society's commitment to match the district's contribution to capital improvements.

The zoo plans to use the bonding money for major exhibits to enhance appreciation of natural animal and plant communities in Cook County and around the world. The funding will also help advance plans for major renovation of the entire 15-acre southwest quadrant of the zoo which will feature an exhibit emphasizing the importance of the diversity of life.

There are also plans to renovate the old primate house, which has been out of public service for several years. Upon completion, the primate house will feature a variety of animals.

"Dynamic and informative exhibits with up-close animal experiences will highlight the many ways we all depend on the health of the natural world," said Brookfield Zoo Director George C. Rabb.

Sale of the bonds will enable the zoo to begin operating its new animal health facility later this month. The new hospital reflects the advancement of medical technology and veterinary medicine achieved since 1952, when the old animal hospital opened. Full service in the new animal hospital will improve the zoo's care of the 2,775 animals in its collection.

"The Forest Preserve District is committed to ensuring that Brookfield Zoo is able to expand and improve the many programs and services it offers," Phelan said. "The residents of Cook County should take pride in calling this outstanding facility theirs."

Sale of the bonds is expected to close before the end of the month. The state legislature last year authorized $27.6 million for zoo bonds. Additional bond funding may be available at a later date.

The bond program is the result of long-range program and facility planning that has been ongoing at the zoo. The planning balances the zoo's commitment to conservation and animal care with public services.

Nuclear Power To Generate Electricity

America has had wake-up calls about the dangers of foreign oil many times since the first oil embargo, 20 years ago this fall, but for the most part, has slept through these repeated warnings. By now, we should know better than to trust too much of our oil supply to producers in volatile areas of the world. Foreign-oil cutoffs threatened our energy independence twice in the 1970s, and our economy took heavy hits. As recently as 1990, the Persian Gulf war reminded us of the dangers of upheavals in world oil markets.

But as soon as the last Desert Storm victory parade turned the corner and went out of sight, we went back to feeding out appetite for oil. This spring, America set a record for oil imports, 8.6 million barrels a day, more than half of our total use. The U.S. paid 145 billion for foreign oil in 1992, making it the largest part, 53 percent, of our trade deficit. Today, we spend twice as much on imported oil as on imported cars. Nearly 25 percent of all our imported oil came from the unsettled Persian Gulf region.

Compare this to 1973, when we waited in line at the gas pumps and promised ourselves we'd use less oil. That year, America was alarmed that 35 percent of our oil came from overseas. Of all the oil-saving efforts sparked by the 1973 embargo, none has been more successful than the switch from burning oil to generating electricity. America's electric utilities have cut oil use by 1,000,000 barrels a day, more than any other segment of our economy.

This success can be traced in large part to nuclear power growth during the past 20 years, which was second only to that of coal. Together, these two electricity fuels increased from about half of our power supply in 1973 to 75 percent today. At Commonwealth Edison, the numbers are even more impressive. In 1992, 83.5 percent of Edison's generation came from nuclear, 15.3 percent from coal and only 0.4 percent from oil.

Nuclear power's track record of replacing foreign oil is impressive. Since the oil embargo, nuclear power has replaced three-quarters of U.S. oil-fired generation and has saved 4.6 billion barrels of oil and $140 billion in foreign payments. In one seven-year period, from the 1978 oil-import peak to the 1985 bottom, America cut the amount of oil burned to generate electricity by 1,000,000 barrels a day, nearly as much as the individual daily consumption of counties like Canada, France or the United Kingdom. In 1992 alone, nuclear power saved the use of 265 million barrels of oil with a value of $4.4 billion.

Nearly 20 years after the first oil embargo, a large majority of Americans, 70 percent, agree that nuclear power reduces our need for foreign oil. Even more, 73 percent, believe that nuclear power should play an important role in America's energy future. If America has finally learned the hard lessons of the first oil embargo, plans should include a major role for nuclear power.

Murder/Suicide

Believing that he had been robbed by his two younger brothers and his life ruined, Khalil Al-Jamal, of the 10400 block of Southwest Highway, shot himself in the head, Friday, July 9th. Police were about to question him concerning the Thursday night murder of Michael Al-Jamal, 25, and the wounding of Khalil "Steve" Al-Jamal, 31, and another man.

It was reported that Khalil Al-Jamal had driven to Michael's Food and Liquor store, 8301 S. Ashland, where he shot his brother Michael twice in the head. Michael of the 10600 block of Parkside Ave. was dead on arrival at Christ Hospital.

Khalil, then drove toward another store operated by a second brother Kahlia, according to Sergeant Ronald Palmer, Pullman Area violent crimes division. Khalil saw his brother and a friend driving near the 8700 block of Loomis Ave. at 8:30 p.m. and began firing. He shot his brother once in the head. Kahlia, of Lockport, was reported in serious condition at Christ Hospital. His companion, Mohammad Hussein, 31, was injured by flying glass, police reported.

Khalil returned to his Chicago Ridge apartment after the shootings. Two Pullman Area detectives arrived at the apartment at about 10 p.m., after obtaining the address from Khalil's license plate number.

When the detectives were at the front door speaking with Khalil's daughter, they heard a gunshot. The detectives found Al-Jamal in a rear bathroom, dead with a gunshot to the head.

Luncheon

The S.A.T. (Suburban Activity Therapist) meeting will be held on Thursday, July 15th at Holy Family Villa, McCarthy Rd. and Fr. Linkus Dr., Lemont. The meeting is an annual luncheon. The cost of the luncheon is $7.50. The formal meeting begins at 9 a.m.

Kustra Asks For More Flood Volunteer Help

As flood waters continue to rise in Illinois, Lt. Gov. Bob Kustra recognized the individuals who have assisted flood victims and encouraged others to join the effort.

"The people who are volunteering to help those affected by the flood demonstrate the kind of community spirit that exemplifies the best of Illinois. They are doing an outstanding job under most difficult conditions," Kustra said.

Kustra directs the state's Office of Volunteer Action, which encourages Illinoisans to serve their communities as volunteers.

"Thousands of volunteers are working alongside members of the National Guard and local emergency personnel to do everything from protecting property with sandbags to making sandwiches for volunteers and those left homeless by the flooding," Kustra said. "Because the flood situation has been so severe and prolonged, many volunteers are exhausted from their round-the-clock work and need replacements to help with sandbagging and managing shelters."

In addition, agencies assisting flood victims with emergency food and shelter are suggesting monetary contributions, rather than canned goods, so they can prepare meals for large numbers of people.

Anyone interested in contributing can send donations to their local American Red Cross chapter's Disaster Relief Fund.

Medical personnel interested in shelters should contact their local American Red Cross chapters. The Red Cross also is conducting disaster relief volunteer training courses in several sites to train individuals in all types of disaster relief work. Those new volunteers will be able to relieve those who have been working steadily for many days.

Illinoisans willing to donate their time and energy to flood relief efforts can contact the Illinois Emergency Management Agency's Emergency Operating Center at (217) 782-2649. The IEMA Operating Center will refer them to a local county coordinator who can direct individuals to where they are most needed.

"There is a lot of work to be done," Kustra said. "Flood-ravaged communities face many more days battling rising water and eventually must begin the long, hard cleanup process. We are fortunate to have the help of residents and others from around the state working together to support each other during these difficult times."

Selective Service Board Appointees

The following Chicago South Area Office residents were recently appointed as Selective Service System local board members, serving Cook County. Board members must be nominated for the position by the Governor prior to appointment by the director of Selective Service in the name of the President. The appointees included Sol L. Griffin Jr. and Ms. Ann Martin.

The Selective Service System's local boards, although in an inactive status, would be responsible for deciding claims for certain classifications, such as conscientious objection, hardship and religious ministry, should a draft be reinstituted by Congress and the President. Although there is no plan to draft men into the military service at present, there is a need to develop a readiness in the Selective Service System in case a national emergency necessitates such action.

These Board Members will begin a comprehensive training program to prepare for this possibility. Training begins with approximately 12 hours of instruction over a two-day period focusing on an intensive orientation to the Selective Service System, the major duties and responsibilities of the local board members, and the procedures to be followed by the board.

There are now 42,415 men registered with the Selective Service System from the Chicago South Area Office. These young men are fulfilling the legal requirement to register with the Selective Service and are thereby accepting an important responsibility of living in this country.

The dedication of all board members assures that these young men would receive a fair and effective classification process by able, trained and objective individuals should the need for such a system arise.

MVCC Toastmasters

Moraine Valley Community College recently chartered a new Toastmasters Club with 23 members.

The new club, Chautauqua, meets at 7 p.m. on the second and fourth Wednesday of each month on the campus, 10900 S. 88th Ave.

Toastmasters provides a friendly, supportive environment to develop communication skills, conversational techniques, listening skills and humor. Discussion techniques, public speaking presentations and constructive evaluations are among the methods used by Toastmasters to help people become more confident communicators.

Benefits of the club include becoming a better conversationalist, being more comfortable at presenting information at meetings and learning to overcome the fears of speaking before an audience. The club is open to interested community members. For more information, call Bill Wendt at (708) 974-5735.

A New Plan For Juror Pool

Gov. Jim Edgar recently acted to broaden the pools of prospective jurors by signing legislation requiring that all licensed motorists in Cook County and more individuals with disabilities throughout Illinois be considered for jury duty.

"A trial by a jury of one's peers is one of the most fundamental rights we enjoy in this country," the governor said. "This legislation will eliminate restrictions on jury service and make jury lists more representative of the population in each individual county."

Approved by the governor was House Bill 1010, which adds to the jury lists individuals who hold Illinois Identification Cards and Illinois Disabled Person Identification Cards.

It also authorizes the court to appoint an interpreter to aid jurors who are deaf or hard-of-hearing during their deliberations.

"Illinoisans with disabilities are sometimes denied the right to sit on juries because they often do not hold driver's licenses or do not vote," Edgar said. "This is an important step toward allowing them to fulfill their civic responsibilities and an important move toward full recognition of the goals of the Americans with Disabilities Act."

Effective immediately, it was sponsored by Reps. Jack Kubik (R-Forest Park) and Margaret Parcels (R-Northfield) and Sen. Judy Baar Topinka (R-Riverside).

The governor also approved Senate Bill 294 which will require the jury commissioners of Cook County to include all licensed Illinois drivers from the county on jury lists, as is done in every other county in the state.

Currently, the jury commissioners have the authority to include holders of driver's licenses on their jury selection lists but have picked potential jurors solely from voter registration rolls.

The measure was sponsored by Sen. Gary LaPaille (D-Chicago) and Reps. William Black (R-Danville) and Ellis Levin (D-Chicago). It is effective Jan. 1st, 1994.

Also signed by Edgar was House Bill 1951 which authorizes Winnebago County and other counties with populations between 225,000 and 1 million residents to allow up to two grand juries to sit at one time.

Effective Jan. 1st, 1994, it also will affect DuPage, Kane, Lake, McHenry, St. Clair and Will counties.

"This measure, introduced by Winnebago County legislators, will aid local law enforcement authorities and state's attorneys in the investigation and prosecution of crimes in those counties," Edgar said.

It was sponsored by Reps. Michael Rotello (D-Rockford), E.J. "Zeke" Giorgi (D-Rockford) and Barbara Giolitto (D-Rockford) and Sen. Dave Syverson (R-Rockford).

The governor also approved Senate Bill 993 that requires teachers of the deaf and hard-of-hearing to demonstrate a proficiency in sign language before receiving their certification.

The State Board of Education will determine minimum proficiency standards for the teachers. Currently, teachers must pass a subject matter certification test which assumes some knowledge of sign language.

The bill was sponsored by Sen. Vince Demuzio (D-Carlinville) and Reps. Tom Ryder (R-Jerseyville) and Ellis Levin (D-Chicago).

It is effective July 1st, 1995.

VAT Booklet

Despite the fact a value added tax (VAT) to pay for health care reform and deficit reduction has received lukewarm support across the U.S., ongoing tax discussions virtually assure another look at this tax, notes tax and business law publisher Commerce Clearing House (CCH). In the spirit of debate, not to mention 80 years of expertise in the tax arena, CCH has published a 32-page booklet "Is There A VAT In Your Future? - The Pros And Cons Of A Value Added Tax."

"Is There A VAT In Your Future?" sheds light on the coming debate, said the publisher, which noted that Americans, including tax professionals, lack familiarity with the VAT concept.

A VAT is a sales tax levied at every stage in the production and delivery of goods and services, not just at the retail level. VAT already is used in most of the developed world including the entire European Economic Community, Canada and Japan.

"Is There A VAT In Your Future?" details how the tax works as well as the impact on jobs and savings, who bears the burden, effects on international trade and costs to business and government.

Copies of "Is There A VAT In Your Future? - The Pros And Cons Of A Value-Added Tax" (Item 5357) at $6.50 each, are available by calling CCH's cash item department toll-free at 1-(800)-248-3248, Dept. 3376, or writing that department at 4025 W. Peterson Ave., Chicago, IL 60646.

Special discounts are provided for professionals, organizations and schools who place large quantity orders. Customized cover imprinting also can be secured on orders of 50 or more.

Dwindling Water Supply Warning

By U.S. Senator Paul Simon

Water is one of those things most of us assume we can drink and consume without problems, other than paying for it. But it is not that way everywhere — and before too many years water will emerge as a headline problem.

People who travel to other nations frequently find themselves drinking bottled water, because the local water is not safe.

The world population continues to grow, but our water supply does not.

In the troubled Middle East, Israel and her Arab neighbors are meeting regularly, finally, but if tomorrow they solve the problems of who is entitled to what land, in 10 years the Middle East will explode on the issue of water, if some technical breakthroughs are not achieved.

The capital of Syria — Damascus — already has had to cut off much of the city from water because of its shortage. And Syria is doubling its population every 15 years. Where will they be in Damascus 15 years from now?

Two-thirds of the world's population has to go to supplies outside of the home in order to get water, according to an article in the German publication Der Spiegel.

The United Nations has warned that in 30 years, two-thirds of the people of Africa will face severe water shortages.

The great threat to the world today is no longer world Communism, but instability. What will happen in Africa, in the Middle East and in other regions when people cannot get water? Most of the world's major rivers run through more than one country, and some of them will be fighting over

Hats off to Bridgeview Mayor John Oremus, Village Officials and residents for their compassionate donation of 60,000 gallons of fresh water, destined for the Des Moines area. Rampaging flood waters from the swollen Raccoon River polluted the city's water treatment facility, shutting off the drinking water supply to more than a quarter of a million people. The Village of Bridgeview donated the water which cost approximately $170 and emergency crews in Des Moines are to supervise the distribution of the fresh water.

Oremus commented, "I'm almost 80-years-old and have never seen flooding problems like those in Iowa. It bothers me to see such suffering and the donation of water is the least we could do."

Village Trustee Joe Kaput added, "It's not a really major donation but 60,000 gallons of water means a lot to people who have nothing."

Oremus, who has been sidelined with a broken leg for the last six weeks, attended the meeting in a wheel chair. Trustees have been taking turns as temporary chairmen during the absence of Oremus...but Oremus insisted on being present for this meeting.

State legislators may be experiencing difficulty in agreeing on a budget, however one piece of funding legislation has been signed into law by Governor Jim Edgar. The new law is a funding measure for financially strapped libraries. The legislation, proposed by Secretary of State George Ryan, who is also State Librarian, is expected to provide $18.9 million in new funding for libraries. Edgar, who served as Secretary of State and State Librarian before becoming governor, is a great believer in the public library system and feels that this is money well spent.

The legislation increases license plate transfer fees and title costs; License plate transfers are to go from the current $2 to $12 and title costs go from the present $5 to $13.

Despite partisan wrangling over the budget, widespread bi-partisan support was evident in the passage of the library funding measure.

"Even without licking, they keep sticking" is what the United States Postal Service says about their new pressure sensitive 29¢ commemorative stamp, issued on June 25. The Red Squirrel stamp is the first of several new self-adhesive stamps to be issued this year.

Other self-sticking stamps scheduled for release in 1993 include a rose design in August, an eagle in October and a snowman for the holiday season.

The U.S. Postal Service issued its first self-adhesive stamp in 1974 when it introduced a dove design.

John McNamara, Worth Township Democratic Committeeman and director of satellite operations for the Cook County Recorder of Deeds, will be feted at his third annual golf outing on Thursday, Aug. 12th at the Old Oak Country Club, 143rd and Parker Rd., Lockport. The event is sponsored by Citizens For John McNamara. Tickets are $75 each with $50 for golf only and $30 for dinner only. More information is available from chairman Joyce Conti at (708) 422-9300.

A representative from the Illinois Department of Tourism is scheduled to speak at the Worth Township Regular Republican Organization meeting on Thursday, July 15th. Illinois as an attractive vacationland for a weekend or for an extended tour is the highlight of the talk. In addition, state legislators and local elected officials will be on hand to answer questions or speak on "the state of the state, county or township." President Bob Buttala will call the meeting to order at 8:15 p.m. sharp, in the Johnson-Phelps VFW Post, 9514 S. 52nd Ave. Refreshments will be served.

Senator William "Bill" Shaw (D-15) will hold an open house at his new district office, 3300 W. 159th St., Markham, on Saturday, July 17, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Portions of Shaw's district is part of the former 39th District held by Senator Richard Kelly Jr. of Hazelcrest. The other portion of the 39th is now held by Senator Patrick O'Malley of Palos. It's all part of the redistricting map drawn by the Republicans.

water if we do not find answers.

Recently Senator Harry Reid, Democrat of Nevada, and Senator Hank Brown, Republican of Colorado, and I visited the edge of what once was the Aral Sea in Uzbekistan.

It has lost two-thirds of its water. We stood at the edge of what had been a port, looking down 50 to 75 feet to dry land at what once was a port city; but now the water is 35 miles from the port city and from the boats.

A 225-bed hospital we visited there had one small pipe bringing water into a bucket. That was the water supply for this hospital!

California faces a water shortage and farmers there have been told to cut back water use by at least 50 percent. That will soon result in higher prices for fruits and vegetables for consumers in Illinois.

But California also illustrates what can be the answer to our problem.

What we need to do is something President John F. Kennedy talked about in 1962: find less expensive ways of converting salt water to fresh water. We use desalted water now for drinking in many places, but for agricultural or industrial uses, the process is too expensive.

I have introduced legislation to push research on this, legislation that passed the Senate last year but was bogged down in the House of Representatives. We may succeed this year.

The United States and other nations must make a priority of this research, not an obvious need today, but water will become a huge problem in a few years if we do not address the research needs now.

State Libraries Get New Monies

Gov. Jim Edgar recently signed legislation proposed by Secretary of State George H. Ryan to provide new funding for libraries throughout Illinois and for the state's program that encourages individuals to become organ donors.

"Libraries are our link with the past and our path to the future," the governor said. "Libraries are an investment that pays tremendous dividends. They improve the quality of life in our communities, and they give our children and citizens an avenue and the resources to pursue both their educations and their individual interests."

The governor was to be joined by Ryan, who also is State Librarian, and Mayor Richard M. Daley as he signed the 'Live & Learn' legislation during ceremonies at the Harold Washington Library.

"I'm proud that I was able to increase funding for Illinois libraries when I was Secretary of State, and I applaud Secretary Ryan for developing this innovative program and suggesting the nominal fee increases that will make additional funding available for libraries and the worthwhile services they provide," Edgar said. "In addition, it will bolster the state's efforts to promote awareness of the importance of organ donations by all Illinoisans."

The program is expected to generate $33 million a year, including an increase of $18.9 million, or nearly 60 percent, in state support for libraries.

Those funds will provide a nearly 34 percent increase in per-resident grants for libraries, more than triple the state funding for school libraries and create a new $5 million-a-year fund for library expansion and accessibility projects.

Through the program, the Chicago Public Library will receive $2.6 million to restore Monday hours at the downtown Harold Washington Library and to allow the city's 41 neighborhood libraries to be open longer.

"Live and Learn will help ensure that our libraries -- as cornerstones of our communities -- continue to inform, entertain, educate and unify us as a society," Ryan said. "Just as important, it will help our state fulfill a responsibility to the nearly 1,500 people who are spending their days hoping to beat the clock for a chance at an organ transplant and a better life."

The program will provide $2 million annually for efforts to increase awareness of the critical need for organ and tissue donation.

"Every Illinois resident should be aware that organ donors can offer hope and new life to people whose own organs have failed," Edgar said. "Through the organ donor awareness program, we can save the needless deaths of people who die in need of a new organ or new tissue."

It also includes a permanent funding source for the Secretary of State's office to replenish the state's supply of license plates and to honor other ongoing commitments.

To fund the program, the vehicle title fee, which was last raised in 1990, will increase to $13 from $5. The processing charge for transferring a license plate, which has not been increased since 1969, will go to $12 from $2.

The increases will take effect in 60 days.

Sponsors of the measure, House Bill 2123, were Reps. Michael Madigan (D-Chicago), Lee Daniels (R-Elmhurst), Mary Lou Cowlishaw (R-Naperville), Judith Erwin (D-Chicago), Ellis Levin (D-Chicago), Roger McAuliffe (R-Chicago) and Jack Kubik (R-Forest Park) and Sens. James "Pate" Philip (R-Wood Dale), John Cullerton (D-Chicago) and Patrick O'Malley (R-Palos Park).

County Program

Cook County Board President Richard Phelan recently took a major step toward meeting his pledge to increase the number of minority and female workers hired for the county's construction projects. Phelan announced a pilot program, Worksite 2000, which will work to improve outreach among minorities, females and the economically disadvantaged by informing them of upcoming projects and employment and training opportunities. Cook County established Worksite 2000 and chose Division XI, the county's latest and largest jail addition, as the pilot site to implement parts of the program, such as outreach and construction site workshops on topics including sexual harassment.

"Eventually we want the program to involve all the projects in the county's capital program so that we can encourage direct employment of more women and minority workers and develop links with apprenticeship and other job training opportunities," Phelan said.

A little wet, but summer is with us and isn't it nice?

The Y Service League is inviting you to join them on Wednesday, July 21st, for a relaxing trip to beautiful Lake Shafer, Indiana. They suggest you let your mind wander back to when you were a youngster and you were on your way to Riverview Park, how excited you were when you walked in the gate and left all your cares behind you! The first stop will be the Skyroom restaurant overlooking the lake where a family-style lunch will be served. After lunch you will board the paddlewheel sightseeing vessel for a cruise presenting a panorama of water recreation, golf courses, vacation facilities and summer homes. On shore there's a professional water ski show on the lake at 1:30 and 3:30. Selected rides and attractions are also included. Along the boardwalk, you can browse at your leisure where you will find gift shops, glass blowing, sportswear, novelty shops and food stands. The cost of the trip is $35.50 for seniors 50 or over, or $38.50 for anyone 49 and under. Reservations can be made by calling Evelyn Schultz at (312) 585-5029 or Joan Mozerka at (708) 422-4911. In the police reports of June 24th, a report was made by a woman who reported her ring was missing. She mentioned to the police three people who were at her house. The father of Sue Radulovic called because her name was mentioned as one of those present, that she is 16 and a juvenile. Her age was NOT mentioned in the police report, but we regret that her family was upset. The woman who made the report did not allege that any of the three were responsible for the missing ring.

Residents Concerned Over Car Crash

At a recent Hometown City Council meeting, Jack O'Donnell approached the board reporting an accident that happened at Paterson Park. A car had crashed through the fence in the parking lot. O'Donnell stated that just about one-half hour before the accident the parking lot was full, as a baseball game had just ended and everyone was getting into their cars. He said that he and several other parents feel that a guard rail is needed at the site so that this kind of accident does not happen again as the fence did not stop the car.

Mayor Robertson and most of those present felt that this matter should be discussed with the park board and that the city will have to see where the funds are available for the installation of either a guard rail or a new fence. Robertson stated that he will have Director of Public Works Madden get prices for the project before the park board meeting and the city council will know the cost of either a fence or guard rail.

It was stated by Alderman Masino that there may also be a problem along Southwest Highway, on the east side of the street, as in that area there are only about six inches between cars and people walking. It was said that there would probably be about a three-week time period before anything could be done.

In other business, Mayor Robertson appointed various officials, mostly to one-year terms. For city attorney/prosecutor, Louis F. Cankar, Ltd.; to the electrical commission, Gregory Grochowski, Alan Polehonki, Mark Sikorski and John Higgins, Jr.; and to the zoning board of appeals, Terence Mulhall, to fill the unexpired term of Judith Spirakes until April 30th, 1996. The following two-year appointments were also made: Raymond J. Czajka to the police pension board and Bruce Norris to the ETSB 9-1-1. Rehired for the following year were city auditors, Wagner, Sim and Company, and city engineers, R.W. Robinson.

All appointments were approved.

"Pork-Busters"

State Rep. Maureen Murphy (R-36) recently joined forces with a non-partisan group of legislators, government watchdogs and private sector leaders trying to root out wasteful state spending. The non-partisan group, called "Pork-Busters of Illinois," was unveiled at a State House press conference held on the beginning of Illinois government's new fiscal year, July 1st. Aside from Rep. Murphy, the other founders include state Sen. Chris Lauzen (R-21), the Illinois Manufacturers' Association and Taxpayers Federation of Illinois.

"We're making a firm 'New Year's Resolution' to change the attitude of 'business as usual' in Springfield. Innovative ways can be employed to cut spending instead of tapping taxpayers for more money in taxes," Rep. Murphy said. "Just as life imitates art, government can mirror business. We can accomplish more with less. We can better safeguard the people's pocketbook by practicing some lessons on accountability. When times are tough, you cut waste - just like businesses and families do every day."

Murphy also said the legislature and executive branches could become co-equal partners in drafting and approving annual fiscal year budgets. Pork-Busters of Illinois, among others, can help define priorities by identifying waste and rechannel those tax dollars toward necessary goals.

"More than one-third of the House and Senate has new blood in its ranks," Murphy said, noting that she is one of 44 freshman House members this session. "We come from many backgrounds in the private sector and local government. As a former school board member, the task of budget preparation was a shared responsibility between administrators and elected officials."

"However, in the Springfield arena, we have found this task of identifying waste and even approving the budget to be a process that excludes rather than includes new ideas and solutions," Murphy said. "The executive branch drafts a budget with little input from the legislature. Worse yet, the final decision comes down within the last 72 hours of the old fiscal year and near the end of our spring session."

"Pork-Busters of Illinois wants to change this process-driven system between the legislative and executive branches that has operated since Illinois became a state 175 years ago," she said.

Pork-Busters intends to be aggressive in exposing, disclosing and eliminating waste. One of the key elements in this approach will be a toll-free hotline (1-800-ILL-PORK) which is already operating.

The group's basic approach includes: involve people from the public and private sectors to spot waste and eliminate it. The participants could include citizens, as well as representatives from management, government, labor and public interest. Operate a clear set of principles and guidelines to identify and evaluate projects to get rid of waste. Collect instances of waste, as well as cost-cutting ideas, from the hotline, and work with agencies and appropriation staffs to fulfill ideas to save taxpayer dollars.

"The idea behind Pork-Busters is to demonstrate that we care how money is spent. We think the old way of doing it can be changed," Murphy said.

POLICE CALLS

The following incidents were reported by the Oak Lawn Police Department. Readers are reminded that an arrest by police does not constitute a finding of guilt and only a court of law can make that determination.

WINCHESTER HONORED BY ILLINOIS DEPARTMENT OF CONSERVATION - Winchester Ammunition, a division of Olin Corporation, was recently honored by the Illinois Department of Conservation (IDOC) for its support and its longstanding commitment to conservation, hunter education, and the conservation department's hunting programs.

Facing a budget shortfall this year, the department solicited assistance from WINCHESTER to print the state's hunting licenses, deer and turkey permits. The famous horse and rider logo graces the licenses and permits, along with Winchester's slogan - WHAT AMERICA SHOOTS.

Brent Manning, director of IDOC and Lou Matsko, manager of systems and licensing, recognized WINCHESTER'S contribution and continuing support of the state's conservation programs by presenting a wood plaque mounted with a bronzed letter of appreciation from Governor Jim Edgar.

CANADA GEESE NUMBERS DOWN BY 30 PERCENT - Wisconsin DNR spring survey of the Mississippi Valley population of Canada geese indicated the population is still suffering the effects of a 1992 freak spring snowstorm that struck just after the birds had hatched, causing heavy gosling loss. Illinois is part of the Mississippi flyway. Setting conservative harvest numbers this fall is a distinct possibility.

IT'S ABOUT TIME - Hailed for over 14 years as the nation's leading sport fishing event, the Chicagoland Sport Fishing, Travel & Outdoors show has quickly become the Midwest's favorite hunting hot spot as well. In fact, public response was so positive after the '93 debut of the new hunting pavilion that the show has moved to expand the area again in '94. Located upstairs, six times the size of the former Pavilion, the show will unveil its new Hunting Hall.

Packed with even more of the latest hunting gear, outfitters and seminars, the hall will offer something for every type of sportsman, from the hard-core hunter down to the novice outdoorsman.

"Hundreds of our attendee surveys came back requesting more hunting. Add that to the latest national statistics that show over 7.5 million licensed hunters in the Midwest, and the expansion of the hunting area was a must," said Keith Ogulnick, show manager. "We've answered the call with a top-notch hunting hall, packed with the biggest hitters in the hunting industry. Whether you're a veteran or a beginner, this is one event you won't want to miss!"

The players will spend six days on the ISU campus, which will include practice sessions with a group of outstanding high school football coaches from various conferences throughout the state. GREAT FUN FOR ALL

CUB Fights Com Ed Offshoot

The Citizens Utility Board (CUB) is launching a statewide organizing campaign aimed at convincing Gov. Jim Edgar to veto a bill that could lead to massive rate hikes for customers of Commonwealth Edison, the state's largest electric company. Legislators in the House and Senate approved the bill on June 30th after Com Ed waged a multi-million dollar lobbying campaign. CUB had asked rejection of the measure.

The bill, SB 770, would allow Com Ed to set up a new, unregulated company that would provide alternative service to Edison's largest customers. While Edison stockholders would pocket all the profits from the new company, consumers could be forced to pay higher electric rates to Com Ed to cover those lost sales.

CUB estimates the plan could boost bills for Edison customers by as much as $519 million, or between $70 and $80, for the average residential customer, by the end of the decade. That would leave Edison's rates the highest in the Midwest and third highest in the nation, according to a recent survey.

"Com Ed has misled lawmakers and the public about the true impact of this bill from day one," CUB President Katie Troccoli added. "Regardless of what Com Ed's lobbyists say, this bill will lead to huge rate hikes for consumers for years to come."

Although the utility claims the measure would not raise rates, the company refused to include language CUB proposed to lock in that guarantee.

Along with providing special deals to large-volume customers, Com Ed has acknowledged it also wants to use the looser regulations in the bill to ship investment overseas to foreign business ventures.

Such investment plans provide no benefits to consumers and could lead to higher rates, especially if losses from the new business threaten the utilities' financial integrity.

CUB is asking consumers to call Gov. Edgar at 1(800)642-3112 and ask him to veto SB 770. For more information, call CUB at 1(800)669-5556.

Make-A-Wish Receives Toy Donations

July and August are beginning to look a lot like Christmas at the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Northern Illinois, thanks to efforts of a group of independent educational toy consultants representing Discovery Toys. During the two-month period, Make-A-Wish will receive $20 in toys for every $100 sold by the eight participating area Discovery Toys reps. In addition, the group will encourage customers buying toys at their home parties and corporate displays to donate an additional educational toy to Make-A-Wish.

"We wanted to do something that makes a difference beyond just selling toys," said toy consultant Beverly Hornaday. "We really believe in the educational value and quality of these toys and, by aligning ourselves with Make-A-Wish, hope to share them with even more children."

Linda Giovacchini, executive director of the Make-A-Wish Foundation's Northern Illinois chapter, said the donated toys will be used to embellish wishes fulfilled by the chapter, and for gifts at the numerous hospital parties held throughout the year.

Sold exclusively through a network of independent consultants, Discovery Toys, toys, books and games, are safe, durable and come with a one-year unconditional guarantee. Corporations or individuals are invited to purchase Discovery Toys for donation to Make-A-Wish. For information on how to reach participating representatives, contact Ms. Hornaday at (708) 487-1736.

Wet Weather Driving Safety Tips

By Secretary of State
George H. Ryan

Early spring showers can make driving hazardous by increasing the possibility of skidding. Surface oil and grease form a slick film that is not washed away until after 20 or 30 minutes of hard rain. Hydroplaning is another risk of driving on wet pavement.

Q. What is hydroplaning?
A. Hydroplaning, which is caused by speeding or too little tire pressure or tread, occurs at about 35 miles per hour when tires begin to lose contact with the road surface. At speeds up to 35 mph, most tires "wipe" the road like a windshield wiper. However, as the speed increases, tires actually ride up on a thin layer of water like a set of water skis.

Q. What if I start to skid?

A. If you start to skid at speeds less than 55 mph, you should be able to regain control by taking your foot off the accelerator and letting the car slow down. Steer in the direction you want the front of the car to go.

Q. What are the dangers of driving more than 55 mph?

A. You will be unable to brake, accelerate or corner because tires can lose all contact with the road at 55 mph. As a result, a gust of wind, curve in the road or slight turn can throw your vehicle into an uncontrollable skid. If this occurs, release the accelerator and ride out the skid.

Windy City Dancers entertained Vets as Lee Aio' of Frankfort and Marylou McKendree of Alsip of the Windy City South Side Jitterbug Club cut a rug at a fund raiser for the Disabled American Veterans Association (DAVA). Members of the club recently entertained Jesse Brown, Secretary for Veterans Affairs, and a crowd of over 200 at a fund raiser for Chapter 47 of the DAV. The Affair, the annual induction dinner for incoming officers, featured a keynote address by Brown, himself a disabled veteran. The dancers entertained the audience with sights and sounds of the 1940s (W.W.II), the 50s (Korea), and the 60s (Viet Nam) with jitterbug the thing as the guys and gals of the troop got members of the audience up to "swing." In addition to the dancing, the group provided some comic relief with their lip synch versions of several old classics, the high points being the 1940s hit "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy" and "Rum & Coca Cola." These featured Judy Dixon, Marylou McKendree, and Sharon Malin as the Andrews Sisters, complete with military garb.

Dancers and entertainers from the Windy City South Side Jitterbug Club are available at no charge to entertain or help non-profit organizations with their fund-raising events. They have been featured at a fund raiser for Moraine Valley Junior College and recently entertained our hospitalized veterans at the West Side VA Hospital. If you are interested in having the "South Side" dancers help out with your fund raiser, or if you would like them to entertain your senior citizen or church/school group, call the South Side Club at (708) 597-5597 (afternoons and evenings).

The Windy City South Side Jitterbug Club, which meets monthly, is currently welcoming new members. The dancing is strictly 40s, 50s and 60s, no freestyle or disco. All levels of skill are welcome, and lessons are free to members. Guests are welcome for a $6 donation.

Reporting Award To Moraine Valley

Moraine Valley Community College recently received a Certificate of Excellence in Financial Reporting by School Systems from the Association of School Business Officials International (ASBO). The certificate is a voluntary program sponsored by ASBO to foster excellence in the preparation and issuance of school system financial reports. A certificate is awarded to those school systems which have voluntarily submitted their comprehensive annual financial report for review by an ASBO panel.

Upon completion of a vigorous technical review, the panel members concluded that MVCC's financial report met the criteria for excellence in financial reporting.

Founded in 1910 through the auspices of the U.S. Department of Education, ASBO is an international, professional educational organization that sponsors continuing educational programs for business supervisors and administrators in public and private schools at the elementary, secondary and junior and community college levels.

Last year, only one community college in Illinois received the certificate of excellence award from ASBO.

Small Business Loan Woes

The fate of the U.S. Small Business Administration's (SBA) successful guaranteed loan programs is resting on supplemental appropriations in President Clinton's proposed economic stimulus bill. Without these funds, the agency will have used all of its $3.6 billion of FY 1993 allotments by the end of April, potentially shutting down the agency's popular 7(a) program and others for months. As the White House and Congress work at paring down the bill, the SBA's coffers are rapidly being depleted by the nation's cash-starved small businesses.

According to Tony Wilkinson, president of the National Association of Government Guaranteed Lenders, Inc. (NAGGL), the small business community is concerned that federal officials are working under the mistaken belief that the SBA is calling for an additional $2.5 billion, a number widely circulated in the media and around Capitol Hill. In fact, only $141 million of additional appropriations are being sought, the amount needed for the agency to issue loan guarantees of $2.5 billion.

"With the SBA's guarantee programs, the government needs very little cash outlay to create a much larger economic stimulus," explained Wilkinson. "The loans are actually made by private sector banks and other lending institutions. The government simply guarantees a portion of the loan to lessen the lender's risk, easing access to capital for small businesses."

Through the 7(a) program, the government is, in effect, leveraging private sector capital at a rate of nearly 20 to one. But a continued heavy demand for SBA-backed loans continues to strain the program's resources. Even with recently-passed legislation allowing the SBA to borrow from its allotments for future quarters, at the current rate, all FY 1993 appropriations will be depleted by April 27th, leaving the SBA without any guaranty authority until October, when the new fiscal year begins.

"The new administration must find a long-term solution to this problem," said Wilkinson. "It would be a devastating loss to the nation's economy if small businesses were cut off from this important source of capital."

Through its partnership with private sector lenders, the SBA is, in fact, the number one financial backer of small business in the United States. Last year alone, lending institutions involved in the SBA's 7(a) program provided over $5.6 billion in funding to small businesses. SBA-backed lending is already on a pace to exceed last year's record loan volume, with estimates putting total volume upwards of $7 billion, if the guaranty authority is available. And by fiscal 1994, demand for SBA-backed loans is expected to reach as high as $8 billion.

However, according to figures released by the office of management and budget, the president is actually planning to cut the SBA's 1994 budget by 12.5 percent, leaving the agency's guaranty authority far short of the anticipated demand.

"I'm really beginning to question the sincerity of the president's professed support of small businesses," said Wilkinson. "How can he show support by crippling their primary source of capital; capital they need to grow their businesses, create jobs and generate tax revenues?"

On School Board

The Community High School District 218 Board of Education has appointed Neil Hodur, an Oak Lawn resident, to fill its vacant seat from voting district No. 7. Hodur replaces James Craig, who resigned from the board in June. Hodur, a professor of optometry at the Illinois College of Optometry, operates a private practice as an optometrist in Oak Lawn. He graduated with his doctorate from the Illinois College of Optometry in 1975 and has taught at the school since then.

Hodur's connection to District 218 includes coaching the girls soccer team at Richards High School since 1990, and working as an assistant boys soccer coach at Richards since 1991. Hodur also coached soccer, softball and baseball in Oak Lawn from 1981 to 1991.

In his letter of application, Hodur expressed a desire to contribute to the community.

"My reasons for pursuing a position on the school board of District 218 are really twofold. First, I like kids and I believe that I can contribute to the educational process.

Second, I have a desire to contribute to the community in which I live."

Drowning Victims

Divers from the Illinois State Police Department recovered the body of an Oak Lawn resident from Lake Michigan on Tuesday. George Samuels, 57, was killed on Sunday in a boating accident that also claimed the life of 46-year-old Linda Settles, an Orland Park resident. The body was found in Lake Michigan near the Calumet Harbor breakwater off 83rd St.

The body was discovered near the spot where the accident occurred. On Monday, the U.S. Coast Guard had found Samuel's 26-foot boat capsized and submerged, with Settles' body inside. The boat was found approximately three-quarters of a mile offshore.

According to the Coast Guard, Samuel's boat apparently crashed into the north side of the breakwater Sunday night as the boaters headed toward the harbor.

The Cook County Medical Examiner's office conducted an autopsy of Settles' body on Tuesday and determined that she had head injuries, but the cause of death was attributed to drowning.

SANTA FE...When someone mentions the word Santa Fe many people think of a city of northeast Argentina founded in 1573. Still others think of the capital of New Mexico established first in 1609 by the Spanish as a trade center and eventually the state capital in 1912. Many historians think of the Santa Fe Trail, a trade route to the southwest portions of the United States extending from Independence, Missouri to Santa Fe, New Mexico. The Santa Fe Trail was the primary wagon and stage route starting in 1821 and remained so until 1880 when the Trail was replaced by the railroad. Locally, the name Santa Fe is synonymous with Santa Fe Speedway which this Saturday will mark its 41st year of operation. Constructed in 1896, Santa Fe Park was the dream of Illinois pioneer Frederick Tiedt. The elder Tiedt first constructed a picnic grove at 91st and Wolf Road, later the site became a horse racing track and then a fairground. In 1953, Tiedt's son Howard built the now famous clay oval raceway that quickly became known as Santa Fe Speedway. This Saturday night, Santa Fe Speedway will celebrate its Founder's Day with the annual Howard W. Tiedt Memorial "50" Stock Car Classic.

BETTE MIDLER AND SARAH JESSICA PARKER (inset) star in the Walt Disney live-action comedy "Hocus Pocus" which opens at local theatres all over the Chicago area tomorrow. The movie is about a trio of triple-threat demons, banished from Salem, Massachusetts 300 years ago for practicing sorcery, but they vowed to reappear, and they do, weaving an outrageous web of comedy and chaos...When you first wake up in the morning flip on Channel Five at 6 a.m. to catch the hi-jinks of Allison Rosati, Bob Strott and Roberta Gonzales on the always informative and amusing "First Thing in the Morning," and the picture isn't so blurred, don't write it off to just a good night's sleep or a night when you were not over-served. No, Channel Five has installed a state-of-the-art transmitter from the world's tallest building, the Sears Tower. The new transmitter has significantly reduced ghosting problems in various parts of the city and suburbs. A source close to the "First Thing in the Morning" cast said plans were in the works to do a "Coffee Cam" segment from the 101st floor of the Sears Tower, with Allison, Bob and Roberta pulling the switch on the new transmitter, but acrophobia played a major role in scuttling the remote. Just kidding, gang!

DANNY HERMAN AND HOLLIS RESNIK (inset) are into the final month of their critically acclaimed musical hit "Song & Dance" at the Candlelight Dinner Playhouse. The Andrew Lloyd Webber play, which tells the story of two young people seeking love and careers in New York City, is scheduled to close on August 15. Next up will be "Oliver!" starring Chicago area favorite Lee Petty which begins previews on Aug. 18 and is set for a limited engagement...Ed Baumann, nationally known crime reporter and author of "May God Have Mercy on Your Son!!," will be the featured speaker next Thursday at 6:30 p.m. when the Chicago Literary Society holds its dinner/reading meeting at Mareva's Restaurant, 1250 N. Milwaukee. In his book, Baumann recounts the last moments of 171 convicted killers executed in Cook County. The author attended every execution in Cook County during nearly four decades of newspaper reporting, but also shares stories of earlier events, including one 1894 case in which a man who was already dead was hanged.

TED DANSON (inset) and Whoopi Goldberg are this close to getting hitched....The 103rd Infantry ("Cactus") Division will hold its 29th reunion at the Hyatt-Regency Woodfield Hotel in Schaumburg, Aug. 26th to 29th. The Division, originally composed of soldiers from Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa and Wisconsin, saw combat in the European Theatre of Operations in World War II. The Division liberated six concentration camps at Landsberg, Germany, then dashed through southern Germany into Austria, capturing Innsbruck and cutting through the Brenner Pass to meet American troops of the Fifth Army. With this link-up, 600,000 German troops were surrounded and captured. The 103rd Division lost 4,558 in killed and wounded in action during World War II. Residents of St. Die in the Vosges Mountains and in Pfaffenhofen in the Moder River Valley of Alsace have erected memorials to the 103rd Division to express their gratitude for their liberation.

Handicapped Special Children Day

There will be a special day for special people on Sunday, Aug. 1st at Gaelic Park, 6119 W. 147th St. The Clare Association has planned a day filled with entertainment, games and food, all at no cost to the handicapped, the seventh annual Handicapped Children Day.

The day begins at 10 a.m. with a special outdoor mass at Gaelic Park. Following mass, an authentic Irish breakfast of eggs, sausage, bacon and pudding is to be served. The handicapped are admitted free and there is a $6 charge for adults and $3 charge for children and seniors for breakfast.

After breakfast there will be games and races in which everyone will be a winner. One of the highlights will be a free grand prize drawing for the special children only. Each special person will receive a special prize.

After the races and games, everyone is invited to stay for an afternoon of Gaelic football and hurling sponsored by the Gaelic Athletic Association. The normal admission is being waived by the GAA for all members attending the mass, breakfast and races. Gaelic Park is donating free pop and hot dogs for the handicapped during the afternoon.

Last year the special day attracted 200 special participants of all ages. The day is open for any person with a physical or mental handicap. In order to participate, the special person must be registered by Saturday, July 17th. All that it takes to register is a phone call to Maureen Boland at (312) 585-8681 or Josephine Murrihy at (708) 636-4043 and give the participant's name, age and type of handicap. "It is important that everyone registers so we can be prepared with the right number and type of gifts," said Maureen Halpin, secretary of the Clare Association.

Top Restaurant

The Cape Cod Room in The Drake Hotel was selected as one of the Top 25 Restaurants in the United States in Sales and Marketing Management Magazine's annual Business Executive Dining Awards Survey.

Over 70,000 Sales and Marketing executives across the nation were surveyed.

The Cape Cod Room was singled out by the most demanding group of customers—business executives who travel extensively and have the highest standards of excellence.

This is the 10th consecutive year that The Cape Cod Room has ranked in the Top 25 Restaurants in the nation. According to the most recent figures from the U.S. Department of Commerce, there are over 180,000 fine dining restaurants in the nation.

The Cape Cod Room, known worldwide for its fresh fish and seafood, has been capturing awards since it opened its doors in 1933.

Jury Selection

Cook County Clerk David Orr's push for jury selection to be made from driver license lists rather than voter registration lists in Cook County was successfully completed recently when Gov. Jim Edgar signed legislation which made this change.

"Registered voters will benefit from an expansion of the juror pool and will not be called as often for jury duty," Orr said. "Prospective voters sometimes declined their right to register to vote because they were concerned about being called for jury duty. This is a particularly good change for moderate and low-income communities because residents of these communities were more likely to decline a chance to register to vote because of concerns about potential time lost at work because of jury service."

Cook was the only county in Illinois which still selected jurors from voter registration lists. This practice had the negative effect of limiting both the number of registered voters and the potential jury pool. This law will take effect this year.

Call 371-2900 for reservations or information.

While some travel, some work, and some take a long-needed break from rigorous studies and activities, 21 Mother McAuley students elected to spend their time over spring break seeing how those less fortunate live and learning what they, as young women, can do to help.

Organized by McAuley theology teachers Judy Bobber and Laura Gawlik, the Youth Experience Service (Y.E.S.) was a three-day event centered around service in the community. This alternative spring break activity gave students the opportunity to investigate different avenues of service opportunities and then choose one to experience for a day. Reactions of the students were positive. Most had never been exposed to service opportunities other than helping in their neighborhoods.

Students were taken to five places to discover the purpose of each location, then they were given the opportunity to return to work at that location for a day. The Austin Career Center focuses on providing motivation and resources for education to help individuals get jobs; St. Elizabeth Catholic Worker House is a shelter for mothers with children; Su Casa provides assistance to political refugees; The Plisen Housing Project is an organization concerned with providing affordable housing in Plisen, and providing assistance to those who live there in an effort to encourage their staying in the neighborhood and Mercy Hospital Medical Center Outreach meets the needs of the poor, and provides continuing medical services to previous patients of Mercy Hospital. Because of the interest of students the Y.E.S. program will be repeated next year.

What Was Happening...

25 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK IN THE COMMUNITY

Joseph A. Scerra, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, has announced the appointment of Alfred Finn of Oak Lawn as national aide-de-camp, recruiting class, VFW.

The highest recognition award, granted on a district level by the Boy Scouts of America, was presented to three area residents recently in recognition of their continuing contributions to local Scouting programs. Recipients of the Award of Merit were Matt Lamb, secretary-treasurer of Blake-Lamb Funeral Homes and past district chairman of Timber Trails District, Chicago Area Council, BSA; Leona Markowski, den mother of Pack 3683 sponsored by Fry School PTA and an instructor in den mother training; William Swihart, Scoutmaster of Troop 618, sponsored by Garden Methodist Church, Oak Lawn; Walter Beres, Jr., assistant district commissioner of Timber Trails District, past assistant Scoutmaster and Wood Badge Training recipient. The awards were conferred at a dinner held recently at the Oak Lawn Holiday Inn.

The need to continue a good, sound commercial development in Oak Lawn, as a sales tax revenue base, was stressed last week by Village President Fred Dumke on the heels of the approval for an auto sales agency lot at 89th St. and Cicero Ave. Dumke, who broke a three-to-three tie vote in favor of the zoning change, defended the action as "good business."

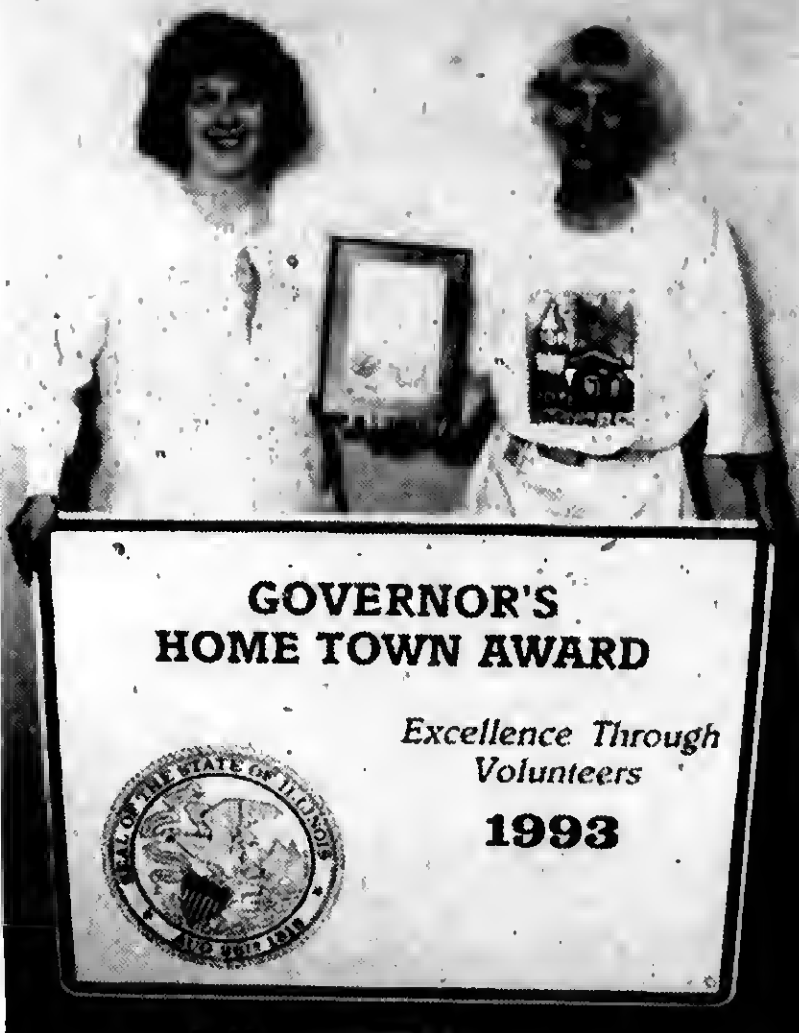

Requests for zoning which would allow a retail liquor store and an apartment complex on the northwest corner of 105th St. and Cicero Ave. were rejected last week by the Oak Lawn Planning and Development Commission. The commission, by unanimous vote, denied the two rezoning petitions. The property now is zoned for office buildings. Emmett Meyer, a member of the commission, said granting either one of the two requests would constitute spot zoning.

Jeffrey R. DeTolve of Oak Lawn has been named to the Dean's List for academic achievement at Villanova University in Pennsylvania, according to the Rev. John M. Driscoll, vice-president.

Dolores Kopf, head librarian of the Oak Lawn Public Library, recently accepted a silver medallion commemorating the 150th anniversary of Illinois' admission to the union, from realtor Frank Boblak of Oak Lawn. The medallions, which contain five full ounces of silver, were produced in limited numbers and originally sold through banks and savings institutions for $30. Due to their scarcity, they have quickly become collectors items. The Oak Lawn Library is in the process of acquiring more items of interest to coin collectors, according to library trustee Ed Meier, who is the founder and first president of the Oak Lawn Coin Club.

"Don't break any speed laws - but come up and see us - we want to see how fast you can get here," said Eddie Stankey this week in telling the Oak Lawn Independent about Slowpoke Night at White Sox Park. The Sox have calculated right down to the minute how long it should take local folk to buzz up to White Sox park for a pleasant evening of baseball. If you get hung up getting out of your driveway, or you have to stop enroute to leave mother's cake at the church bake sale - you get in free, with the Slowpoke pass, which is in this edition of the paper.

Richard C. Hermann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence K. Hermann of Oak Lawn, was recently honored at Michigan Technical University by being made a charter member of Alpha Kappa Psi, business administration fraternity.

EHS Christ Hospital and Medical Center employees Chris Daillo (right), cytology lab technician, and Nancy Crossett (left), 8 South staff nurse, recently helped Oak Lawn earn a Governor's Hometown Award by volunteering to develop and coordinate an American Red Cross program that instructed local PTA members in first aid techniques. PTA members then taught first aid to nearly 600 grammar school students at Sward School. This training provided the students and faculty with important life-saving skills necessary to recognize emergencies and provide basic care for injuries or sudden illnesses. Shortly after the training had been completed a student from Sward School learned the value of first aid skills. By performing techniques learned in his training, he was able to save a choking schoolmate's life. A sign designating Oak Lawn as a winner of the Governor's Hometown Award is being installed along 95th St.

TENDONITIS PROBLEMS

If you have a muscular pain in any part of your body, it may be caused by a condition known as tendonitis (inflammation of a tendon).

The joints in your body, in addition to bone and muscle, include tendons. These are fibrous cords that attach the muscle to the bone. When a tendon becomes inflamed, it can cause pain as sharp as that associated with bursitis. The cause may be excessive stress caused by muscles out of balance.

Every joint has muscles that must work in unison for normal joint movement. As some of the muscles contract or tighten, others relax, and this should happen at the right time and with the right amount of pressure. If the muscles are out of balance, this can result in excessive stress on the tendons, causing irritation and inflammation.

Treatment to restore muscle balance and to check for any misalignments in the spine and nervous system may eliminate the source of the problem and the pain.

If you have any health questions please feel free to call our office.

Incinerator Support

In a strong show of support, the Chicago Southland Chamber of Commerce has voted to endorse the Robbins recycling and trash-to-energy facility.

"The members of the Chicago Southland Chamber of Commerce support the facility as an important element of an integrated solid waste management plan for the south suburbs of Chicago," read the chamber's resolution.

"State policy enacted through the legislature favors trash-to-energy over landfills, and we want to support positive efforts to help our region meet this policy," said Michael Seward, president of the Chicago Southland Chamber of Commerce. "When you look at the Robbins plant in terms of economic development, cost-effectiveness, and the environment, it's difficult not to support it. The plant makes sense for the Chicago Southland region."

The Chicago Southland Chamber serves and represents more than 1,900 members in the Chicago Southland region. The chamber's mission is to create a favorable business environment and image by helping its members contain costs, grow profitably, develop professionally and strengthen the regional economy.

The chamber's decision is an example of growing support for the $300 million Robbins plant. The facility is included in the solid waste plan of the South Suburban Mayors and Managers Association (SSMMA) and the Cook County Board's preliminary plan. In addition, trash-to-energy has been endorsed by state and federal governments, the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, the Chicago and Cook County Building and Construction Trades Council, the Chicago Southland Regional Economic Development Coordinating Council and others.

The chamber endorsement comes on the heels of many positive developments for the Robbins project in recent months, including the Illinois Pollution Control Board's decision to affirm the Village of Robbins' siting approval for the plant; the recent extension of the plant's environmental permits; the finalization of a consent decree with Attorney General Roland Burris, which established an unprecedented environmental monitoring package for the facility; and the release of an independent health impact study confirming that the plant will have no adverse health effects.

Construction is to begin on the facility this year. The facility is designed to operate for approximately 45 years, processing 1,600 tons of trash per day and producing more than 50 megawatts of electricity. When complete, the Robbins plant will process much of the household trash from Chicago's south suburbs. After recycling 25 percent of trash received, the facility will cleanly use the remaining trash to generate electricity. More than 140 trash-to-energy facilities are safely operating in the United States, including ones in such cities as Minneapolis, West Palm Beach, Indianapolis and Oahu.

Reference Library In Transition

Some changes in the non-fiction collection of the Oak Lawn Public Library have been announced by Dr. James Casey, library director. He noted that the reference section of the Suburban Library System, which has been housed at the Oak Lawn Library for the past 15 years, is in the process of moving to the Oak Park Library.

"The system's materials have been mixed with our collections and, therefore, have been readily available for our patrons," he said. "Of course, the move means that some things will be removed to be taken to the new location. Anticipating the change, the staff at Oak Lawn has been working diligently to replace appropriate materials as soon as possible."

He added that there would be a transition period.

Oak Lawn reference staff indicated that other libraries who refer their patrons to Oak Lawn should make their usual advance calls so that patrons will not make unnecessary trips. According to Lillian McAninch, reference librarian supervisor, the staff will continue to make every effort to keep the public informed about sources for reference and research materials.

Additional information about collection changes is available from Dr. Casey or Ms. McAninch.

126 Bus Plans

All bus schedules and pickup times will be mailed out the week of Aug. 2nd for Stony Creek, Hazelgreen and Lane bus riders. Junior high bus information may be picked up at registration on Aug. 12th from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and in the evening from 6 to 8 p.m. and again on Aug. 13th from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Prairie Junior High School.

Park Lawn Winners

Vanessa Bednar, Miss Teen Illinois-World 1993, and Marie Napolillo congratulate Isabelle Levinthal and Carol Pluta on winning first prize in a recent Park Lawn fundraiser. The winners had their choice of a 1993 Mercury Cougar LS, a 30-foot Prowler Camper or $15,000 cash. Proceeds from this fund-raising event benefit the children and adults with mental and physical disabilities at Park Lawn.

School Funding

The General Assembly has passed a proposal by State Sen. Patrick O'Malley (R-Palos Park) to help Illinois schools make the most efficient use of their funding by giving them the option of using non-certified staff in non-teaching situations.

Part of a comprehensive budget agreement approved by state lawmakers July 13, O'Malley's proposal gives school districts the option of using non-certified personnel to supervise detention and discipline areas, study halls, and areas where students are interacting with televised or computerized educational programs.

"At a time when many school districts are having difficulties balancing their budgets, we need to rethink some of the mandates imposed by state government," O'Malley said. "The state School Code has required certified staff members to supervise study hall, detention and other non-teaching situations. This is a costly and frankly unnecessary mandate. My proposal gives local schools the option of refocusing some of their current resources from non-teaching situations into education programs."

"My goal is to secure more state funding for our schools, which would have the added benefit of easing the burden on property taxpayers, especially in suburban areas. However, we also have the responsibility of making the most efficient use of the education dollars we already have," O'Malley said. "I have received letters from school district officials across the state estimating their annual cost savings with this change, and they are significant. Just two school districts in the southwest suburban region expect to save nearly $1 million, and there are 936 other school districts in Illinois."

The 19th District Senator says Consolidated High School District 230 in Palos and Orland Townships expects to save an estimated $560,000 and Community High School District 218 in Worth Township estimates savings of nearly $400,000.

The bill must first be signed by Gov. Jim Edgar to become law.

Burris Attends Attorneys General Summer Meeting

Attorney General Roland W. Burris targeted civil rights and domestic violence as key issues that should be priorities of all attorneys general attending the recent Summer Meeting of the National Association of Attorneys General.

Burris hosted the NAAG meeting where Minnesota

Attorney General Hubert H. Humphrey III was inducted as NAAG president and Tennessee Attorney General Charles W. Burson was awarded the prestigious Wyman Memorial award for enhancing the office of attorney general and advancing the objectives of NAAG.

As chair of the NAAG Civil Rights Committee, Burris discussed three developments that could effect the outcome of future civil rights legislation and cases.

One, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld a Wisconsin law on hate crimes. The decision allows for a defendant's discriminatory motive for committing an offense to be considered in determining punishment. Illinois has such a law.

Two, the U.S. Supreme Court decision involving redistricting in North Carolina. The Court ordered an 'oddly-shaped' district drawn specifically to permit the election of an African-American to be redrawn. In Illinois, a similarly shaped district was unchallenged.

"In these cases, states will be subject to strict scrutiny analysis. States must show that redistricting plans serve a compelling governmental interest and are narrowly tailored to further that interest," Burris said.

Three, the Supreme Court's decision in a Missouri case which is widely called the "Pretext-Plus" case.

The Court ruled that to prevail on a charge of intentional discrimination, the plaintiff may have to prove more than simply that the defendant discriminated.

On the issue of domestic violence, Sarah M. Buel, director of Domestic Violence Unit of the Suffolk (Massachusetts) County District Attorney's Office, urged every Attorney General's Office to make violence against women a top priority. Illinois is one of at least 15 states with an attorney general actively working on the issue of domestic violence.

Burris discussed how he drafted legislation to combat domestic violence, helped to pass the Crime Victims Constitutional amendment, testified before the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee, supported stalking legislation, and created one of the nation's first Women's Advocacy Divisions within the Attorney General's Office.

The 38 attorneys general unanimously passed resolutions on the subjects of the environment, health care and civil rights.

Illinois Attorney General Roland W. Burris (center) congratulates Minnesota Attorney General Hubert H. Humphrey III (left) as the new president of the National Association of Attorneys General. Humphrey is receiving the gavel from outgoing NAAG president Vermont Attorney General Jeffrey L. Amestoy at the recent NAAG conference hosted by Burris in Chicago.

The closer you look at it, the more you realize that there are HMO's from Blue Cross and then there's everybody else.

Tom Denham
Senior Vice President, Sales

Blue Cross has been offering HMO coverage for pretty close to twenty years now. And over those years, we've become the biggest HMO in Illinois.

With far more doctors in far more locations than anybody else. With more options than any of the others.

Of course, new HMOs pop up all the time. Promising to give you more. Promising to do it for less.

But HMO Illinois—a Blue Cross HMO—continues to thrive. Taking on all comers. Winning over companies that need a strong, efficient HMO on their side.

Today, nobody can offer your people better access to good quality health care than we can. Here in Illinois. And all across America, where Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans care for more than 70 million people.

When it gets to be time to re-enroll, look at our track record. Look at the hard numbers. Look at what we've accomplished over twenty years.

You know what I think you'll find? I think you'll find that the gold standard in HMO coverage isn't really gold after all. It's actually a very nice shade of blue.

Chapter 77 Of The CCC Alumni Still Going Strong

Greater Chicago Area Chapter #77 of the Civilian Conservation Corps' Alumni, better known as the CCC Camps during the Great Depression 1933-1942, marched together in unison in the July 2nd evening parade at Evergreen Park's 100th year anniversary and the July 4th Blue Island Parade. This is the 10th year they were involved with these two parades.

Chapter 77 CCC Alumni was founded June 25, 1983, a membership roster of 453 former CCC enlistees, many of whom have since been deceased. This age group is between 70 and 79 years old. Chapter 77 in its 10 years has activities which consist of a Christmas and a June Anniversary Dinner Dance, four meetings yearly all at the Killarney Castle Banquet Hall in Palos Hills. Also an August picnic at Crooked Creek Woods, Shelter No. 4 and for several years members of Chapter 77 volunteered detail cleaning up the Illinois & Michigan (I&M) Canal in the Willow Springs area.

This cleaning detail consisted of 10 to 20 former CCC "Boys" doing what they call labor, cleaning up the debris such as, bottles, cans, scrap metal, papers, auto tires, etc. In all of these working hours not one person got injured but all will admit that "we all enjoyed doing our thing."

One of our main goals is to get all former CCC Boys together of those who have not seen each other since the CCC days. So far they have been successful in getting 148 pairs of CCC "Buddies" together.

Election of Officers elected for a two year term are as follows: President, Stanley G. Jenkins (Founder of Chapter 77), Evergreen Park; Vice-President, Theodore J. Golema, Lyons; Treasurer, Frank S. Waligora, Chicago; Secretary, Raymond G.

Graziana, Chicago, and Chaplain Golden J. Hastings, Chicago.

"We are always looking to recruit new members," said

President Jenkins. For more information contact Stan Jenkins, (708) 425-5000, 9943 S. Spaulding Ave., Evergreen Park, IL 60642.

Public Aid Meetings

The Illinois Department of Public Aid has scheduled six community meetings in Chicago to discuss the new Public Aid budget and gather comments on how to best use the money.

A local meeting will be held on July 28th from 9 a.m. to 12 noon at Daley College, 7500 Pulaski Rd., Chicago.

"We intend to ask advocacy and provider groups about their priorities. We need to tell them how much money we believe we will have during the next fiscal year and hear their views on how that money can best be spent," said Acting Public Aid Director Robert Wright.

The department has held similar hearings in years past. This year will mark the first time the hearings will be held in community settings, with testimony from individuals and organizations expected to number in the hundreds. An additional five meetings have been scheduled in downstate locations.

"We think these hearings are valuable to the department and the community alike. By going out into the community, we will get a truly representative range of viewpoints," added Wright.

ComEd Donation

Commonwealth Edison will donate lamp timers to show its support as a corporate sponsor of National Night Out, a promotion which links law enforcement, corporations, non-profit groups and individuals in the fight for a safer America.

The event takes place on Aug. 3rd from 8 to 10 p.m., when thousands of Illinois residents will gather with their neighbors on their illuminated porches, front steps, lawns and sidewalks for a National Night Out to demonstrate their unity against crime and drugs.

"As part of this promotion, Edison has provided a limited number of lighting timers to Blue Island, Burnham, Calumet City, Calumet Park, Dixmoor, Dolton, Harvey, Markham, Midlothian, Phoenix, Riverdale, Robbins and South Holland," says Harry W. Jones, Edison's local public affairs director. "These communities were selected because they are registered with the National Association of Town Watch, the sponsor of the National Night Out promotion."

Begun in 1984, the National Night Out promotion has grown from 2.5 million people participating in 400 communities throughout 23 states, to last year's total of 25 million people in 8,500 communities throughout all 50 states. This year, hundreds of thousands of people in 61 cities or towns in northern Illinois will be participating in this highly visible civic partnership.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARINGS

COOK COUNTY CONSORTIUM CONSOLIDATED COMPREHENSIVE HOUSING AFFORDABILITY STRATEGY (CHAS)

FEDERAL FISCAL YEARS 1994 through 1998

The Cook County Department of Planning and Development announces that it will hold public hearings on the Cook County Consortium's Comprehensive Consolidated Housing Affordability Strategy (CHAS) during its development process in order to obtain suggestions and ideas from Cook County residents on affordable housing issues.

The CHAS is a comprehensive planning document that identifies the Cook County Consortium's overall needs for affordable and supportive housing for low income households, and outlines a strategy to address those needs. For purposes of the CHAS, the Cook County Consortium's jurisdiction includes those communities in the county that have less than 50,000 persons, the unincorporated areas of Cook County, the Town of Cicero and the Village of Oak Park (as Consortium members). The CHAS consists of four major parts: an Introduction - outlining background information on the CHAS and the CHAS process; a Community Profile - containing information on the Consortium's demographics, current housing stock, affordable and supportive housing needs, and a discussion of available resources; Five-year Strategies - setting Cook County Consortium priorities and establishing strategies for addressing housing needs over a five year period (October, 1993 through September, 1998); and an Annual Plan - describing specific actions to be undertaken during the first year of the plan (October 1, 1993 through September 30, 1994) to address affordable and supportive housing needs according to the established priorities.

The CHAS is required under the National Affordable Housing Act of 1990, which created new housing programs, as well as expanded a number of current housing programs. The Act requires State and local governments to prepare and submit a CHAS for approval to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in order to receive Federal housing funds.

The Cook County Department of Planning and Development has been designated as the agency responsible for the development and the administration of the Cook County Consortium's CHAS.

Public hearings for the development of the Cook County Consortium's CHAS will be held as follows:

A reasonable amount of time will be allotted to each speaker, based on the number of individuals requesting to speak. Participants should bring a written summary of their remarks to the hearings. Other written comments are also welcomed to be presented at each hearing or mailed directly to Cook County afterwards, but by no later than September 1, 1993. Waste Disposal Day

Commissioner Kathleen Therese Meany, chairman of the public health and welfare committee of the Metropolitan Water Reclamation District (MWRD) of Greater Chicago, has announced that there will be a "Household Hazardous Waste Disposal Day" in the early fall.

Meany stated "This collection program is not the first for Illinois, but it will be a first for the district." This program will be a co-operative effort with the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA).

Meany went on to say that the area chosen for the program is bounded by the county line on the west, Harlem Ave. on the east, Cermak Ave. on the north, and 111th St. on the south. That breaks down to 75,000 households with a population of 225,000 which will be given an opportunity to rid themselves of, perhaps, years of accumulated household hazardous wastes.

MWRD President Thomas S. Fuller reported that the collection site will be in the parking lot of the Mainstream Pump Station in Hodgkins.

Heritage Bank Announces Income Rises

Heritage Financial Services, Inc. (NASDAQ:HERS) reported record net income and earnings per share for the second quarter ended June 30th. Second quarter net income was $2,869,000, up 18% from $2,439,000 in the comparable 1992 period. Earnings per share for the second quarter rose 17% to 35 cents from the 30 cents per share earned in the 1992 second quarter.

For the six months ended June 30th, net income was $5,240,000, up 13% compared to $4,625,000 a year earlier. Earnings per share for the 1993 six-month period were 64 cents, up 12% from 57 cents per share in the 1992 first half.

Richard T. Wojcik, chairman and chief executive officer, said higher 1993 earnings were due principally to increases in net interest income. He attributed this to a 12% increase in average earnings assets combined with wider net interest spreads. Wojcik said, "the ongoing containment of operating expenses also contributed to the increases in quarterly and year-to-date net income."

According to Wojcik, the merger of Alsip Bank and Trust with Heritage Bank, the company's principal subsidiary, was completed in the second quarter of 1993. Alsip Bank now operates as a branch of Heritage Bank and its customers are able to conduct business at any one of Heritage Bank's 11 locations.

At June 30th, the balance of nonperforming loans was $4.9 million compared to $4.6 million at Dec. 31st, 1992. Nonperforming loans as a percent of loans were 1.07% at June 30th, versus 1.01% at Dec. 31st, 1992, and 1.10% at June 30th, 1992. Nonperforming assets as a percent of loans and other real estate owned were 1.57% at June 30th, compared with 1.61% at Dec. 31st, 1992, and 1.80% at June 30th, 1992.

Heritage Financial Services, Inc. is a bank holding company with total assets of $822 million. The company, with headquarters in Tinley Park, operates 11 banking offices in the southwest suburban Chicago market. The company also operates a trust company which serves all locations.

The company's shares are traded on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol HERS.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

We are fast approaching the point where generosity and blind allegiance to the "nation of immigrants" mystique expressed by the advocates of open immigration verges on national suicide.

With 4.7 percent of the world's population, we take in half its immigrants. And it's starting to take its toll. Recently at a news conference economist Donald Huddle of Rice University unveiled a new study that outlines the economic cost.

For the 4.8 million illegal aliens already settled in the United States, Professor Huddle calculates a cost in 1992 of $12.5 billion in major outlays. That figure includes $4 billion for primary and secondary education, $820 million for Aid to Families with Dependent Children, another $858 million for teaching illegals English at public expense, and a final $7 billion in unemployment assistance for illegal alien workers.

He also concludes that the 11.8 million legal immigrants covered by the study, including refugees, those seeking asylum, and amnestied illegal aliens, present in the U.S. in 1992 cost all levels of government that year more than $45 billion above and beyond the taxes they paid. The cost of public assistance to Americans pushed out of their jobs by legal immigrants who arrived between 1970 and 1992 he estimates at $6.5 billion.

Public services provided to illegal aliens, in Los Angeles County alone, grew from $207.7 million in 1989-1990 to $276.2 million in 1990-91. Between 1983 and 1989, unreimbursed health care to illegal aliens cost $778.8 million in Los Angeles County. Educating illegal alien children in Los Angeles costs a staggering $500 million a year.

Involvement of illegal aliens in drug trafficking and other criminal activity is out of control. Over five out of eight narcotics arrests in Los Angeles involve illegal immigrants. In 1987, 20 percent of the total arrests in our six largest cities were foreign nationals. Nearly a third of the first 6,000 arrested in the L.A. riots were illegal aliens. Four in ten felonies in San Diego County are the work of illegals.

When grandpa opted for the American dream, you worked or went hungry. Between 1982 and 1992, the number of immigrants participating in Supplemental Security Income rose 370.2 percent. Economist George Borjas estimates that each year immigrants receive $1 to 13 billion more in welfare benefits than they contribute to the system.

In 1992, nearly 1.3 million foreign workers were certified for employment here, more than net job creation that year. How can our economy create new jobs for our own growing population, while straining under this burden?

And thanks to bilingualism, multicultural education, and the welfare state, far too many immigrants remain part of an alien subculture, with absolutely no desire to learn our language, history or culture. It is not racist or xenophobic to not want your country to become the impoverished Balkans of the Western world.

Advocates of open immigration fail to realize a nation is more than a geographic entity or a conglomeration of disparate, disputatious groups in search of two rooms and a bath.

Sincerely,
Daniel John Sobieski

Refinancing?

Homeowners everywhere are lining up to trade in their old mortgages for new ones with lower rates or better terms. While it's tempting to jump at the chance for a lower monthly payment, the Illinois CPA Society advises homeowners to take the time to determine whether refinancing makes good financial sense. The majority of individuals who refinance do so to lower their monthly payments by taking advantage of a lower interest rate, but borrowing at a lower rate is no longer the only reason to refinance. For many homeowners who reluctantly agreed to an adjustable-rate mortgage (ARM) when rates were high, refinancing provides the opportunity to switch to a fixed-rate loan with predictable payments. These people won't necessarily save a lot of money, but they do get the peace of mind that comes with knowing that their payments won't change if interest rates rise.

For those in need of money, refinancing is a way to tap the equity they have built up in their homes. Equity includes the down payment, the amount paid against the principal of the original mortgage, and any appreciation in the home's market value. If you can obtain a lower interest rate and your property has appreciated, you may be able to refinance your mortgage for a larger amount without a major increase in your monthly payment.

You can also use refinancing to switch to a shorter-term mortgage. A lower interest rate can make it possible for you to swap your 30-year mortgage for a 15-year loan with only a small increase in your monthly payment. That means you can pay off the principal faster and save thousands of dollars in interest costs.

Refinancing involves the same complex process and the same closing fees as obtaining a first mortgage. When you refinance, you may be faced with paying points. A point is equal to 1 percent of the loan amount. Points are usually the most expensive cost associated with refinancing; other expenses include the cost of a new appraisal, the cost of a new title search, title insurance, legal fees and application fees. Your total closing costs could be as high as 3 to 5 percent of the loan amount. You may be able to save on closing costs by checking with your current lender first.

To determine whether or not it makes financial sense for you to refinance, you'll need to find out how long it will take for your monthly savings to offset the cost. First, determine what your monthly payment would be on your new loan. Compare this amount to your current payment to see how much you will save each month. If your current payment includes taxes, insurance, etc., be sure to exclude these costs for purposes of comparison. Next, total all the costs associated with refinancing. Finally, divide your total closing costs by the amount you would save monthly. This resulting figure represents the number of months it will take you to pay off your refinancing costs. If you don't plan to stay in your house long enough to reach this break-even point, refinancing probably doesn't make sense for you.

CPAs remind homeowners to consider tax implications of refinancing. First, it's important to note that although points paid upfront when you buy or construct a home are fully deductible in the year of the purchase, points paid in connection with refinancing must be deducted over the life of the loan, whether you pay them in cash or add them to the loan amount. There's one exception: if you plan to use part of the new loan for home improvements, the points attributable to that part of the loan are deductible immediately.

CPAs also point out that a reduction in your interest rate means a smaller interest deduction on your tax return. If you have claimed extra allowances on your W-4 form based on your mortgage interest deduction, and refinancing significantly reduces the amount of interest you pay, you may need to recalculate the number of allowances you have claimed.

Census Survey

Local representatives of the U.S. Census Bureau will visit selected area households beginning on Monday, Aug. 2nd to conduct its Survey of Income and Program Participation (SIPP). Stanley D. Moore, director of the bureau's Chicago regional office, announced.

SIPP is a continuing nationwide survey introduced in the fall of 1983, one of the nation's largest, with about 60,000 households participating.

The Census Bureau publishes periodic reports with information from the survey. Subjects covered include jobs and earnings; the economic effects of unemployment, disability and retirement; how taxes affect personal spending; and participation in programs such as Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, food stamps and pension plans.

Information from SIPP helps policy makers and administrators determine how well government programs are serving the public and how changes in programs and policies will affect the public.

Traffic Deaths

Traffic fatalities for June totaled 102 as a result of 95 accidents, a decrease of 20.3 percent from the 128 deaths in June 1992, according to provisional figures released by the Illinois Department of Transportation and State Police.

Included in the June totals were 15 pedestrians killed in 15 accidents, 10 persons killed in 10 accidents involving motorcycles, 3 bicyclists killed in 3 accidents, and 5 persons killed in 5 railroad crossing accidents.

The provisional total of 590 deaths for 1993 is a decrease of 3.1 percent from the 609 deaths in 1992. The department's latest provisional figures indicate travel increased by 2.1 percent for the same time period.

Backs Suburban School Superintendent

The General Assembly has approved a proposal supported by State Sen. Patrick O'Malley (R-Palos Park) to give suburban Cook County residents more control over their schools by allowing them to elect a suburban regional superintendent.

The proposal is part of a comprehensive budget agreement approved by state lawmakers July 13.

"The office of the Cook County Regional Superintendent is scheduled to be abolished on July 1, 1994. We knew we needed to do something or when that office closes, its duties would have been assumed by the State Board of Education. I do not believe that the State Board of Education should be making decisions that can best be made locally," O'Malley said. "The school children of Cook County will be better served by a regional superintendent who is elected by suburban residents and, therefore, accountable to our needs. In no event will the abuses suffered during the tenure of former Superintendent Richard Martwick be tolerated by suburbanites and our school districts."

"The proposal that has passed is not intended to replace Martwick's office. The new office will be for the suburban areas of Cook County only," O'Malley said. "However, the new suburban regional superintendent and three assistants will be funded by using a portion of existing state dollars that are paying the salaries of the current superintendent and 11 assistants. As a result, no local-property tax increase will be required to pay for the salaries of the new suburban regional superintendent and three assistants."

The general duties of a regional superintendent, as provided by law, include:

- * Exercise supervision and control over all school districts within the region;
- * Approve school district in-service days and workshops;
- * Register and renew certificates of teachers and other educational personnel;
- * Distribute state and federal funds;

Congratulations for a job well done to the members of the Evergreen Park Centennial Commission: John McGivern, president; John McGuire, vice-president; Arthur Hornburg, treasurer; Laura Shallow, secretary and Mayor Anthony Vacco, honorary chairman. The 16-day celebration went off with barely a hitch, beginning on July 2nd with the 25th annual Independence Day Parade and ending on July 18th with an Ecumenical Service. The weather cooperated (for the most part), residents were enthusiastic, chairmen of the various committees and the members of those committees did their jobs and an enjoyable time was had by all.

The Centennial Headquarters, 3611 W. 95th St., is still open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday, and from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. on Saturday. Memorabilia, including T-shirts, cook books, centennial books, mugs, key chains, etc., is still available. Browse and select merchandise for yourself or for unique gifts for family and friends.

Our EP Courier published a 56-page historical supplement for the Centennial Year. The supplement is still available for $1 a copy at the offices of the Southwest Messenger Press, 3840 W. 147th St., at the Evergreen Park Village Hall, 9418 Kedzie Ave., or Centennial Headquarters at 3611 W. 95th St.

All of Oak Lawn should be on hand to celebrate this event. It's the 17th annual fundraising party honoring Mayor Ernie Kolb sponsored by the Citizens Coalition For Integrity Party on Wednesday, Aug. 25th at the Oak Lawn Holiday Inn, 4140 W. 95th St., from 7 to 10 p.m.

Last spring the Kolb party swept the UVRP party out of office and returned the village to safe and sound management. All of Oak Lawn should be happy about that. At least about 70% were, because that's the landslide margin of victory handed the Kolb-Powers ticket.

Members of the party include trustees Ron Stancik, Cy Holesha, Mike Walsh, Marge Joy and Bill Keane. The name of J. Quinn Mucker has been added to the party list. He is expected to be the candidate in the 3rd District two years from now.

The tug of war between Republican and Democratic Cook County Commissioners is now underway as re-mapping to single member districts is underway.

Commissioners have been elected at large with seven in the suburbs and ten in the city. Now that will all be past tense. Single member districts must be established by the fall '94 election. The purpose is to make commissioners accountable to the folks at home who elect them.

At present the south suburbs have Herb Schumann of Palos Park and Robert Gooley of Homewood representing them on the board.

Norm Corsi, Bremen Township Republican Committeeman, is using a new approach to recruit candidates for the 1994 State Legislative election in the 35th and 37th Districts now held respectively by Democrats Terry Steczo of Oak Forest and John Sheehy of Tinley Park.

He is advertising as follows: WANTED: Two high profile ambitious energetic men or women willing to spend about $25,000 to run a campaign for political office.

The 37th takes in parts or all of the towns of Flossmoor, Homewood, Country Club Hills, Tinley Park, Orland Park and the south half of Oak Forest. The 35th takes in parts or all of the towns of Palos Heights, Worth, Crestwood, Midlothian, Alsip and the north half of Oak Forest.

Attorney Al Hofeld, who threw a monkey wrench into the reelection primary campaign of U.S. Senator Alan Dixon when he entered as a third candidate which enabled Carol Moseley Braun to win with 40% of the vote, this week announced his candidacy for Illinois Attorney General. Once again it will be a multiple candidate race. He is the first to file.

- * Advise on controversies arising under school law;
- * Hold hearings for formation of unit districts and consolidation of existing school districts;
- * Review and forward school district claims for general state aid, categorical funds and federal grants;
- * Annually inspect the health and safety of public schools;
- * Administer certain scholarship programs.

The bill will also consolidate educational service centers outside Cook County into the offices of the appropriate regional superintendents on Aug. 7, 1995, to eliminate the duplication of overhead costs. Existing educational service centers in Cook County will remain.

Appliance Safety

Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association (GAMA) is cautioning residents of areas hit by recent flooding that all gas-fired appliances which were subjected to flooding need prompt inspection, cleaning and replacement of controls. According to GAMA, the warning is particularly directed to heating and water heating equipment which uses natural gas or propane (LP gas).

Flooding or submersion of the controls which automatically turn on and off the gas supply in the equipment can lead to corrosion buildup and possible blockage of safety features within the controls. GAMA warns that even though flood-damaged control systems may appear to be operating safely and properly at present, the gradual effects of corrosion and buildup of foreign particles inside the control devices over a period of time could make the safety features inoperative.

Consumers whose appliances have been subjected to flooding should immediately contact a qualified service agency, their gas utility, or propane distributor, says GAMA.

Suburban District Courts Now Accepting Wills

The Cook County Judiciary and the Clerk of the Circuit Court are making the court system more accessible to suburban residents: Aurelia Pucinski, Clerk of the Circuit Court of

Cook County and Harry Comerford, Chief Judge of the Circuit Court, have announced that all suburban districts will now accept Last Will and Testaments, including any and all codicils of the recently deceased. Only the original signed Will will be accepted.

"Prior to this new service, Wills were only accepted in the Probate Division of the Circuit Court located on the 12th floor of the Richard J. Daley Center," said Pucinski. This new procedure began July 1 in districts 2-6.

"This procedure will alleviate the time it takes suburban law firms, private attorneys and the general public to drive all the way downtown in expressway traffic," said Pucinski.

According to Pucinski, suburban Will filing is just an initial step in providing expanded Probate services to the suburban districts.

Standing at the filing counter in the Skokie courthouse, (left to right) Helen Kreb, Civil Team Supervisor, Hon. Henry Budzinski, Presiding Judge of the Probate Division, Hon. Aurelia Pucinski, Clerk of the Circuit Court, Tammy Pracher, Civil Division File Clerk and Hon. Harold Sullivan, Presiding Judge of District 2 courthouse in Skokie, examine the forms related to filing a Will.

Lutheran Flood Relief

Mississippi River flood victims will be getting assistance from Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL) and its national network of more than 8,200 volunteer groups called branches. AAL's home office in Appleton, Wisconsin has allocated $600,000 to supplement dollars raised at the local level through AAL's benevolence program called "Helping Hands: Caring Acts Through Fundraising or Service." This special allocation of Helping Hands funds is in addition to the $13.5 million already available to AAL branches for benevolence projects this year.

The total amount of money raised for flood relief by AAL will likely add up to well over $1 million, according to Ruth Rosenow, AAL's regional fraternal benefits director for the central region of the United States.

After Hurricane Andrew hit southern Florida and coastal Louisiana last year, AAL allocated an additional $500,000 in Helping Hands dollars and a total of $3.6 million was raised for hurricane relief, the most money ever raised for a single cause in AAL's 90-year history.

"This flooding is a disaster of unbelievable proportions," Rosenow said. "We expect our branches from across the country to respond to this crisis as they did so generously after Hurricane Andrew. We are encouraging them to start raising money for flood victims now so we can offer some help as soon as the flood waters recede."

Money raised by AAL branches for flood victims will be sent to relief agencies such as the American Red Cross and Inter-Lutheran Disaster Response or to AAL's central region office in Orland Park for distribution.

Volunteers already have started organizing relief efforts such as providing bottled water to Des Moines, which has been without running water. In addition to raising funds, AAL volunteers also are being encouraged to provide assistance where they can; help fill sandbags, provide meals for other volunteer workers and help with evacuations.

"We expect our help will be needed even more once the waters recede and clean-up efforts begin," Rosenow said. "This will be a long-term project."

Educating Students for Life

At Saint Xavier University, we educate students for life.

"We provide a well-rounded education," says Father Ben Berinti, the Associate Campus Minister at Saint Xavier University. "Not just in the classroom, but in social justice activities that address issues like war and peace, hunger awareness, poverty, race relations, and homelessness."

Founded as Chicago's first college by the Sisters of Mercy, Saint Xavier has been graduating individuals with strong intellectual skills and deep moral values for nearly 150 years. "Our goal," says Father Ben, "is to help students reach beyond comfortable boundaries. Educating people for life is very much a part of the Catholic tradition."

introducing the Evergreen HOME Savings Account

A new way to save for a home.

What is the Evergreen HOME Savings Account?
Evergreen Bank is a participant in the Home Ownership Made Easy (HOME) savings program, sponsored by the State of Illinois. If you are a potential home buyer saving for your downpayment, the HOME Savings Account is for you.

How does the program work?

Any prospective home buyer who does not currently own real estate can join the program by depositing $100 in this special Evergreen Bank savings account. The Evergreen HOME Savings Account earns the same interest rate as a regular savings account. After two years, the HOME participant becomes certified and is eligible for a range of benefits.

What are the benefits of the Evergreen HOME Savings Account?

In addition to accruing interest, HOME participants receive exemption from the State Real Estate Transfer Tax, waiver of municipal transfer tax (in those communities which have approved this waiver) and exemption from paying State income tax on the interest earned when all the Evergreen HOME funds are used to make the downpayment on a home. By opening and maintaining your HOME account at Evergreen Bank, you receive even more benefits; the application fee on your Evergreen Bank mortgage will be refunded to you if you keep at least $5,000 in your HOME Account during the last six months that it is open. You will also receive a complimentary Evergreen Mortgage Simply Checking account, with all its benefits, provided you arrange for monthly automatic transfers from your Evergreen checking account to your HOME Savings Account.

For complete information on the Evergreen HOME Savings Account concerning fees and terms applicable, stop in or call your Evergreen Banker at (708) 422-6700.

Suspect Arrested In Palos Hills Teen Slaying

Hillary Norskog's body was identified through dental records and because of the advanced state of decomposition, authorities were unable to determine if the girl had been sexually molested.

Sheahan pointed out that a "great deal" of physical evidence links Pfiel to the murder. "We're confident that it (the evidence) is overwhelming," Sheahan said. Pfiel was the last person seen with Hillary prior to the killing and reportedly authorities have several pieces of evidence, including a blood-stained knife and car seat, hat, shirt and socks, all pointing to Pfiel as the killer.

Hillary, a recent graduate of Palos South Junior High School, reportedly had attended a picnic in a forest preserve near 107th St. and LaGrange Rd., with a group of teenagers. She was last seen at about 11 p.m. on Wednesday, apparently getting a ride home in time for a check-in call from her mother who also had been out for the evening.

According to Hillary's mother, Marsha Norskog, she had been out to dinner with an older daughter, Julie. She said that she had attempted to call Hillary, but got no answer and when she arrived home at 1 a.m., determined that her daughter had not been home. She decided that Hillary was probably sleeping at a girlfriend's house.

Mrs. Norskog, because of the late hour, decided to wait until morning to call Hillary's friend. When she reached the girl the following day and learned that Hillary had not been at the friend's home, she notified police.

Circuit Court Judge Thomas Carmody set bail for Pfiel at $1 million in Fifth District Court, Bridgeview, on Tuesday.

Steven Pfiel, 17, of Palos Park was charged with last week's stabbing death of a 12-year-old Palos Hills girl and is to be tried as an adult for the crime. The badly decomposed body of Hillary Norskog was discovered last Saturday morning in unincorporated Palos Township, a few miles from her home. She had been stabbed approximately 12 times. Pfiel was arrested at his home on Saturday night.

No motive has yet been advanced but Cook County Sheriff Michael Sheahan said at a press conference on Tuesday, "I wish we had an explanation of how anyone, let alone a 17-year-old boy, could do this to a young girl. It was a vicious, senseless murder."

Oak Lawn Reviews

by Ann Bennett
422-0486

Another day, another dollar? And at least we are not being inundated with the heavy rains. I really feel sorry for those folks that are being flooded out.

Had a surprise call Sunday afternoon. A niece I haven't seen for at least 20 years (they live in California) came to visit some of her family and friends in Indiana and they stopped for a visit. It was nice.

Dolores Schonauer, now of Palos Hills, was the guest at a surprise party given for her by her daughters Cheryl Siroky and Doreen Damm, at Alexanders Restaurant with her sisters and five close friends in attendance. It was held Friday as a luncheon. Dee is retired from the former Oak Lawn Trust & Savings Bank.

Bob Philbin, a former resident now living at Lake Havasu, Arizona and his family were in for a short visit in Oak Lawn. They left for home on Tuesday.

Thinking in terms of a vacation—it is off for this year. With all the rain I have developed a bad leak and I am going to have to have a new roof put on the house. That should be fun.

The Veterans Memorial Association is sponsoring a drawing in which the main prize will be a plane trip to a destination of your choice. There are other prizes too. One may call Gene Gallagher at 424-2733 or pick them up at the Johnson-Phelps VFW Post lounge.

On Thursday, July 29th, the Johnson-Phelps VFW Post and Ladies Auxiliary will sponsor a seminar with a speaker from the Probate Court who will talk about wills, living wills and other things of interest. This will be followed by a question and answer period and refreshments will be served.

A "child abuse" program will be held on Sunday, Aug. 8th at 2 p.m. in the VFW Post Hall. Everyone is invited to attend.

Baptized at St. Gerald Church on July 11th were: Kaitlyn Marie, daughter of Michael and Cheryl Daly; Lindsey Marie, daughter of Todd and Louise Frederick; Taylor Jean, daughter of Donald and Dana Lind; Richard John, son of Roy and Jennifer Mellinger; Shauna Marie, daughter of Kevin and Denise Scanlan; and Nicholas Christopher, son of Kenneth and Paulette Young. Congratulations to all of you.

The Oak Lawn Park District will be coordinating the collection of many needed items, to be distributed by the Quincy Park District and the Salvation Army to victims of the disastrous floods in Illinois. Please NO clotting at this time. Items needed: soap & towels, blankets & sheets, canned goods, tools, kids games and toys, flashlights & batteries, or one can make cash donations by making checks payable to Quincy Flood Victims and mail to or drop off at the Heritage Bank of Oak Lawn, 6001 W. 95th St. Drop off sites are the Community Pavilion, 9401 S. Oak Park Ave., Oakview Center, 4625 W. 110th St., or Central Pool, 9400 S. Kenton.

HELP!!! I need to hear from you nice people with your news of the things that are happening to your family or friends - new baby, visitors, vacations, birthdays, or any nice thing that is happening. Call me at 422-0486.

Spending Cuts; Not More Taxes

State Rep. Maureen Murphy (R-36) applauded the demise of the dreaded "granny" tax on elderly nursing home residents, but favored cutting wasteful state spending instead of imposing new taxes to replace it. On July 12th, the Illinois legislature imposed a 14-cent cigarette tax increase and a 20 percent increase on wholesale tobacco products to finance the now-defunct granny tax, which was used to fund the state's share of health care for the needy. The legislation became law with the governor's approval. House Republicans, including Murphy, had sought the granny tax's repeal because of its harmful impact on nursing home residents, most senior citizens.

"I'm glad the granny tax expired on June 30th. Frankly, it had to go. It caused a terrible hardship on the elderly, forcing many of them to dip into their life savings to pay a tax of $2,300 a year. That tax was a bad idea to fund health care because it ends up driving them into welfare," Murphy said.

However, the 11th-hour alternative chosen by the legislature (Senate Bill 677) raises taxes and ignores spending cuts, she said.

"To replace the granny tax with another tax was a poor substitute," she said. "Our plan, the House Republicans' proposal to trim $150 million in wasteful public aid spending, was a better alternative. Our spending cuts were a better way to go because we eliminate waste and at the same time finance health care needs without a tax increase."

"The people in my district want less taxation, not more. They want less state spending, not more. They want to keep their hard-earned dollars in their pocket rather than hand it over to Springfield," Murphy said. "They favor cutting waste and fat out of state government. I agree, but the Democrats opposed spending cuts in the final budget negotiations that produced the cigarette tax increases."

The state lawmaker listed other reasons against the higher taxes. The new tobacco tax increases will harm both businesses and consumers alike, Murphy said. Another drawback with the higher taxes is that bootlegging along border states will produce an unstable revenue source for health care.

Scholarships

For the second consecutive year, the graduating seniors from Community High School District 218 have exceeded $3 million in college scholarship monies. The totals below for each school will increase as more seniors decide which college or university they will attend.

As of June 2nd, the totals are: Eisenhower High School, academic scholarships, $644,952, athletic scholarships, $300,000; Richards High School, academic scholarships, $593,965, athletic scholarships, $310,585; Shepard High School, academic scholarships, $683,217, athletic scholarships, $160,800; Polaris School for Individual Education, academic scholarships, $350,000.

The total, in round figures, is $3,043,000.

Letter To The Editor

Editor:

In defending the Robbins garbage burner, does Ray Murphy believe he is insulting the opposition by calling them "so-called environmentalists?" For Murphy's information these activists happen to be the impetus behind the implementation of the most benign forms of waste disposal. Had it not been for these "so-called environmentalists," all volunteers in not-for-profit organizations, there would not be the current high levels of recognition of the solid waste problem, the education of the public in taking personal responsibility for overconsumption and waste, curbside recycling programs or competitive bidding in waste hauling.

It does not take a rocket scientist to look into your garbage can and determine ways to reduce the amount of garbage produced. According to the Cook County Solid Waste Plan, 60 to 70 percent of the total waste stream is recyclable or compostable. Subcounty plans call for 40 to 45 percent reduction or recycling of waste, some by the year 1996. No concrete provisions were made for Material Recovery Facilities (MRF's) for the collection, sorting, separating and processing of these recyclables although the plan states 4 to 5 large facilities would be needed to handle these materials. Without these facilities, recyclables will have to be landfilled or incinerated.

The Solid Waste Management Act of 1986 established that volume reduction at the source and recycling and reuse take precedence over incineration and landfilling. However, in granting approximately $300 million in interest-free money to the Robbins incinerator via the Illinois Retail Rate Law, legislators are subverting the intention of this hierarchy. One only needs to look to DuPage County, to their state-of-the-art MRF in Carol Stream, built for $10 million, to recognize incineration is a fiscally unsound move.

South Cook County has been dumped upon long enough. The pollution problems of our area are overwhelmingly acute already. No one denies the need for economic development of Robbins. But let us utilize a solution that we can live with. Bring jobs to Robbins via the development of a true MRF.

No, Mr. Murphy, I for one was not insulted by your statement. The only vested interest I have in this issue is the future of my children. When I look into the mirror of my little ones' eyes, I do not regret one moment of making a stand in a world where everything is disposable, right down to life itself. I wonder if so-called "corporate polluters and profiteers" can say the same.

Earns Principal Award

Sward School, 97th & Brandt, has announced winners of the Illinois Principals Association recognition breakfast. Each principal throughout the region had an opportunity to invite two students from the highest grade in his/her building to the event.

Students from Sward School were Sophia Faridi and William Klauseger. In addition to being honored for their dedication to maintaining high academic standards, students heard an inspirational address from Ms. Willye White, five-time Olympic champion.

The Marist High School mission club recently captured first place in the Christian Foundation for Children and Aging's (CFCA) 1993 mission awards. The CFCA is a Catholic lay organization that seeks to educate students to the plight of third world children and their families. The new Chicago area regional office of CFCA, in an attempt to assess the involvement of high school students in the missionary activity of the church, sent a questionnaire to all high schools in the archdiocese.

Twenty-nine schools responded, telling about their mission and service clubs, and were then sent a second questionnaire. These responses were evaluated using two criteria: were the students making a visible difference and contributing to a better world, and what was the level of student involvement and commitment.

The Marist Mission Club received a perfect score of 20 out of a possible 20 points. The students' contributions to missionary activity involved commitments of three kinds, time, talent and also treasure. Most of the student body was involved on one or more levels. The mission club is student run consisting of a large core group of students that meet every Thursday, and over 40 mission representatives to the various homerooms.

The projects that the mission club sponsors are many and varied. They are presently involved in local programs, the Franciscan Shelter for the homeless, and helping support Kolbe House at Cook County Jail. National Projects include Lazarus House in Boston, and a summer outreach program with the Sioux Indians in South Dakota. They had previously been involved in an international endeavor, sending money and providing medical supplies for a mission in New Zealand. The students choose and implement all of their own projects.

Dean's List Honorees

David William Murphy of Oak Lawn and Wendy Ann Pickert of Orland Park have been named to the Dean's List for the spring quarter 1993. To be named to the list, a student must be an undergraduate enrolled full-time and achieve a minimum grade point average of 3.5.

Degree Awarded

Daniel L. Canniff of Oak Lawn earned a master of business administration degree at Aurora University's centennial commencement on May 30th.

Approve Airport Passenger Facility Charge

Congressman Bill Lipinski (D-3) was informed that the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) has given final approval for Chicago to being levying a $3 passenger facility charge capable of raising upwards of $580 million for improvements at both Midway and O'Hare Airports. Lipinski, who in 1990 was a driving force behind the passage of legislation that created the PFC program was informed by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), the government agency responsible for evaluating the merits of all PFC collection applications, nation-wide.

"Of course this is great news for Midway and O'Hare Airports. More importantly, however, Chicago's PFC is sure to create thousands of new jobs and stimulate millions of dollars of new economic development throughout the city," said Lipinski. "Mayor Daley should be extremely proud of today's decision by FAA; one which was completely based on a comprehensive application submitted by the Chicago Department of Aviation."

With a planned duration of seven years, the $3 PFC is expected to generate $80 million and $500 million from passengers traveling through Midway and O'Hare Airports, respectively. Once collection begins, the city can either choose to spend the revenue immediately and/or issue bonds for long-term projects. Among other things, the funding will be used for projects that will upgrade or expand existing runways and aircraft holding pads, improve terminal facilities, reduce airport noise levels and increase the overall safety of the local airport system through acquisition of new equipment. The city proposes to start collection on Sept. 1st.

Lipinski added, "It is no secret that I worked very hard to get the PFC authorizing legislation through Congress. I did so specifically to help Chicago improve its airports, but without forcing city residents to unnecessarily shoulder the significant costs. Because the greatest burden of the PFC will fall on travelers who connect through Midway and O'Hare, it is undoubtedly the people of Chicago who stand to reap the greatest benefits. For me, today's action by the FAA is the culmination of three years work."

Passage of the 1990 legislation authorizing collection of PFCs was accomplished with the support and effort of several key lawmakers, Lipinski among them. Lipinski undertook the formidable task of "picking up the legislation" after its original defeat in the House and finding another way to secure passage. The Aviation Safety and Capacity Expansion Act of 1990 turned out to be the right vehicle to which the PFC language could be added.

"Anyone who has ever been frustrated by the delay and inconvenience caused from less-than-adequate facilities should take heart in knowing that the funding is going to be there to make the necessary improvements to our local airports," Lipinski said. "If both Midway and O'Hare are going to continue to keep Chicago secure as the nation's aviation center, then both must have the financial resources to improve. The PFC provides Chicago with the resources, and most importantly, does so in a fair and equitable manner."

Accredited By NCA

Oak Lawn Community High School's North Central Association (NCA) accreditation has been extended through the 1992-93 school year following the review and approval of its annual report at the associations's annual meeting. Accreditation must be renewed annually. The NCA, founded in 1893, is the largest of the country's regional accrediting agencies. It is a voluntary organization of over 7,200 schools and 900 colleges and universities in 19 states, plus the Department of Defense, Dependent Schools throughout the world.

Accreditation ensures that the school is meeting the minimal conditions for effectiveness. NCA accreditation helps build public confidence by providing evidence to the public as well as to other schools and educational institutions that the school is meeting expectations and fulfilling not only local standards, but also those more widely accepted throughout the region and the nation.

Ribbons For The Graduates

On May 27th, the '93 Prairie Junior High graduating class received their ribbons and enjoyed an afternoon of food and games. Hot dogs were barbecued and served with chips and pop. Ice cream rounded off the afternoon menu. After eating, games of volleyball and softball were played pitting homeroom against homeroom.

POLICE CALLS

The following incidents were reported by the Oak Lawn Police Department. Readers are reminded that an arrest by police does not constitute a finding of guilt and only a court of law can make that determination.

On July 9th at 9:15 p.m., Douglas Wheeler of Hammond and Dennis Domro of Crown Point were stopped at 95th St. & Southwest Highway and taken to the station on a complaint of being short-change artists. Both were also charged with illegal transportation of open alcohol and Wheeler was also charged with a warrant from Matteson police with illegal transportation of open alcohol and three counts of theft.

At 6:34 a.m., Edward Fahy of Oak Lawn reported two men, both wearing knee-length shorts and no shirts, both about 17 years old, had taken a pullout AM/FM cassette stereo, a hand-held Polaroid "job pro" camera from his Ford pickup. Taken from his 1988 Chrysler and 1985 Olds were approximately 45 tapes, and several scratches were made on the left door and fender of the Olds, for an estimated loss of $535.

At 11:16 p.m., Greg Fifer of A&G Radio and TV Service, 9000 S. Cicero, reported someone threw an unknown object through his 4 ft. x 6 ft. glass window on the north side of the business. $400 to replace.

Dorothy Begina of Oak Lawn reported two tires on her 1987 Olds Cutlass were slashed on the left side of her car facing the street. $80 to replace.

John White of Chicago reported someone broke into his van while it was parked at 8716 S. Cicero and removed a gray plastic tool box with assorted tools and Porter router for an estimated loss of $390, plus $30 to replace the broken vent window used for entry.

Greg Petinatos and Deana McIntire, both of Oak Lawn, reported the front two tires of their vehicles were punched with a sharp object. Will cost $150 for each to replace the tires.

At 4:43 p.m., Paul Zoladz of Chicago reported he parked his father's car at 5800 W. 90th Pl. at 10 p.m. and when he returned at 3 a.m., found all four tires had been slashed. Estimated loss is $200.

On the 10th, Michelle Thomson of Oak Lawn told police she was working as a cashier at K-Mart, 4104 W. 95th St., when a female customer paid for her purchases with five $100 bills. Due to the rash of counterfeit $100 bills in circulation, it is store policy to check the serial numbers. The customer objected to being treated like a criminal and when the bills were checked out, she threatened the cashier by stating she would not be surprised if Thomson was a victim of a drive-by shooting. Thomson followed the subject and copied the license plate number of the car in which she was a passenger.

Anna Pietrasek of Service Merchandise at 8812 S. Cicero told police she was showing two black women something and feels that the women were distracting her attention while two other women slid open the back panel to the rear of the jewelry case and removed a pair of diamond earrings set in a yellow six-prong setting and left. A video camera tape was taken by the security camera and was inventoried by the police. Each of the diamonds was one carat in weight and the estimated loss is $4,999.

Lee Nelson, who works at the Oak Lawn Harley-Davidson office at 11040 S. Cicero, said that person(s) unknown removed the victim's gold watch, a Harley-Davidson Bar & Shield on the face with a gold Spiedel watchband. The watch is a dealer's award (limited edition) taken from his office desk. $750 is the estimated loss.

Alfred Trujillo-Lopez of Bridgeview reported his 1990 Ford Ranger was parked in the 8700 block of Menard Ave. and upon returning sometime later found his red tailgate from the truck was gone. Estimated loss is $350.

On the 12th at 10:38 a.m., Michael Lerner, employed at the OL Park District pavilion, reported that between June 28th and July 11th, the following items were taken from the maintenance room: an air compressor, pipe rodder, electric meter tester, all valued at $750. Taken from the kitchen was $600 worth of frozen meat. He said he and one other employee are the only ones who have keys to the maintenance room. He advised this person he would call the police if he didn't return the items. Estimated loss is $1,350.

Katherine Cheate of Oak Lawn reported that she had left her apartment at 11 a.m. and when she returned at 7 p.m., found persons unknown had entered her residence through a back door. The bedroom was ransacked and an assortment of gold with diamond jewelry was taken.

Shirley Cadillac, 10125 S. Cicero, reported two "lock box" key boxes were taken from two 1993 vehicles, a red Cadillac and a green Cadillac. Estimated loss for the keys and boxes, $120, and windows.

Jan Roxx of Evergreen Park reported her brown and black striped male dog with a white chest, a 75-pound pit bull, which she had tied in front of the Jewel at 9424 S. Pulaski, was stolen. The dog was wearing a chain collar with a green leash and is valued at $500.

On July 13th, Robert Barron of Alsip put an ironing board on the service desk at Builder's Square, 8716 S. Cicero, and asked to exchange it for an electrical unit purchased previously. He had hidden and electrical unit behind the board valued at $69. He was charged with retail theft.

Carla Gaddis of Chicago was seen allegedly putting a $179 TV into a shopping cart, going to another department where she put a microwave into another cart. She then went to another department in the Venture store and took a roll of "paid tapes" which she placed on the TV and microwave. Then she went through the cash station and paid for other merchandise and exited the store where she was stopped and escorted to the security office where she admitted the theft.

Henry Cats of Worth reported the theft of his 1980 Chevy Silverado from the SportMart lot. It is valued at $7,000.

Shaun Captain and Jeremy Captain, both of Oak Lawn, reported the theft of their bikes, both 20 inches, a Dumo Nitro valued at $239 and Diamond Back Assault, $219.

HOW MANY ANTI-HUNTERS DOES IT TAKE TO SCREW UP A LIGHT BULB? It's no joke. The bright idea that was the federal endangered species act is being short-circuited by anti-hunters. By using the act in ways it was never intended, these extremists are trying to destroy hunting opportunities and foster disregard for scientific wildlife management.

The Sportsmen's Coalition for Common Sense Amendments to the ESA is offering amendments to the act that will prevent extremists from using the act to attack hunting; let good science determine which species are truly endangered under the act and recognize in the act the impact of sportsmen as conservationists.

These common sense amendments, introduced as H.R. 2207, are sponsored by the leadership of the bipartisan Congressional Sportsmen's Caucus. And they are being guided through Congress under the sure direction of the Wildlife Legislative Fund of America, the nation's premier sportsmen's organization dedicated to advancing scientific wildlife management as well as to protecting the rights of Americans to hunt, trap and fish. But we need your support.

Contact your U.S. senators and U.S. representatives today and urge them to support H.R. 2207, the Common Sense Amendments.

WEED AND HABITAT DESTRUCTION - Long plagued by habitat destruction at the hand of man, our natural heritage today faces an ever growing threat from aggressive alien plants.

These are not the weeds of croplands and roadsides that make up 30 percent of our spontaneous flora, but rather the relatively few weeds that are capable of thriving in undisturbed natural forests, prairies and wetlands.

Most of these are perennials and many are woody shrubs, trees and vines. Unlike the crop weeds that mostly got here accidentally, these wildland weeds have largely been introduced on purpose as ornamental plantings and for conservative purposes.

These serious exotic weeds are capable of changing a natural community with hundreds of kinds of wildflowers and wildlife food plants into a stand of one aggressive weed of little value to animals or man.

Because we have developed and disturbed our land more intensively than most states, Illinois is at the forefront of this growing national crisis. Our problem is probably surpassed only by Hawaii and Florida.

If you live in the northern half of Illinois you probably are wondering what that white flower is that you saw growing in such dense stands in the woods and thickets this past spring. It is a biennial herb called garlic mustard which is literally exploding across the landscape.

It is a member of the mustard family which smells like garlic or onion when its leaves are crushed. It is rapidly invading our northern forests and converting beautiful, diverse and rich wildflower areas into weed patches.

The Department of Conservation (DOC) has compiled a list of 36 exotic plants that are serious problems in wildlands in at least some parts of the state. However, the 'critical' list of severe pest plants includes just 15 species.

For a free copy of the list write DOC Division of Natural Heritage, 524 South 2nd Street, Springfield, IL 62701.

Action On Taxes Applauded

"The Illinois Chamber applauds Gov. Edgar and the General Assembly for avoiding general tax increases to fund government spending and for encouraging modernization and investment by manufacturers through expanded tax credits," said Chamber President and CEO Sally A. Jackson. Nonetheless, a 14-cent increase in the cigarette tax and a new tobacco products tax were included in the final budget negotiations package.

"Fortunately, these taxes were substantially reduced from the original proposals and their inclusion may have been politically necessary in order to gain overall consensus on the Medicaid package. The chamber remains concerned about the impact these taxes will have on business and the loss of sales tax revenues in communities that border on other states."

"We are encouraged that SB 522 calls for a cost benefit analysis of this expanded tax credit program. The evaluation, to be conducted by key government agencies and business, will provide important data for developing future tax policy in Illinois that can help create jobs and enhance the overall business climate," said Jackson.

Two new tax provisions will improve workforce quality and stability. One creates a tax credit for participation in an approved TECH-PREP workforce training program. The other provides a tax credit for operating an on-site dependent child care program. TECH-PREP is already training workers in areas in addition to manufacturing such as health care, finance, agriculture and food service.

"If TECH-PREP and day care tax credits prove to be effective in the manufacturing sector, they should be expanded to all businesses as a cost-effective means of improving workforce stability," said Jackson. "This entire tax package delivers a positive and powerful economic development message. If we are successful in prompting more manufacturers to expand in Illinois and invest in new techniques, they will become more competitive, increase their market share, and broaden the entire tax base. The end result can be a measurable and positive boost to this state's business climate."

The chamber was pleased with the results of other pro-business tax-related actions of the General Assembly. The property tax relief referendum for Cook County contained in SB 1038 is essential to prod action to limit what seems to be unfettered tax growth, making business in Cook more costly and less competitive than the collar counties, which already have benefited from tax caps.

Senate Bill 558, a recodification of the property tax act, is an important first step toward necessary tax reform, which must follow in the near future. Clarification and expansion of the definition of certain tax credits for purchases used in the manufacturing process will eliminate many tax audit disputes and enhance predictability in the costs of business expansion.

In addition to these favorable tax outcomes, many issues this session that had not received full committee hearings and serious debate in more than a decade were given favorable consideration in the Illinois Senate. The issues included repeal of the structural work (scaffold) act, product liability and tort reform, all of which are needed and would reduce the costs of doing business in Illinois in a responsible way.

Although these measures did not advance to the governor's desk, they will be back for additional debate next session and the chamber will continue to advocate these reforms.

Another issue that will continue on the business agenda next session is workers' compensation reform. Preliminary steps were completed this session and the groundwork was laid for improved business-labor cooperation on this critical issue. The addition of $568,000 to the state budget will support these important first steps and ongoing negotiations.

On the environmental front, the chamber spearheaded legislation to address the exorbitant costs of cleaning up Illinois' 18,000 leaking underground storage tanks. The legislation is projected to save businesses more than $1.5 billion by cutting the cost of cleanup by more than 50 percent.

"Of particular importance is the fact that this bill authorizes $110 million to reimburse those who have already removed tanks or are in the process of doing so," Jackson pointed out.

One of the most potentially harmful actions during this spring came a full month after the last day of the scheduled session. House Bill 2464 was introduced outside the long-established agreed bill process to revise existing law and pay unemployment benefits to workers legally locked out in a labor dispute. Fortunately, the bill was never called for a final vote, yet it remains in position to be called in the veto session.

"Had this anti-business unemployment insurance bill passed, the damage done by this one measure would have been greater than all the benefits gained by the other pro-business measures that did pass," according to Jackson. "I urge the sponsors and all members of the General Assembly to reconfirm their support for the business/labor agreed bill process for all UI issues."

Other chamber-supported pro-business legislation passed by the General Assembly and sent to the governor for his approval includes House Bill 655 which makes it easier for small employers to access low-cost health insurance coverage; Senate Bill 830 which enacts small group health insurance reform including restrictions on premium increases and limits on underwriting; Senate Bill 571 which allows all business sectors in Illinois to utilize training grant funds; and Senate Bill 159 which consolidates education grant programs into one School Improvement block grant. School Improvement support funds were more than doubled in final budget action to just over $5 million.

"The significance of this block grant legislation is that it sets in place a mechanism for future consolidation and provides a direct link between funding and local school improvement. This supports the chamber's position that school funding should be tied to results, not just to a formula," Jackson concluded.

The "don't ask, don't tell, don't pursue" compromise agreed to by President Clinton has gay rights groups up-arms about the future status of gays in the armed forces.

Gay rights activists are fit to be tied and are crying foul. They feel as though President Clinton has reneged on his campaign promise to absolutely lift the ban on gays in the military if he were elected.

The gay rights groups feel they did their share, supporting Clinton in his bid for the presidency, and now he has let them down.

The leaders of the gay rights movement are focusing on the right of "freedom of speech" as the centerpiece of their argument why gay men and women should be able to serve openly in the Armed Services of the United States.

"Freedom of Speech" is a Constitutional right protected by the Constitution of the United States, but maybe it is about time to explain to gay rights advocates that a person waives most of his Constitutional rights when he joins the Armed Services.

Senator Sam Nunn (D.Ga.), head of the Armed Services Committee, has tried to explain to the gay rights zealots that "Freedom of Speech," or First Amendment Rights, is just one of many Constitutional rights taken away from a person when he or she joins the military.

One wonders if the gay rights activists realize that a person waives the right to be searched at anytime day or night at a military installation, ship or base of operation, when in the Armed Forces.

Or maybe somebody should explain to the gay rights activists what a "shakedown" is and how it is done in the military.

When I was in the Army if the brass thought there was a need for a "shakedown" all the barracks doors were locked and you stripped down to your skivvies, opened your foot locker, and every worldly possession you owned was inspected.

Try and use "freedom of speech" or the Constitutional right against "search and seizure" and you would have been ordered, not politely asked, to double-time around the company area one hundred times with your rifle held over your head.

Or you would have been ordered, not asked politely, to serve on KP (Kitchen Police) for a week or longer.

Has anyone tried to explain to the gay rights activists who are so upset with President Clinton's compromise that when you enter the military you waive your Constitutional rights as to what you are going to wear, what you eat, and probably most importantly of all, where you sleep and who you sleep next to in a barracks or on board ship?

In a recent issue of the United States Marine Corps newspaper, "Leatherneck," Lt. Col. Edward L. Green, USMC (Ret.) attempted to explain why excluding "openly gay" and "openly lesbian" men and women from the military service has to do with integrating two distinct and conflicting cultures.

Military culture, like it or not, centers around several limiting themes that are at the core of maintaining harmony and unity; rigid adherence to a chain of command; almost absolute respect for rank more than the individual; undisputed obedience to rules; absolute identification with the unit or organization.

"As we peel back layers of values and norms we see that the homosexual community is a distinct subculture within our society. And it is a subculture that takes particular pride in its differences," according to Col. Green.

The homosexual community's emphasis on public acceptance of its differences is why Sen. Nunn and many of the Chiefs at the Pentagon are so pessimistic about successfully integrating this community in the military subculture.

"The similarity of behavior that describes the military subculture is entirely different from the similarity of behavior describing the homosexual subculture," Col. Green says.

The basic incompatibility between the homosexual subculture and the military is that the military culture is integrated on an entirely different pattern of beliefs and values than the homosexual community.

Clinton is no longer campaigning for votes. He has bombed Iraq, sent troops into Somalia and Macedonia, and he knows that anything more than the compromise he reached with the Armed Services over "open gays" in the military would escalate the strains and antagonisms which would quickly reach the point where the values that make the military so effective would be seriously eroded.

The military culture should not be asked to make the trade in values necessary to accommodate free expression, or "freedom of speech," of homosexuality by the gay and lesbian community.

Constitutional rights, or civil rights, has no place in the argument over whether gays or lesbians belong in the military.

The homosexual community might understand the problem better if they were to study the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ) and not the Constitution of the United States for a clearer understanding of the vast differences that separate military life from civilian life.

Cook County Board President Richard Phelan, center, stands with newly appointed commissioners of the Cook County Commission on Human Rights. HamFest Annual Flea Market

Dennis Robinson, KA9ZZT, Oak Forest, president of Hamfesters Radio Club, Inc., Chicago, invites everyone to attend the club's 59th annual Hamfest on Sunday, Aug. 8th. Hamfesters is celebrating its 60th anniversary of service to amateur radio. This year's event is at the Will County Fairgrounds, Peotone (half-mile east of Peotone Exit 327 from I-57). Gates will open at 6 a.m. with a 3 p.m. closing. Exhibits open at 8 a.m. Everyone over 12 years of age requires a ticket (under 12 free). Donations for tickets, available from Hamfest members, is $4 in advance; $5 at the gate. For general information, call or write: Dave Brasel, NF9N, 7528 W. 109th Pl., Worth, IL 60428, phone: (708) 448-9432. Dave Brasel, NF9N, Hamfest chairman, and his crew have worked very hard to bring you the largest and best Hamfest ever.

Every ham radio operator knows what a Hamfest is, but to the uninitiated it is best described as a flea market; a place to sell and/or swap used or new amateur radio gear. Dealers will show and sell the latest in electronic gear, computers and radios. ARRL representatives will be present to explain how to become a ham, regulations, etc. It is also where ham radio operators meet and have an "eyeball QSO," where old ham friends have reunions once a year. Come out and meet over 300 active Hamfesters members.

There will be a 'swapper's row' and convenient loading and parking. Six covered pavilions for flea market. Good food and beverages will be sold at nominal prices. The huge, fully air-conditioned exhibit building is handicap accessible (with clean restrooms) and will feature over 35 vendors and manufacturers who will display their merchandise. Thirty-five acres are available for no parking problems with many more handicap parking spaces than last year. Many door prizes will be drawn hourly. Main prizes to be drawn in the pavilion at 2 p.m. are as follows: 1st prize, $500; 2nd prize, $300; 3rd prize, $100. The winner need not be present.

This event will happen, rain or shine. Hamfesters talk-in frequencies for those needing travel information will be on 2 meters FM on the STARS and KARS (2 meter FM Repeaters) 146.64 and 146.94. The Hamfesters Club call is W9AA.

Hamfesters Radio Club, comprised of 300 members, meets the first Friday of each month at the Crestwood Community Center, 14025 S. Kostner Ave. Meetings start promptly at 8 p.m. On-the-air meetings are held Sunday nights at 8 p.m. on 10 meters, 28.410 and the two-meter net on Monday nights at 9 p.m. on 146.43 Simplex.

Other performances include a colorful display by local music groups of Swiss yodeling, singing and flag throwing. Dancing and music will follow the Volksfest ceremonies. Refreshments will be available at the park. Tickets are available at the gate only. Admission for adults is $4, $1 for children.

All New Glarus restaurants and shops will be open throughout the weekend, including New Glarus' two museums, the Swiss Historical Village and the Chalet of the Golden Fleece.

Buffet Breakfast

Will the new state budget and the now permanent income tax surcharge help or hurt local business? And what about Chicago's hope for river boat gambling and the 355 expansion?

Discover these answers and more when Senator William F. Mahar (R-19) reviews the 1993 marathon state legislative session at an Orland Chamber breakfast on Friday, July 30th at Silver Lake Country Club. A buffet breakfast will be served at 7:30 a.m. and Mahar's address will follow the meal. The meeting will conclude by 9 a.m.

Mahar, who was first elected to the state senate in 1985, is best known in Springfield for his work on commerce and economic development, his expertise on mental health issues and his sponsorship of landmark child abuse protection legislation.

Bill is chairman of the Senate's environment and energy committee, a member of the public health and welfare committee and the committee for local government and elections.

Mahar did his college undergraduate studies in business and psychology at Southern Illinois University. He received his masters in personnel from Purdue University. TREATMENT FOR STIFF NECK

If you're suffering from a stiff neck, don't wait for it to take care of itself when treatment is available to correct it.

Of all the bones in the spinal column, none are more easily injured or more vulnerable than the seven vertebrae in the neck. Nona ara moved more often. We are constantly turning our heads to look at people and things.

Neck stiffness can have many causes, from sudden and violent accidents to such simple activities as painting a ceiling or just sitting reading a book for a long time. But there's nothing simple about the pain.

A careful examination will reveal the source of the pain and how best to treat it. Any misaligned vertebrae in the spinal column should be properly adjusted so there will be no abnormal pressure on your nervous system. Treatment may also include exercises for the cervical muscles such as gently rotating your head in all directions. This can help restore muscle strength and tone.

If you have any health questions please feel free to call our office.

Joseph Faber Appointed To Manager Post

Joseph J. Faber was appointed as village manager at the regular meeting of the Oak Lawn Board of Trustees on Tuesday evening. Trustee Robert J. Streit said it was no surprise that Faber who was serving as interim manager, was selected although there were others who had excellent qualifications. Streit said this is a political appointment, although the committee stressed his integrity, claimed it "is hypocritical" and voted "no."

Trustees William Keane, Ron Stancik and Michael Walsh served on the selection committee, said having worked with Faber while he served as interim manager, they were impressed by his integrity, knowledge and the respect he commands.

Trustee Cyril Holesha said he wholeheartedly concurred with their selection. Trustee Marjorie Joy said she too concurred with his selection.

Walsh said it was great to view him in action and feels it is a good selection because he is familiar with the way the village works and he will not have to spend time getting to know how it is done. President Ernie Kolb said everyone had said what he wanted to say and added that Faber is a practical and good sense person. Faber was sworn in by village clerk Jayne Powers.

Stancik as chairperson of the selection committee, nominated Faber with high praise and then introduced a change in the ordinance covering salaries of employees because there was nothing to cover that of the village manager. Faber will start with a salary of $72,000, $5,000 less than was paid to the previous manager.

Retired manager Richard O'Neill congratulated the board on the appointment.

Kolb said that Don Hartz of Hartz Construction was present and asked for approval of phase 3 of Eagle Ridge for approximately 49 lots, an ongoing plan they would like to get started. Trustee Joy asked for Hartz' assurance that he will take care of the driveways that have been in question. Holesha said the certified copy of the core samples taken from five homes should be in their hands by next week.

Hartz said he would abide by the report and replace the driveways of the five who had the core taken, if it is shown they are defective. After more discussion, Joy made a motion to have this matter postponed until the next board meeting which was approved.

Mike DeVivo had his request for a variation of garage ordinance, size and height and release of an easement to allow construction of a garage. A question was asked about permission from Com Ed and he said there were no utilities in the easement. He will inform Edison about this and ask for their approval. This was postponed until the next meeting or until he gets the okay.

Also approved was an intergovernmental agreement between the Village of Oak Lawn, Evergreen Park and the City of Burbank for emergency dispatch service for '911.' This is housed in the O.L. Safety Center.

An ordinance granting certain lot size and side yard setback variations at 9741 S. Ridgeland Ave. was passed by a 4-2 vote.

Joy asked what is happening to the crossing at 108th & Central which was supposed to be done by July 15th. She asked the manager to find out.

Stancik said he would like to set up a 'citizen hot line' because of the frequent power outages we have had and also see if we can get another company to provide electric service for the village.

Kolb said he has gotten many inquiries of how to help the flood victims and said what they really need now is money and suggested sending a donation for Flood Relief to the Salvation Army or the Red Cross. Six persons were presented with police department commendations for being instrumental in the apprehension of robbery suspects; Dorothy Pochocki, Donald Peterson, James McArdle, Detectives Thomas Simon, Richard Kerrigan and Michael Murray.

Property Tax Due Date

Cook County Treasurer Edward J. Rosewell, announced that the due date for the second installment real estate taxes has been set for Wednesday, Sept. 1.

Rosewell said that his office began mailing some 1.5 million tax bills to Cook County property owners this week, and will complete the mailing by Monday, Aug. 2.

By law, all bills must be in the mail 30 days prior to the penalty date. The bills are for 1992 real estate taxes, collectable in 1993.

The second installment bills reflect the true assessments and tax rates. A first installment bill, due last March 1, was an estimated bill, based upon one-half of the previous year's taxes.

Under law, the second installment penalty date is scheduled for Aug. 1. However, a large number of appeals on assessments delayed the penalty date.

Rosewell said that by law payments received after the Sept. 1st due date will be subject to a 1.5 per cent penalty on the amount due per month or unpaid portion thereof.

Payments can be made by mail, in the enclosed envelope that is sent with each bill, or in person at any of the Treasurer's six offices. The offices are located at 118 N. Clark Street in Chicago, and five suburban offices at 16501 S. Kedzie, Markham; 1500 Maybrook Square, Maywood; 5600 Old Orchard Rd., Skokie; 10200 S. 76th Ave., Bridgeview; and 2121 Euclid Ave., Rolling Meadows.

Rosewell urged property owners to make their payments by mail to avoid long lines. He said that taxpayers who do not receive a bill should contact his office at 443-5100 or make a personal visit to any one of the six offices and a duplicate bill will be issued.

The Treasurer emphasized that it is the responsibility of the taxpayer to ensure that the bill is paid by the penalty.

Garden Dedication

A garden at the northwest corner of Pilgrim Faith Church, 51st Ave. and 94th St., was recently dedicated to the memory of Vincent Folk, a gift of Evelyn Folk, his wife. The Folks moved to Oak Lawn in 1937, where they raised three children. Vincent became moderator of the church, having served on all boards with the exception of one.

Leaking Tank Clean-Up Costs Reduced

Over $60 million in outstanding debts due Illinois businesses will be repaid for past work conducted and new leaking underground water tank (LUST) cleanup costs will be dramatically reduced under the provisions of HB 300 which has passed the General Assembly. The bill, a product of months of negotiations and drafting, was pushed by the LUST coalition led by the Illinois Chamber.

"This is not a simple amendment to the existing law, but rather a brand new approach to the way in which cleanups of leaking underground storage tank contamination will be undertaken," said Sally A. Jackson, chamber president and CEO. "No longer will a property owner have to remove large quantities of soil and move it around the countryside. The level of cleanup will be based on sound science and the level of risk involved."

To put the LUST program on sound financial footing, the bill provides that the existing three-tenths of a cent gas tax be extended beyond the 1998 sunset, and that the funds be used as a revenue source to provide debt service for general obligation bonds. This will allow an immediate initial authorization of up to $110,000,000 in bonds to be issued on an as-needed basis. The bonds will not only eliminate the debt, but will allow for continued funding of the program and avoid future backlogs. "Any business which has to undertake LUST cleanup work, or who is in the process of a cleanup, would be well-advised to become aware of this new bill. It may very well mean the difference between a $100,000-plus cleanup and a $25,000 one," advised Jackson.

In English, Please

Should immigrants being sworn in as American citizens be allowed to take their oath in their native language or should they recite it in English? Congressman Bill Lipinski, saying he believes that an individual's first act as an American citizen should be done in our language, is co-sponsoring legislation to ensure exactly that.

"America is supposed to be a melting pot - people choose to come here - people choose to become American citizens - but we send mixed signals when we allow our newest citizens to be sworn in as American citizens in their native language," Lipinski said. "What we are really saying to these people is - legally, you are one of us - linguistically, you are not - that is wrong."

Lipinski said he feels "it is not too much to ask for new citizens to learn enough English to be able to get through this swearing-in ceremony. After all, English is still the 'official' language of our country."

This legislation, which is pending in Congress, was prompted by media reports of a federal judge allowing 75 immigrants to be sworn in on July 2nd as U.S. citizens in their native Spanish.

Cyclist Struck, Charge Motorist

Linda Matera, 33, of Oak Lawn has been charged with reckless homicide after she struck and killed Craig Taylor, 22, also of Oak Lawn, last Wednesday night, July 21st. Bond has been set Friday for $25,000. Taylor was described as an avid cyclist who had been riding his bike at night to avoid daytime traffic. He was heading south down 52nd Ave. while Matera was going north at about 11:55 p.m. At 97th St., Matera swerved into the southbound lane and struck Taylor who flew off the bike, striking and shattering the windshield of Matera's car. Matera reportedly dragged the bicycle for some distance as she fled the scene.

A neighbor hearing the crash, was able to follow Matera and memorize the license plate number which he reported to the police. Matera was arrested 10 minutes later.

Taylor was pronounced dead on arrival at Christ Hospital early Thursday morning.

Sued In Charity Fraud

A charitable fund-raising corporation was sued because its employees falsely identified themselves as police with the Secretary of State's office, Attorney General Roland W. Burris and Secretary of State George H. Ryan announced.

Named as defendants were Trooper Publications, Inc., publisher of Secretary of State Police Journal, and the firm's president, Allen F. Bennett. (The journal has no affiliation with Ryan's office.)

The suit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court, alleges solicitors targeted auto-related businesses regulated by the Secretary of State's office and the fundraisers implied enforcement action would be taken against companies refusing to contribute to the charity.

The legal action follows a 10-month investigation by Ryan's Inspector General's office. It was initiated after complaints were received about the fund-raising tactics used by telephone solicitors for Trooper Publications.

"I commend Attorney General Burris for taking the necessary steps to halt these unsavory tactics," Ryan said. "I find it especially distressing that someone would falsely represent himself as an agent of my office when contacting businesses that this office regulates."

"We take seriously the business of regulating auto dealers, repair shops, auto rebuilders and parts dealers. It's troubling that someone would use coercion or other illegal means to solicit funds based on that relationship."

Burris said financial disclosure laws were enacted so the public can have an accounting of the money raised by charities and their fundraisers.

"Charitable fraud stops with an informed donor," Burris said. "We encourage people to contribute to charities of their choice because legitimate charities provide a valuable service in our society."

"However, charities must comply with the Illinois Charitable Trust Act that requires them and their fundraisers to register and file annual reports with the Attorney General's office. Secretary Ryan deserves credit for taking action to stop this fund-raising abuse."

The suit alleges the defendants failed to file required financial reports for the 1992 calendar year.

Trooper Publications was not registered as a professional fundraiser during the period of July 1, 1992, through March 5, 1993, the suit alleges. Also, Trooper Publications failed to file a copy of their contract in the Attorney General's office until this month, only after an investigation had begun.

The suit asks the court to order all money raised be forfeited and used for charitable purposes deemed appropriate for each violation by Bennett and Trooper Publications, and a court order to freeze all their assets.

No Smoking

Gov. Jim Edgar has signed legislation to protect children from the dangers of second-hand smoke by prohibiting all smoking in day care centers.

"Second-hand tobacco smoke is a health threat to all of us, but it presents a special risk for children, causing respiratory infections and endangering youngsters with asthma," the Governor said. "This legislation will help protect the health of children and is good preventive public health policy."

The measure will prohibit individuals from smoking tobacco in any area of day care centers where children are allowed, regardless of whether children are present. In addition, the smoking ban will apply to areas of day care homes or group day care homes while children are present.

The measure, House Bill 1540, was sponsored by Reps. Mary Lou Cowlshaw (R-Naperville) and Carolyn Krause (R-Mt. Prospect) and Sens. Chris Lauzen (R-Aurora), Ed Petka (R-Plainfield), Margaret Smith (D-Chicago), Bruce Farley (D-Chicago) and Gary LaPaille (D-Chicago).

It is effective immediately.

Gun Violence Conference

Women elected officials in Cook County will sponsor an Anti-Gun Violence Conference at 9:30 a.m. on Thursday, July 29th at the Palatine Village Hall, 200 E. Wood St., to discuss one of the more pressing legislative concerns for the coming year: gun violence.

There will be a press conference following the event at 12:30 p.m. in the Village Hall to discuss the ideas and proposals presented by the officials.

"Gun violence is a serious problem and a major concern for all of us," said Aurelia Pucinski, Clerk of the Circuit Court and co-organizer of the conference. "There are enough women elected officials in Cook County to have a significant impact on this issue," Pucinski added. Palatine Mayor Rita Mullins is co-organizer of the event with Pucinski. Phillip Andrew, executive director of the Illinois Council on HandGun Violence, will assist in preparing the program.

Some of the proposals on the conference agenda will include imposing liability on gun suppliers, taxing guns and ammunition sales at a high rate and limiting the availability of guns, especially assault weapons. "We need to address these proposals and plan an effective way for women elected officials in Cook County to work together in a bi-partisan effort to accomplish real change," said Pucinski.

Women leaders hope the conference will result in a unified front among women to work for a change in current gun legislation. "The goal of the conference is to build a consensus on what government can do to alleviate the ever-growing epidemic of handgun violence in both the city and suburban areas," said Mayor Mullins.

Reward Offered

A special account, the Sheilah Doyle Reward Fund, has been set up at Standard Bank and Trust Co. This reward fund is intended to encourage people with information concerning the murder of Sheilah Doyle to come forward with facts that will lead to solving the crime, and the arrest and conviction of the murderer. Doyle was a resident of Palos Park and an employee of Little Company of Mary Hospital.

The Millcreek Homeowners Association, the organization of residents in the area where Sheilah lived, originally approached the bank about setting up the special fund. They discussed the idea with the Cook County Sheriff's Police, their board and bank officers. The initial opening deposit of $500 was provided by the association. These funds have been matched by Standard Bank & Trust Co. and its director Robert E. Gallagher, managing partner of Gallagher and Henry, who committed $250 each. Little Company of Mary Hospital, recently contributed $2,000 toward the fund.

Many donations from individuals and groups have been received.

Deposits of cash or checks to the Sheilah Doyle Reward Fund are being accepted at all Standard Bank and Trust Co. offices, 2400 W. 95th St., Evergreen Park; 4001 W. 95th St., Oak Lawn; 11901 S. Southwest Highway, Palos Park; 9700 W. 131st St., Orland Park, and 7800 W. 95th St., Hickory Hills.

Contributions may be made in person or, if a check, through the mail. Standard Bank and Trust Co. is a full-service financial institution which has assisted customers and the community since 1947.

Checklist For Dental Safety

The Chicago Dental Society has prepared a safety checklist that dental patients can use to learn what steps dentists take to prevent the spread of infection. The society issued the checklist to emphasize the dental profession's commitment to safeguarding the public's health.

"There is a need for the public to understand that infection control procedures are effective in preventing the transmission of AIDS and other infectious diseases," says Juliann S. Bluit, DDS, associate dean of student affairs at the Northwestern University Dental School. "This checklist clearly describes the precautions dentists take to protect their patients. It also helps to show just how safe the dental office is, which should be reassuring to the public."

The measures described in the checklist support the infection control guidelines issued by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) to prevent the spread of infectious diseases in health care settings. The CDC guidelines call for the use of 'universal precautions,' meaning the very same infection control measures are used for each patient irrespective of their known or unknown medical history. The patient checklist includes several guidelines.

Check to see if the dentist and the dental treatment team wash their hands and put on fresh gloves before starting treatment. Make sure the dentist and the dental care team wear face masks, sometimes considered a face shield, or protective eyewear and disposable mask. Rubber or latex gloves also must be worn. Check to see that the team is properly attired in clean, cloth uniforms or disposable paper gowns. Do not be afraid to ask if the dental handpiece has been properly sterilized. The American Dental Association recommends that dental handpieces be sterilized between patients to assure internal as well as external sterility. Sterilization destroys all forms of micro-organisms, including viruses, bacteria, spores and fungi. Since the late 1980s, the only dental handpieces sold have been those that could withstand heat sterilization. Your dentist can explain how handpieces and other dental instruments are sterilized.

Check on the general cleanliness of office surfaces such as countertops, chairs, X-ray unit heads and light handles. These surfaces should be cleaned with a chemical disinfectant or covered with disposable wraps. Check on the use of disposable items. Many dental materials, such as gloves, masks, wipes, paper drapes, suction-water tube tips, needles and scalpel blades are used only once and then disposed of properly, and finally, check to see how waste items are handled. Needles and other sharp items should be disposed of in special puncture-proof containers while other contaminated waste is disposed of in special bags.

The checklist is designed to serve as a guide. Individual practices may adhere to slightly different, yet acceptable, infection control procedures. Consumers are encouraged to discuss specific questions or concerns with their dentists.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor:

We're sending this letter in the hope of reaching American Cancer Society volunteers throughout the South Cook Area to thank them for their calls.

The American Cancer Society recently launched a campaign to replace the 'Granny Tax' with the 'Tobacco Tax.' It was an uphill battle, fighting the powerful tobacco lobby, but we did it! Or rather the American Cancer Society volunteers did it. It was a herculean effort! Calls from volunteers flooded the offices of State Senators and Representatives. They listened to their constituency.

The cigarette tax increase should stop approximately 6,000 of our youth from smoking, and in the process save some 2,000 children's lives. You can pride yourselves on being true lifesavers.

"Health Care"

by Paul A. Hein, Jr., M.D.
Published by The Heartland Institute

"Access to health care," some readers may be surprised to learn, has become a national obsession only recently. In our grandparents' day, people got sick, and if they were sick enough long enough, they went to the doctor. If they remained sick, or got sicker, they went to the hospital. If they were sufficiently sick, they died.

Today, we expect "health care" the moment we feel sick, or even before we get sick! We go to hospitals more frequently and expect them to do more for us. Most of us expect to die in a hospital while doctors do everything within their power to keep us alive.

Today, health care is almost invariably considered a basic necessity. This transformation has taken place largely through cultural indoctrination. Americans, who would put health care high on their list of necessities, would also include such things as education, exposure to the arts, automobile ownership, and time for recreation. All of these things are important, in their own way. But they are on our lists of "necessities" largely because we have been taught to think of them that way.

Which would pose a greater threat to your health and happiness: six months without doctors, or six months without garbage men? When garbage collectors go on strike, the possibility of an outbreak of disease rises as garbage festers on the streets. On the other hand, if the average American went six months without seeing a doctor (as, in fact, the great majority of us do), it is unlikely that his or her health would suffer, or that anyone would express concern about it. Yet "health care" is near the top of everyone's list of necessities; "garbage collection" is probably not on the list at all.

Health care is not such a big deal. Most of us get along without it for long periods. And when we do make use of it, that use often constitutes a luxury more than a necessity. What percentage of hospitalized patients are in danger of death? How many visits to doctors' offices are made by people who are gravely ill?

As third parties paid more and more of our health care bills, rising from just 10 percent in 1930 to 85 percent in 1990, our demand for health care has increased. Just as one could acquire a taste for caviar if its cost were subsidized, so have Americans acquired a taste for health care when its cost has been subsidized. The result is a steady rise in spending that only will be steepened by the government's efforts to create even more "access to health care."

To the extent that the price of caviar is a problem, the solution is simple: don't buy it. The same solution is never proposed for health care, but why not? Granted, you have to see a doctor if you break your hip or become so short of breath that you cannot function. But do you really need medical care for the sniffles, or a sore throat? Some of the effort now being exerted to make "health care" universal might be better expended to establish in individuals some sense of medical priority.

Our grandparents got sick and died. So will we. But in many cases, our deaths will follow prolonged and enormously expensive medical exertions. Perhaps a wealthy society such as ours regards sickness and death as the ultimate disasters to be avoided, or at least postponed, as long as possible, at whatever cost. If that is our belief, the present system should suit us just fine.

But if we truly wish to do something about what is perceived as the inordinate cost of health care, perhaps we should retrace our path to step one, and make sure that step is in the right direction. To place health care high on our list of life's necessities is to guarantee its high and rising costs.

Labor Union Logic

by Dr. Richard L. Leshner, President, U.S. Chamber of Commerce

The Clinton administration's decision to postpone its quest for a higher minimum wage reflects wise recognition that an increase would destroy thousands of jobs and undermine the economy. The Clintonites indicated they would not only postpone action until next year, but also would seek an increase far smaller than the $1 per hour hike they were talking about earlier. The longer the delay the better, and no increase would be better still.

To be sure, the Clinton administration remains wedded to a higher minimum wage as soon as economic growth appears strong enough to withstand one, reflecting promises Clinton made to labor unions during the presidential campaign. What the president may not understand is the real reason the labor unions want a higher minimum wage, and it has nothing to do with the economic situation of minimum wage workers, very few of whom belong to labor unions. In fact a higher minimum wage mitigates against union organizing because well-paid workers have less need to join unions, or to participate in union activities.

But thousands of union labor contracts include built-in escalators based upon the federal minimum wage. Thus, every increase in the minimum wage translates into immediate pay increases for a variety of unionized workers, many of whom enjoy incomes already well above the industry average.

It follows logically that a higher minimum wage invariably gives a disproportionate boost to inflation as it raises the cost of labor across the board, including legions of highly paid workers, forcing millions of businesses to hike prices for their products and services to cover the added cost of labor.

However, there is scant evidence the Clinton administration recognizes the direct link between a higher minimum wage and inflation, with all of its attendant ill effects on the economy. Rather, the president's most immediate concern is the impact on jobs. With unemployment remaining stubbornly high, he can ill afford to discourage job creation.

Herein lies an unspoken but nevertheless significant business victory. After years of prolonged public debate, we finally have established beyond reasonable disagreement that a higher minimum wage does in fact destroy thousands of jobs. By this deferral of an increase, the Clinton administration has formally admitted as much. In doing so, it echoes a similar intellectual breakthrough achieved by the liberal "New York Times" some years ago in a prominent editorial call for total abolition of the minimum wage. The "Times" acknowledged that in the context of our modern economy, a minimum wage no longer served any viable purpose.

Mt. Greenwooders are rallying behind 19th Ward Alderman Virginia Rugai in her opposition to a $14 million expansion of the Ag School. Rugai, in a TV appearance Sunday morning, made it clear to ACLU attorney Harvey Grossman she would approve the expansion if a cap were put on enrollment at 600. The school was constructed for 300 and Rugai fears that it will skyrocket to 1,200 if the expansion is approved. Enrollment has exploded to 450.

Grossman charges that Rugai's as well as the Chicago Board of Education's opposition is racially motivated because the student body is 85% minority. He has filed suit for the ACLU to end the delay.

Residents in the area are concerned about increased traffic, noise, rowdiness and all that goes with 1,200 teenagers.

"We moved out here for peace and quiet," said one resident. "I previously lived near another city school and it was nothing but trouble. I'm for moving the whole school out altogether. My neighbors agree with me. We're with Ginger (Virginia)." ***

The State of Illinois has released $5.6 million in grants to help the CTA and Metra. The CTA is expected to use the money to purchase air conditioned, handicapped accessible buses, while Metra's share goes to planning a new suburban rail line and construction of two other suburban mass transit projects. The CTA will receive $4.2 million and Metra, $1.4 million. The Metra grant is to be supplemented by $7.1 in federal grant money. ***

A U.S. Coast Guard helicopter is taking aerial photos of the City of Palos Hills. The photos are planned for use as a guide to making an accurate map of the community. Recently a CG helicopter was used in the search for a missing 13-year-old Palos Hills resident, who was later found murdered. ***

Paul Simon, Illinois' Senior Senator, initiated a two-pronged recommendation for additional school reform in Chicago Public Schools. Simon stated that principals should be given more power over the buildings in which they work and that union influence on the local school level should be curtailed.

Simon said that "schools are to be run for students; not for principals, teachers, parents or labor unions." He added that he supports the new Superintendent of Chicago schools, Argie Johnson, and praised the 1988 school reform act which established local school councils (LSCs).

Simon's plan would give principals authority to tailor working hours of custodial personnel, so that schools could open earlier or close later, and be able to direct the custodial to make minor repairs. He pointed out that school buildings are "underused community resources," often because union rules prevent use of the schools at night or on weekends.

"I may be stepping on some toes with the local unions," Simon said, "but the time for waffling has to stop." ***

Alderman James Laski (23rd) said Monday, unless there is a compromise on limiting 'for sale' signs for Chicago homes, he plans to call for a vote on the issue at the September City Council meeting. The long-running controversy over 'for sale' signs came before the zoning committee, initiated by Laski. The strict new ordinance would limit signs to 2 feet by 2 feet, in black-and-white only. Laski said the ordinance is aimed at improving neighborhood esthetics and at reducing 'panic peddling.' ***

Bell; Thursday, Aug. 12th, Ridge Park Fieldhouse, 9625 S. Longwood, and Thursday, Aug. 19th, Mount Greenwood Park Fieldhouse, 3721 W. 111th St. All meetings begin at 7 p.m. ***

A cocktail reception honoring Thomas C. Hynes, Assessor of Cook County, will be held Tuesday, Aug. 3rd, from 5 to 7 p.m. at the McCormick Center Hotel, 23rd and the Lake. Tickets are $150 per person. ***

The Oak Lawn Coalition Party, led by Mayor Ernie Kolb, is backing Quinn Mucker for Village Trustee in the 3rd District. The seat is not open until 1985, but Village Clerk Jayne Powers maintains it is never too early to start campaigning. The seat is now held by Robert J. Streit who was swamped in a bid earlier this year to unseat Mayor Kolb. Streit had won the trustee position with just over 30% of the vote against four other candidates, including Mucker, in 1981. The Coalition Party's decision to back Mucker is apparently an effort to avert another multi-candidate election in the 3rd. ***

Flood Cleanup Project

U.S. Labor Secretary Robert Reich has granted $2 million in discretionary funds to the State of Illinois to put about 400 flood-dislocated Illinoisans to work on flood cleanup projects, according to Sen. Paul Simon.

Reich informed Simon of the funds he has approved under the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) Program's Title III Dislocated Worker Funds. Simon chairs the Senate panel that oversees the JTPA program and was the author of the JTPA overhaul plan that was signed into law last year. The cleanup projects will employ Illinois workers of all ages — mostly adults — who temporarily are out of work because of the flood of the Mississippi River and its tributaries. The projects will include general clean-up and debris removal, infrastructure repair and food distribution.

Flood Victims Tax Extension Concerned Women

Taxpayers unable to file state tax returns or pay state taxes on time because of this year's flooding should contact the Department of Revenue's toll-free hotline at 1(800)FLOOD-02 to seek relief.

Gov. Jim Edgar has issued an executive order that permits 60-day extensions to individuals and businesses who are unable to file returns or pay taxes because of property damage or other flood-related causes. The filing extensions will also apply to penalty and interest charges that would otherwise be imposed.

To take advantage of the extension, taxpayers must:

- 1) Have a state tax return or payment due between June 1st and Aug. 31st, 1993.
- 2) Be unable to file that return or make that payment because of the flood.

3) Be located in a county declared a state disaster area.

4) Identify themselves to the Department of Revenue. The department has established a toll-free hotline so that taxpayers can identify themselves. Taxpayers can call 1(800)356-6302 (1(800)FLOOD-02) between 8 a.m. and 7 p.m., TDD 1(800)544-5304.

"We stand ready to accommodate taxpayers who need extra time to meet their tax obligations because of the flood," said Sam McGaw, acting director. "Those taxpayers must first identify themselves to us."

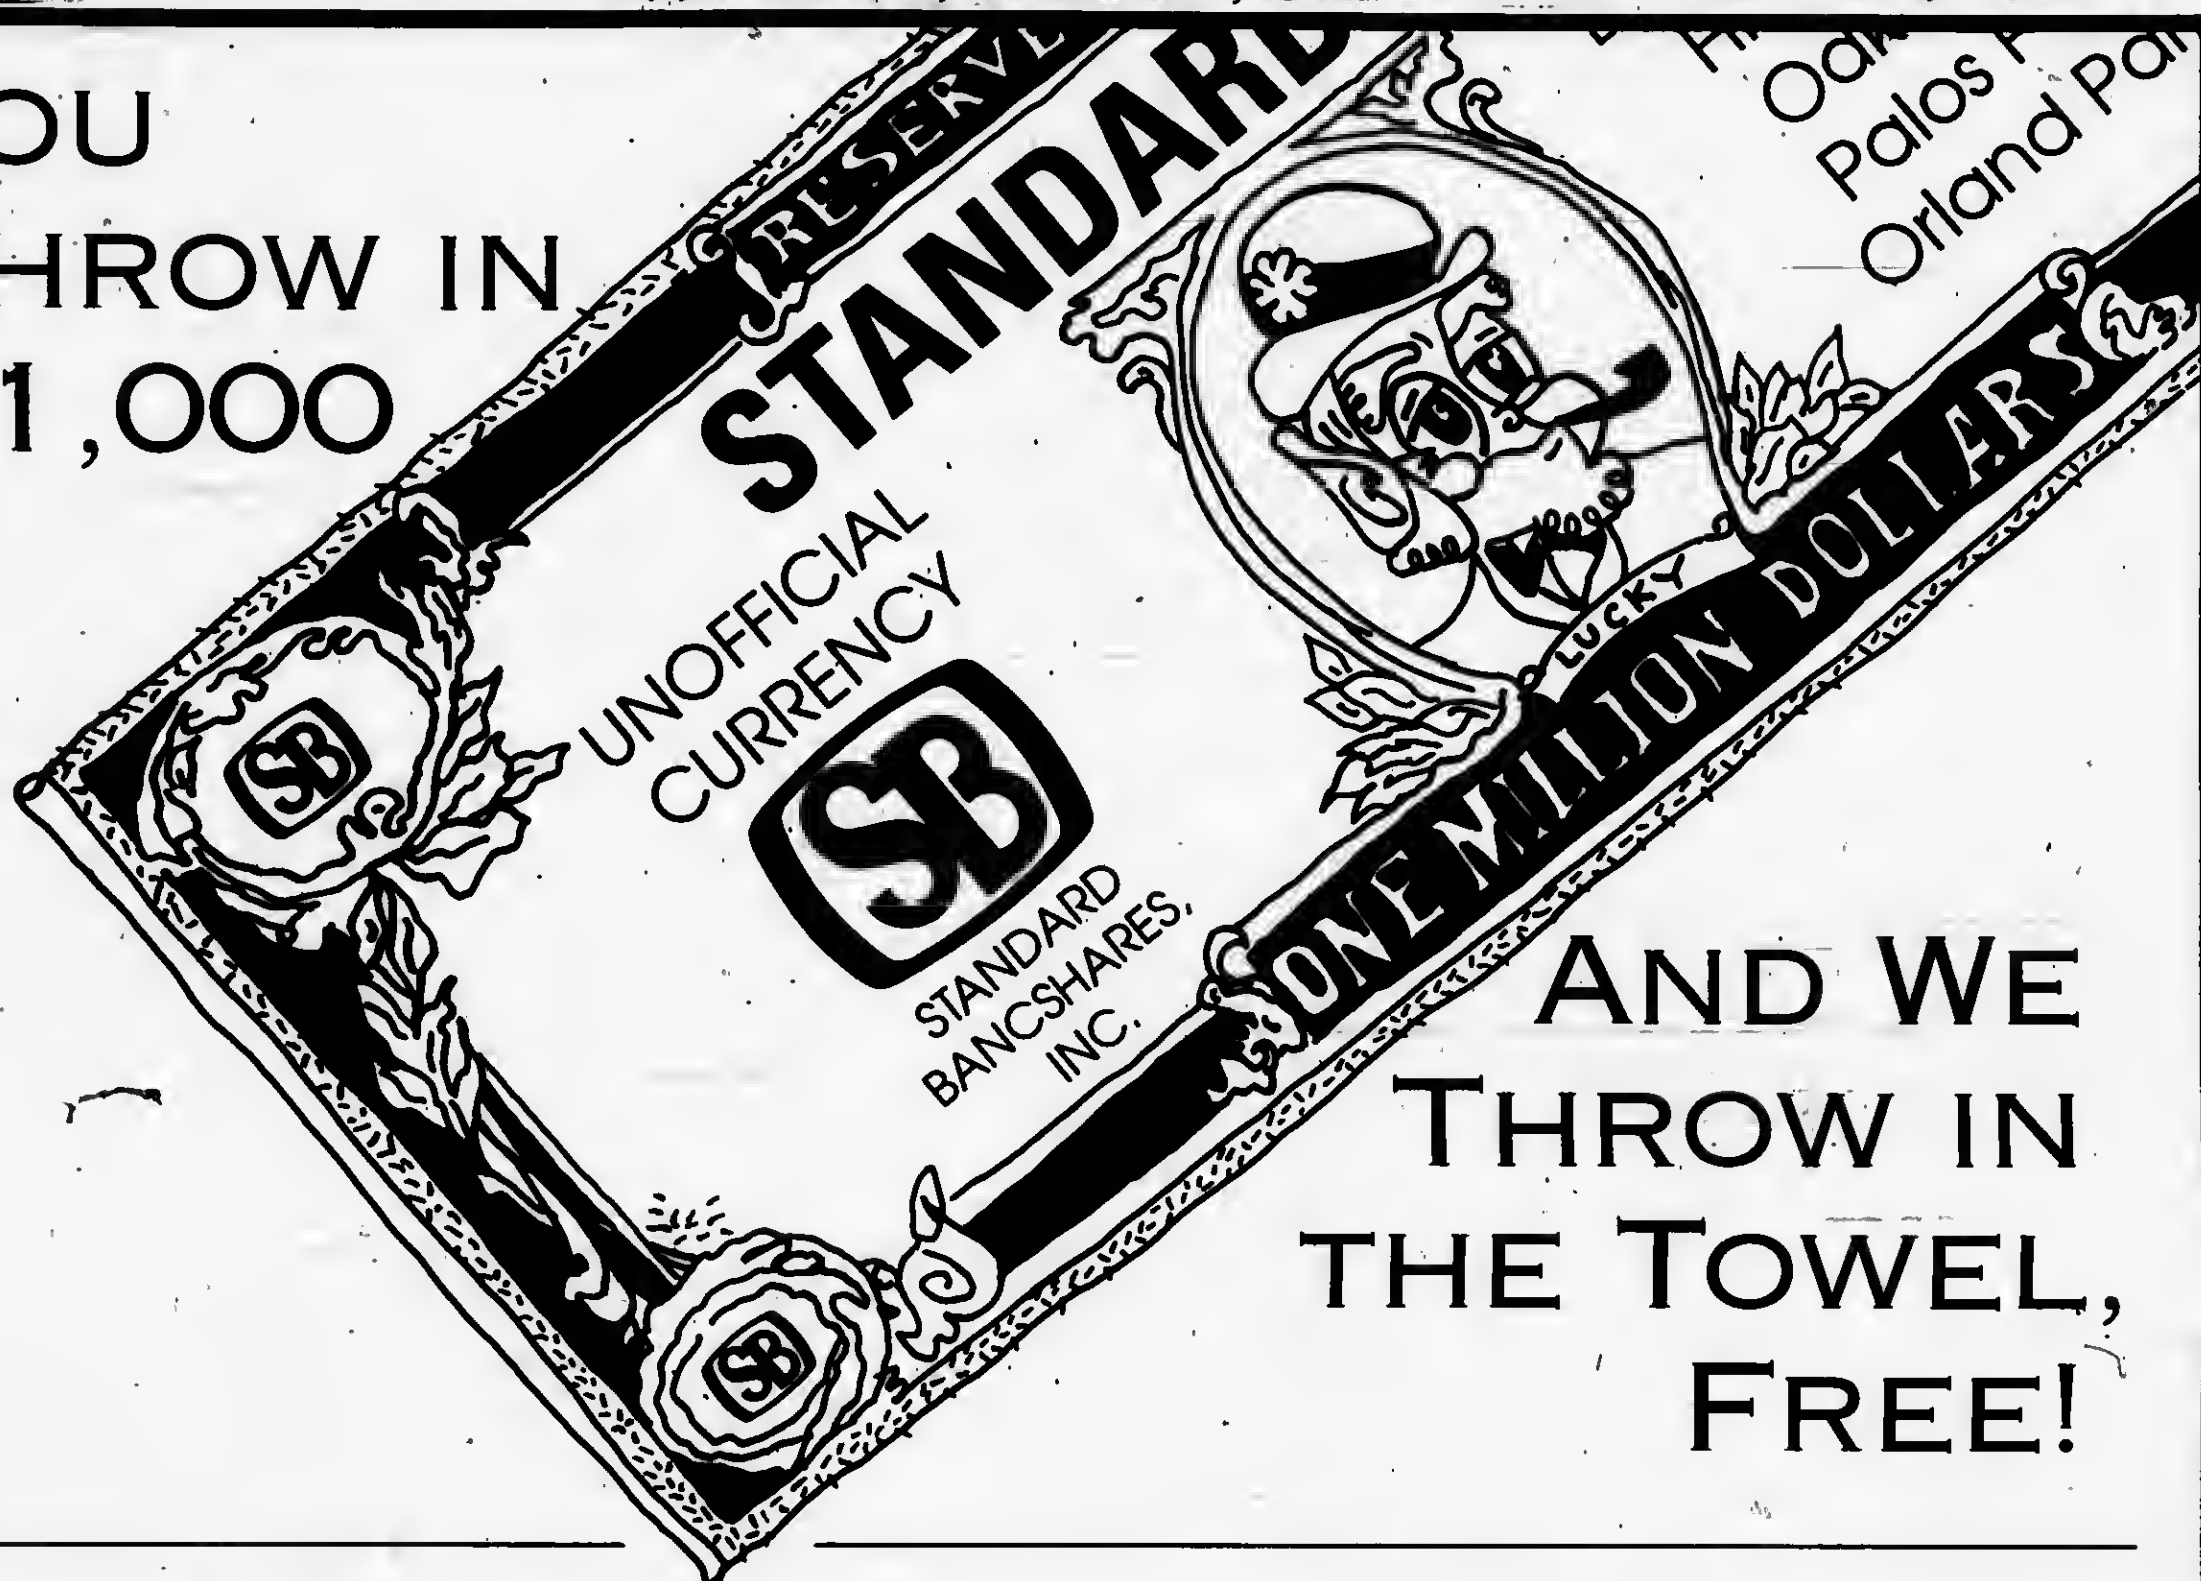

The extension is available only to taxpayers affected by the flooding. Other taxpayers are expected to file returns and pay state taxes on time. The department will verify taxpayers' claims that they have been afflicted by the flood.

"Outcome Based Education" will be the featured program for the Southwest Prayer/Action Chapter of Concerned Women for America's monthly meeting, on Tuesday, Aug. 10th from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the Palos Heights Recreation Center, 6601 W. 127th St. "Outcome Based Education," a dangerous educational philosophy, is becoming widespread as part of the Clinton Administration's 'Goal 2000' plan. The video "Who Controls the Children" will also be shown. Teachers and school administrators are invited to become informed about this controversial theory.

For additional information, call Sadie Lindemulder at (708) 423-5815. This non-denominational Prayer/Action Group will hold subsequent meetings on the second Tuesday of each month.

Senior Citizen Mortgage Help

First National Bank of Evergreen Park announced it has begun offering federally-insured reverse mortgage income to homeowners senior citizens in the southwest metropolitan area, making it the first bank in Illinois to promote the new financial instrument.

Russell J. Hollender, senior vice-president of Evergreen Bank, as it is known, said, "We serve many older homeowners through our branches in Oak Lawn, Orland Park, Evergreen Park, and in Chicago near Midway Airport. Reverse mortgages meet a real community need here because they not only help seniors solve serious financial problems, but can actually enhance their situations with extra retirement income."

Hollender added, "Reverse mortgages are now providing thousands of homeowners seniors across the country with extra money for health care expenses, property tax bills, home repair, new autos, monthly budget shortfalls, paying off existing mortgages or credit card debt, travel and emergency funds."

Hollender announced the bank's plans to a group of older homeowners attending a reverse mortgage seminar last week. Also, the first two area couples seeking reverse mortgages through the bank's program were scheduled to apply, one at Evergreen's offices, and the other in their home due to an illness requiring home health care and a reverse mortgage to pay for the care.

A reverse mortgage is a new financial instrument that enables seniors, 62 and over, to remain in their own homes for life with full title, while converting some of their built-up home equity into tax-free, government-guaranteed monthly retirement income or cash reserves. No repayment is made until the last co-owning senior dies, sells, or moves from the home, which then normally would be sold to cover repayment, with any remaining equity and home appreciation going to the homeowner's heirs.

Federally-insured reverse mortgages became available in Illinois last year following the passage of legislation promoted by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP). The federal insurance protects homeowners and heirs from owing anything exceeding the final home value and guarantees the homeowners will receive all monthly checks or cash reserves to which they are entitled.

That money can be a significant boost to a senior's budget. For example, a 75-year-old couple with a $150,000 home could receive a monthly check for $600 for as long as either lives in the home, or $950 monthly for 10 years, or about $79,000 in a lump sum. However the money is received, no repayment is made until the owners die, sell or move away.

In order to offer reverse mortgages to local seniors, Hollender said, Evergreen Bank has entered a partnership with Chicago-based Senior Income Reverse Mortgage Corporation, the first firm in the nation organized exclusively to provide older people with federally-insured reverse mortgage income, and the originator of Illinois' first reverse mortgage last year.

Steven Baer, president of Senior Income and a speaker at the seminar said, "Evergreen Bank has become one of fewer than 20 banks in the nation offering reverse mortgages. As a company, we are very excited to help community-minded institutions like this one to meet the needs of their older customers and neighbors."

Hollender said senior homeowners interested in a free consumer's information letter on reverse mortgages may call him at (708) 422-6700. He said Evergreen would formally launch its reverse mortgage program with a September kick-off event.

Oak Forest Man Is Charged

Kevin A. Cawley, 20, of Oak Forest was arrested on July 24th, in connection with a series of home burglaries and 'peeping tom' incidents in Orland Park. According to Police Commander Walter Kaszubski, he was apprehended at about 12:50 a.m. while police officers on surveillance saw him looking through the window of a Fairway subdivision home. After his arrest, Cawley admitted that he was responsible for crimes committed over the past two months in the Fairway, Silver Lake West subdivisions and the Orland Court apartments.

Cawley admitted that at about midnight he would ride his bicycle from Oak Forest to the subdivisions located between 94th to 88th avenues and 143rd and 151st streets and park his bike. He would then walk through back yards and between residences looking in windows for small things to take, such as purses, jewelry or cash; even on one occasion touching a sleeping victim.

According to Kaszubski, residents have been reporting seeing a suspicious person in homes, back yards and peeping through windows between 12 midnight and 4:30 a.m. for the past two months.

Police did a time location study of the reported sightings to find the best place to conduct a surveillance. Kaszubski stated that investigators were there several nights before Cawley returned.

Cawley was charged with two felony counts of residential burglary, two counts of criminal trespass to property and one count each of criminal damage to property, battery and disorderly conduct. He was released Monday into the custody of his father without looking to post any cash on a $20,000 bond.

Technology Workshop

The Guild for the Blind, in association with Micro Overflow Corporation, will host an access technology workshop for students who are blind or visually impaired, their teachers and their parents. This workshop will be presented first on Aug. 19th at the Micro Overflow Corporation offices in Naperville and on Aug. 26th at the offices of The Guild for the Blind in Chicago. Interested parties are welcome to attend both sessions. The workshops will be held from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. on both days. There is no fee and refreshments will be provided.

As part of the guild's 1993-94 children's forum series, the goal of the workshop is to familiarize and train blind or visually impaired students, parents and teachers on innovations in adaptive technology. The ultimate goal is to start the children on the road to productive lives; to reaching their full potential.

Technologies to be discussed will include: the 'Braille 'N Speak,' 'Braille 'N Print,' 'Mountbatten Work Station,' 'Braille translation software/hardware,' 'Braille embossers' and the large-print access methods of IBM and Apple.

Micro Overflow Corporation is at 1665 Quincy Ave., Suite 147, Naperville. The Guild for the Blind office is at 180 N. Michigan, Suite 1700, Chicago. For more information, or to make a reservation, contact Denise Butera, director of services at The Guild for the Blind, (312) 236-8569.

Day Reporting Program

Cook County Sheriff Michael F. Sheahan and County Board President Richard Phelan unveiled a new program recently designed to relieve overcrowding at Cook County Jail and turn less serious offenders away from a life of crime.

The Cook County Day Reporting Center takes non-violent male offenders from the jail and places them in intensely supervised programs for substance abuse, violence prevention, job training and other rehabilitative programs. Detainees must report to the Center every business day from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Located at the jail's South Campus, the Day Reporting Center will provide daily supervision for up to 200 pre-trial detainees. The Sheriff's Department of Community Supervision and Intervention (DCSI) operates the center along with Treatment Alternatives for Special Clients, Inc. (TASC), a not-for-profit agency that diverts criminal offenders into treatment programs.

"We have been striving to develop programs to effectively manage the overcrowded population at Cook County Jail and Day Reporting is an important component of our overall plan," Sheahan said. "The Day Reporting Center will enable us to take detainees off the floor and place them into a structured program that will deal with their problems and hopefully steer them out of the criminal justice system once and for all."

Added Phelan, "This project is about two things: the rehabilitation of buildings and the rehabilitation of people. I am proud of this particular construction program because it is the first one initiated and completed by this Administration."

Only Cook County Jail inmates who are awaiting trial on non-violent charges with no record of violence over the previous five years are eligible for placement in the Day Reporting Center. All candidates undergo a complete criminal and personal history before being admitted.

While in Day Reporting, offenders will regularly undergo drug testing and close case supervision by DCSI and TASC personnel. Any drug use or violation of attendance guidelines can result in the offender being removed from the program and returned to incarceration at the jail.

Since the program began on March 29th, a total of 132 detainees have participated in Day Reporting. The present population is 89. Of the remaining 43 cases, 23 have been adjudicated and 20 individuals have been reincarcerated for failing to conform with program requirements.

In its entire 74 days of operation, the Day Reporting Center has had only two individuals that failed to report for daily programming.

"The results of this program so far are really far beyond what we had hoped for," Sheahan said, "particularly considering that we are working with individuals who for the most part have had a complete lack of structure in their lives."

Each offender in the program has a specially designed rehabilitation program or "track" to address the root cause of his criminal behavior. For instance, offenders held on drug-related crimes receive substance abuse treatment. Offenders who can't read or who dropped out of high school attend literacy and General Equivalency Diploma (GED) courses. All participants receive drug and alcohol awareness education, violence prevention education and some form of job skills training.

The South Campus consists of a series of four buildings at 31st and California formerly owned by the City of Chicago. Cook County acquired the buildings in 1991 to house DCSI programs such as Day Reporting and expanded Electronic Monitoring.

According to Phelan, the entire renovation of the South Campus was completed at half a million dollars under the budgeted cost of $12.7 million.

"We said we would find the most economical and efficient way to deal with the expansion of jail facilities and by obtaining these buildings from the city and renovating them to provide space for both the Day Reporting Center and critically needed administrative offices, we have avoided the major outlay required of a new facility," Phelan said.

Phelan also said the renovation was completed with minority and women-owned business participation, noting a total of 35 percent MBE participation and 5.2 percent WBE participation was achieved.

According to Sheahan, Sheriff's officials are also in the process of negotiating for a location for a permanent Day Reporting Center located away from the South Campus and the jail for up to 800 detainees.

The expanded Day Reporting, along with Electronic Monitoring and plans for 300 pre-release drug treatment beds at the South Campus, are the main components of Sheahan's overall plan to tackle overcrowding at the jail.

The jail's present population is approximately 9,000 while capacity in the jail's ten divisions is 8,200.

Summer is here and a large number of youngsters on bikes. PLEASE parents, urge them to follow the rules of the road, as drivers of cars must do. I have seen some close calls where it seems as though the biker is playing his version of 'chicken' with car drivers to see how close he can get without being decked.

School Board Fills Vacancy

The Community High School District 218 Board of Education has selected Thomas Kosowski of Alsip to fill one of its two vacant seats. Kosowski replaces Patrick Murray, who resigned earlier this month. Kosowski's term of office extends through this year's November election. In his letter of application to the Board of Education, Kosowski stressed the connection between a quality education and future success. "I believe that (District 218) strives for quality education in a value-oriented environment emphasizing the uniqueness of each student...it is the development of these qualities now that will eventually lead to...children being successful adults in the future."

"I feel that your school district always has moved in a positive direction. But now, I would like to become a part of that district and strive along with all the other members to continue the quality of education that you bring forth to all your students," he wrote.

For the last 11 years, Kosowski has worked for the Illinois Department of Transportation (IDOT) in Harvey as a mechanic. He's also served as a union steward and a representative of the General Assembly of the A.F.T., I.F.T., and I.S.E.A. His education background includes an associate of arts degree from Moraine Valley Community College. He is a graduate of Marist High School.

On Choosing Your Physician

Add 'choice' to the list of buzzwords that the Clinton administration will use to sell its soon-to-be released health plan. That's because most Americans, according to recent polls, want the right to choose their own physician in a reformed health care system. In one poll nearly two-thirds of those surveyed said they would not accept limits on choice of physician and hospital as part of health care reform. Another survey, conducted by the Gallup organization, found that 76 percent of Americans would rather pay more for care if they could select their personal physician than pay less and be assigned to one. According to Alan R. Nelson, MD, the executive vice-president of the American Society of Internal Medicine (ASIM), the poll results probably reflect the strong ties that many individual have with their personal physicians.

"Most patients choose a doctor whom they trust and feel comfortable with, and most don't want to change once they've established that relationship," Dr. Nelson said. "Reform that tears people away from long and successful relationships with personal physicians will be a step in the wrong direction."

So, why are some in Washington considering reforms that could restrict choice of physician in the future? Most experts believe the debate over choice is tied to a trend toward 'managed care' insurance plans. These plans vary, but in general, individuals agree to restrict their choice of physician in exchange for a discount on medical care. In return for reduced out-of-pocket expenses, individuals in many managed care plans must see a physician assigned to them by the plan or choose from a list of doctors affiliated with the plan. Within these plans, patients have the flexibility to change to another doctor on the list, if they are unhappy with the care they receive.

An increasing number of managed care plans allow their enrollees to choose doctors outside the plan, but there are usually financial penalties associated with that choice. In other plans, enrollees may have to pay for most or all of their medical costs if they go outside the plan.

Three Sisters Receive Degrees

Heads turned when the names Kathleen Knightly, Denise Knightly Nelligan and Elizabeth "Liz" Knightly Sexton were called at Governors State University (GSU). Commencement is always a special day for students, but three sisters graduating from the same program in the same year is an accomplishment.

The sisters, who are employed by the Chicago Board of Education (CBE), received master's degrees in psychology after completing the school psychology concentration. The sequence includes studies in psychology, assessment and other areas to provide psychologists with appropriate knowledge and skill to identify, evaluate and assist in remediating student problems.

Kathleen has been a preschool special education teacher for 16 years. She is now at Stevenson School, Chicago.

It was her sister, Liz, who talked Kathleen into enrolling in the master's program. "I wanted to get out of the classroom," said Liz, who teaches special education at Stagg School, Chicago. "I had looked at a school psychologist program before and didn't enroll. I decided this was the time."

"We started with one or two classes at a time," Kathy said. It took about 30 months for them to complete the program. "The University required a lot; it is not easy by any means." Because the two had bachelor's degrees plus 30-credit hours of additional college work, they had to fulfill specific course requirements that their sister, Denise, bypassed. Denise is a school counselor assigned to Dawes Elementary School, Chicago. She previously had been a special education teacher.

"I always wanted to do school psychology," Denise explained. Her sisters were already enrolled in the program when the CBE entered into a partnership with GSU to prepare board counselors and special education staff for school psychologist certification. Denise decided to take advantage of the CBE job change and salary incentives.

Initially, several of the required courses were offered at CBE headquarters, although students had to take a majority of their classes at Governors State. For the three who reside on Chicago's southwest side and in Oak Lawn, GSU was a convenient location.

"And I think the (GSU) teachers were very challenging," Liz recalled. "They respond so much."

The three had thoughts of sharing notes and studying together, but were never in class together. In some cases, they didn't have the same professors for the same courses. They are waiting to hear from the Chicago Board of Education about their assignments for the required one-year internships. Upon completion they will then test for state certification.

Award

Aaron Anthony Di Stefano, a graduate of The Culver Academics, has been awarded the $5,000 DePauw Honor Scholarship by DePauw University. The scholarships are awarded to students who demonstrate exceptional academic achievement and leadership and are made possible through the support of DePauw alumni and friends and are renewable annually.

Aaron is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Di Stefano of Orland Park.

Graduates

Jeffrey Otho Kortz of Oak Lawn was among 1,364 spring semester graduates of The University of Mississippi. Kortz received a bachelor of science in exercise science degree.

Some economists believe limits imposed by managed care plans are an effective cost-control strategy, and many predict that managed care will play a much larger role in any reformed health care system. Indeed, many of the reforms favored by the administration and Congress could accelerate the trend toward managed care.

ASIM's Dr. Nelson believes most Americans don't want to be forced into insurance plans that severely restrict free choice of physician. His group is pushing Congress to guarantee the right to choose a physician under any plan for reform.

In a recently released report, ASIM said health care reform should give Americans the ability to choose from a wider array of insurance options. While the availability of managed care plans may increase in the future, ASIM believes individuals should have the option to choose a traditional 'indemnity' or fee-for-service insurance plan that does not limit choice of physician.

For those who choose a managed care plan, lawmakers should ensure their right to see a physician outside of that plan while still maintaining insurance coverage, Dr. Nelson said. This escape hatch is known in the insurance industry as a point-of-service option. Under the option, individuals may be asked to pay a little more, but ASIM believes the extra fee should not be so prohibitive as to stop patients from exercising their right to see the physician of their choice.

"By mandating a point-of-service option in all managed care plans, lawmakers would guarantee that individuals who, for whatever reason, wanted to see a doctor outside of their plan could choose to do so," Dr. Nelson pointed out.

What Congress will ultimately do is still unclear. But choice of physician, Dr. Nelson said, should not be an issue for the bargaining table.

"It's clear that Americans want the right to choose their own physician. Lawmakers in Washington would be wise to heed their views," he said. "Choice should be more than a political buzzword. It should be a guarantee."

TENSION HEADACHE

If you're bothered by headache that seems to have its origin at the base of your skull, you may be suffering from tension headache.

Tension headaches can be caused by an irritation of the nerves in the area of the spine immediately under the skull. These are called the suboccipital nerves. They pass through small openings in the spinal column to muscles in the surrounding area. Any abnormal pressure or dysfunction of the neck and muscles can irritate the nerves, causing tension.

The tension doesn't cause the headache. To treat this form of headache, attention should be paid to the bone and muscle structure.

They should be returned to normal balance so they can function properly again.

Medication is not the answer to tension headaches. Aspirin and other pain-killers may give you temporary relief—but they won't solve the problem. Once the source of the problem is found and treated, THEN you can get the relief you need.

If you have any health questions please feel free to call our office.

Sertoma Bingo

Thanks to a combination of dedicated volunteers and enthusiastic players, the Sertoma Center's Tuesday bingo grosses just passed the $500,000 mark. Bingo, held each Tuesday morning at the VFW Hall on 105th and Ridgeland at 8 a.m. sharp, provides revenues to help the center fund a variety of services to its speech and hearing clients. The center is the only non-profit, United Way funded speech and hearing center serving the south side and south/southwest suburbs. Last year, bingo dollars helped provide over $80,000 in scaled fee and free services to the community. The funds also allow the center to keep its regular service fees 39% lower than comparable private providers.

Despite the success of bingo, the growing need in the community for free and scaled fee services makes bingo even a more important source of revenue for the center today. Although the bingo game has become something of a ritual, the center's executive director, David J. Rompala, points out that new players are welcome and encouraged: "To the growing list of clients helped by bingo income, every dollar is much appreciated, our bingo volunteers deserve to be applauded for their ongoing involvement and dedication. It truly is an example of the 'Service To Mankind' promised in the name Sertoma."

POLICE CALLS

The following incidents were reported by the Oak Lawn Police Department. Readers are reminded that an arrest by police does not constitute a finding of guilt and only a court of law can make that determination.

On July 15th, Ronald Clair of Bridgeview reported someone stole a tire from the rear of his Chevy Blazer while it was parked at 8700 S. Cicero Ave.

On the 16th, Jim Cummings of Oak Lawn reported that on June 26th he had given a check in the amount of $600 as a deposit to have three trees cut down and hauled away. The check was given to Jim Viverito of Laramie Ave. who allegedly cashed the check and said the work would start on July 2nd. Cummings said he has made numerous attempts to contact the offender with no success. Complaints will be signed and Cummings wants his deposit returned.

Juan Tomayo of Orland Park told police someone had cracked the windshield of his car while it was parked and it will cost $140 to repair.

At 9 a.m., Liz Hofer reported that two 3 ft. x 4 ft. plastic signs hanging on the west and south sides of the business, Contemp Real Estate, 10945 S. Cicero, were taken. They were the covers for the illuminated signs. Estimated loss is $1,000.

On the 17th, Brenda Brown of Chicago was seen by the security agent at Venture, 4101 W. 95th St., allegedly taking various items from the women's department, then going to the children's section where she transferred the clothing into her purse and left without paying. She was stopped outside, brought back and charged with retail theft, and $69.95 worth of merchandise was recovered.

At 2:05 a.m., police received a call from Scott Marinko who was at the Hilton Hotel and reported his car was stolen. When police arrived, they found him laying on a couch in an intoxicated state. The officer checked out the parking lot and found his car. Marinko was arrested and charged with public intoxication.

On the 18th, Michael Alagna of Chicago, building custodian for the apartments at 10036 S. Pulaski, reported someone used a heavy hammer-type object and smashed a 38 in. x 90 in. glass in the front door. Estimated loss is $200.

Vincent Smygulys of River Forest told police he had parked his car in the northwest section of the Hilton Hotel at 9333 S. Cicero and when he returned at 12:22 p.m., found the passenger side window was broken. Taken from the car were his car phone, stereo face plate and friend's purse which had $100 cash. Estimated loss was $700.

On the 19th, the owner of Oak Lawn Florist, 4739 W. 103rd St., reported her 1986 Chevrolet Astrovan was stolen from the rear alley of the shop where she had parked it. It is valued at $7,000.

On July 20th at 5:49 p.m., Salvatore Geraci of Oak Lawn reported someone had broken the driver's side rear window which will cost $50 to replace.

At 8:14 a.m., Linda Stanojevic, owner of Shears to You at 9822 S. Cicero, reported someone had broken into the shop and took a disc player, $300; 40 discs valued at $600 and $50 in cash. Entry was made by prying away the door stripping from a 2 x 2 ft. window. While inside, the offender ransacked the place and shampoos and hair conditioners were squeezed on the walls and floor and a garbage bag was found by the back door filled with beauty supplies, and a coffee can filled with coins was found by the front door.

Todd Huttner of Oak Lawn reported someone had taken his basketball rim and damaged the basket board goal on the front of the garage. Estimated loss is $150.

On the 21st, the custodian at the Columbus Manor Shop at 10700 S. Mayfield reported a 24 in. x 14 in. window and a 30 in. x 30 in. window were broken with landscape stones and will cost approximately $150 to replace.

At approximately midnight on Wednesday, Craig Taylor, 22, of Oak Lawn was struck and killed by a hit and run driver while he was riding his bike in the 9700 block of 52nd Ave. A neighbor who heard the crash jumped in his car, followed the car memorizing the rear license plate and drove directly to the police station where he reported the number to the desk sergeant. Linda R. Matera of Oak Lawn was taken into custody early Thursday morning and charged with reckless homicide, leaving the scene of an accident, driving over the center line and driving with an expired license.

Set Up Flood Trust Fund

Gov. Jim Edgar announced the state has set up a trust fund to help rural communities and agricultural operations mitigate their losses from flooding and excessive rain.

The state created the fund in response to calls from people interested in specifically targeting donations for agricultural uses.

"The Farm Help Trust Fund enables people who may not be able to provide needed goods or services to contribute by supplying money for flood-related efforts," the Governor said. "All money collected will be used to help agricultural communities and operations recover losses not covered by other disaster assistance."

People who want to contribute should make checks payable to Farm Help Trust Fund. Checks should be sent to Illinois Department of Agriculture, Farm Help Trust Fund, P.O. Box 19281, State Fairgrounds, Springfield, IL 62794-9281.

Officials at the state agriculture department are reviewing flood-related agricultural needs shared by callers, farm organizations and others to determine how donations can best be spent.

For more information, people can call the state's Farm Help Hotline at 1-800-582-0468 (Voice or TDD).

Farmers and agribusinesses needing crisis-related assistance, as well as those wanting to provide needed goods and services, should also call the hotline.

Circulation Up

Total circulation continues to escalate at the Oak Lawn Public Library. In a report to the library board of trustees, Dr. James Casey, director, noted that circulation for the first half of 1993 was more than four percent higher than the same period last year. There were 55,992 more circulations which averages out to 306 more per day since the same period in 1991.

The board was given an progress report on installation of the library's Local Area Network (LAN). Wiring is scheduled to begin the final week of July with anticipated full operation by the end of the summer. LAN will give librarians and unit heads access to a full-service computer.

The latest figure on the youth services department's summer reading program indicates 1,800 participants.

This number is somewhat less than last year's record-breaking 2,000, but is still ahead of any other year. Oak Lawn children from preschool through eighth grade are eligible to participate. The program runs through Aug. 10th.

In regular monthly board business, payment was approved for $48,879 for library materials, $18,127 for general operating expenses, and $140,849 for personnel.

The board reviewed and approved several board policies including purchase of certificates of deposit, use of signature plate, purchasing, capital items and trustee borrowing privileges.

The library board meets at 7:30 p.m. on the third Tuesday of each month in the Oak Lawn Library Rotary Room, lower level, 9427 Raymond Ave. (5300 W. 95th St.).

WISCONSIN "NUISANCE GOOSE" SEASON - Aug. 6 is the deadline for permits for the early Southeast Wisconsin goose hunt. Applications are available at most DNR offices that sell licenses.

The early season hunt will be held Sept. 1 through 3 and Sept. 7 through 10. The special season includes parts of Washington, Ozaukee, Milwaukee, Waukesha, Racine, Kenosha and Walworth counties. For more information contact JON BERGQUIST at (608) 266-8841.

KANKAKEE RIVER UPDATE - Ed Mullady, publisher of the Sportsman's Letter, states, "This is a good time for Kankakee River fishermen to fish the various weedbeds of the river that have managed to form. This is one of many places that river fish of all types will be found! Much aquatic growth adds shade to the water below, especially lily pads. Much of the food forming the main diet of the river's fish will be found here. This includes crawfish, minnows of all kinds.

Topside, frogs sit on lily pads and around other types of weed growth and often on logs that have drifted into the weeds. A multitude of aquatic insect life is also here."

"In many of Indiana's bass waters of the Kankakee, you will find weeds growing in any slough or backwater, as well as sprouting up along quieter edges of the shorelines of the main river.

In portions of the Illinois section of the Kankakee, many weedbed islands have formed and are holding smallmouth bass."

He also suggests fishermen check with their local tackle dealers and bait shops for special baits that work well when being cast into heavier weed cover.

As of right now, Mullady comments, "Smallmouth bass fishing has improved to where it can be rated good. Some nice catches include a 3 lb. 6 oz. smallmouth caught by Eric Huston, guided by river guide Matt Mullady, downstream from Kankakee.

Walleye fishing is fair. Best at mouths of creeks, ditches and bayous with some good baits including Rattlin' Rogues, Spinnerbaits, jig and minnow."

SOUTH SIDE MUSKIE HAWKS - This "very active" local multi-species fishing club now has a newsletter edited by JON KARTMAN. The SSMH has many activities underway throughout the year, a well organized newsletter will prove helpful to the membership. This club meets the third Wednesday of every month at the Delphian House in Hickory Hills. For more information contact RAY THOMPSON 708-795-1738.

FLY OR DRIVE TO OSHKOSH - The EXPERIMENTAL AIRCRAFT ASSOCIATION annual fly-in convention starts today and runs through Wednesday, Aug. 4th. This annual event is a must-see for aviation enthusiasts. It is the largest gathering of general aviation, war birds, and antique aircraft in the world. Located on Whitman Field in Oshkosh, Wisconsin, the show attracts visitors from around the world.

The best air controllers in the country man the control towers, Oshkosh becomes the busiest airport in the world, far surpassing O'Hare Airport. Up to 6 aircraft are "touching down" at the same time. The last time I flew my family to the EAA extravaganza I flew alongside a B-25 Bomber, P-51 Mustang plus numerous other aircraft including an open-cockpit ultra-light with pilot wearing goggles and silk scarf on my final approach to Runway 27. The aircraft simultaneously land on the runways and grass fields. If you're looking for an unusual family weekend vacation, Oshkosh is the place to go. Take an extra day or two and enjoy fishing the many lakes and rivers in the area.

NEW WORLD FRESHWATER STEELHEAD RECORD - On July 10, KYLE JOHNSON of Wheaton, beat the old World All Tackle Inland Freshwater Record of 26 lbs. ½ oz. Kyle caught a 31 lb. 4 oz. steelhead off Waukegan.

Champions

Kelly Muldoon scored on Maureen O'Keefe's two-out infield single in the seventh inning last Saturday as Beverly/Monroe Park edged defending champion Lawler Park 5-4 to win the Chicago Park District intermediate girls softball championship at Grant Park. The win capped a perfect 10-0 season and allowed Beverly to claim the first championship in the giant Mayor's Summer Games co-sponsored by the Mayor's Office and the Chicago Park District. Lawler closed out its highly successful season at 7-1. The winners pounded out 14 hits, including 3 by Maureen O'Keefe and two each by Bridgit Flanagan and Caroline Finn.

Lawler trailed 1-0 in the fifth when it rallied with three runs on five hits for a 3-1 lead. Trisha Jorgenson drove in Beth Dykema and scored on a double by Gayda. Ericka Berger tripled to left to score Gayda.

Beverly came back with three runs in the bottom of the inning to retake a 4-3 lead. Key hits were singles by D'Andrea, McDermott and O'Keefe and a double by Meg Cronin.

Lawler tied the game in the sixth on Angie Kitz's run scoring single, then went down in order to open the seventh. That set the stage for Muldoon's game-winning slide at the plate.

Members of the champion Beverly/Monroe team coached by John MacAskill were Maggie Hennon, Maureen O'Keefe, Bridgit Flanagan, Maureen Roche, Caroline Finn, Sissy Volkman, Christine Schreiner, Tina D'Andrea, Katy McDermott, Meg Cronin and Kelly Muldoon.

Sophomores awarded minor letters were Joe Dunn, Matt Goral, Brian LaDuca, Jason Lara, Jim Lopez, Brad Meyers, Fran Silva, and Steve Stradal. Major letters were awarded to varsity team members including Sebastian Gieranski, Mike Gomez, Dan Hawrysz, captain Marty Kalas, Chris Quinn and Thom Swift.

In the special awards category at the frosh-soph level, the most valuable player award was presented to Brian LaDuca and the most improved player award went to Steve Stradal.

At the varsity level, special awards were presented to Ryan Gayles for best record and Mike Gomez for most improved player.

The St. Laurence Award, given to the senior who best epitomizes the dedication needed to go the extra mile for his team, was presented to graduating senior and captain Marty Kalas.

Draski lauded his team's performance for its efforts this season by saying, "This happened to be an extremely enjoyable season. In fact, it was one of the most satisfying years that I've ever had in coaching," said the 12-year head coach who won the Tony Lawless Award which recognizes the Catholic League's top coach.

"We had a team that never quit and always gave its best record," he concluded.

Robert DeCarlo athletic director at St. Laurence recently announced that Coach Draski has been selected as the 1993 'Coach of the Year' in the Chicago Catholic League. The Tony Lawless Award recognizes the league's top coach in a particular sport. The selection was made after a vote among the league's coaches.

This marks the second time in the past five years that Draski has received the award, previously winning in 1989. Draski has been coaching tennis at St. Laurence for the past 18 years and has been the head varsity coach for the past 12.

Upon receiving the award, Draski commented, "I'd like to thank my fellow coaches in the league for this honor. In addition, all the members of this year's team should not go unrecognized. Without their hard work, determination and extra effort, this award would not have been possible."

Shootout Champs

The Brother Rice Crusaders captured the title game of the Converse/Brother Rice Shootout with a 59-50 win over St. Francis de Sales.

Brother Rice Coach Pat Richardson said, "It was nice to be able to compete and this should help our confidence. We didn't want to lose because they (the Pioneers) worked harder than we did."

The Crusaders did anything but fold. Tailing 35-25 early in the second half, Jimmy Sexton drilled a 3-pointer to cut the deficit to seven. Brother Rice then went on a 10-4 run and reduced the lead to 39-38 on a shot by Britt Booker with 12:50 left.

The Crusaders continued to prove their intensity as a team. With the score tied at 47, Rico Hill made a steal and drove in for a lay-up that gave Brother Rice its first lead with 7:19 remaining on the clock.

Pioneer point guard Larry Moore, Jr. tied it at 49, but the Crusaders went on a 7-0 run to win the game.

Richardson praised his point guards, Dan Maloney and Dan Lotito. "Our point guards were tremendous. They really hustle and they are the key to our team."

The third place contest was won by St. Laurence with its defeat of Mount Carmel, 71-57.

While leading 18-11 in the first half, the Vikings went on an 18-6 run to gain a 36-17 lead. Three 3-pointers were scored by guard Matt Daley. Daley and Tom Herbeck shared team high honors with 16 points apiece.

In the second half, the Caravan reached 46-35 on a shot by Dan O'Connor, but St. Laurence responded with an 8-0 press that was highlighted by a pair of buckets from Keith Webster.

JACKIE RUSSELL

LYNNE DIGRAZIA

All-Americans

St. Xavier University womens softball player Jackie Russell was named an Academic All-American and Lynne DiGrazia was selected as an All-American by the NAIA All-American Committee.

Jackie, a graduate of Shepard High School, was a utility player who played the infield, outfield and pitched for the Lady Cougars. Russell was a two-year Academic All-American 92-93, Most Valuable Player of Dist. 20 in 1990, All Tournament team in 1992, Most Valuable Player of the Chicagoland Collegiate Athletic Conference (CCAC) in 1993, Illinois Scholar Athlete in 1992-93, All District 1990-93, and was the first woman softball player at SXU to be named All Conference in four seasons.

In the 1993 season, Russell led the Lady Cougars in doubles, triples, driving in runners in scoring position and also had the best pitching percentage. "Jackie was one of the best players that I have ever coached. She may not have been the flashiest player, but she got the job done," said Head Coach Lynn O'Linski.

Lynne, a graduate of Maria High School, was an outfielder for the Lady Cougars. While at SXU, Lynne was named to the All District 20 team in 1991 and 1993, Most Valuable Player of District 20 in 1993, All Conference in 1992 and 1993 and was named to the All Tournament Team in 91-92-93.

In the 1993 softball season DiGrazia led the Lady Cougars in batting average, home runs, RBI and also had the best slugging percentage. According to O'Linski, "DiGrazia was the big game player; when we needed someone to come through, Lynne was there."

O'Linski has announced that Russell and Beth Silazas, 1991 graduate, will be joining the Lady Cougar coaching staff for the upcoming season.

Looking Into Lingerie Shows

Justice village officials announced at Monday night's meeting that they will look into an ordinance that would regulate lingerie and fashion shows. The discussion of an ordinance, and possible fee, stems from shows held at Chet's Melody Lounge, 7400 S. Archer Road, which was granted a license for musical entertainment, but specifically excluded lingerie and fashion shows.

The lounge was raided in April. Charges alleged, under public indecency ordinances, that the models exposed their breasts and allowed patrons to fondle them. Gambling charges alleged that the establishment was selling tickets for drawing prizes that included free drinks and lingerie.

John Small, a village resident who lives near the lounge, said he saw shows in the lounge on two occasions and "personally saw some lewd acts." He urged the board either not to allow the shows, or to strictly regulate them.

On July 6th, Richard Prusinski, 37, and Barbara Prusinski, 32, both of Palos Hills, lounge owner Chet Prusinski and bartender, Melissa Kendall, 23, of Cicero, were found not guilty on the gambling charges. The models were also found not guilty of public indecency.

Village Attorney Donna McDonald said that the lingerie shows could resume because there was no ordinance forbidding them.

"Since there is no ordinance prohibiting the shows," she said, "what the models are doing is not illegal."

Trustee Jeff Kranig tabled the issue to be discussed at a future committee meeting.

Society Inductees

Two hundred and twenty-two students were inducted into the national honor society of Phi Kappa Phi at the University of Illinois at Chicago during the spring semester. The UIC chapter of Phi Kappa Phi annually selects its inductees from the upper 10 percent of the senior class and the upper 5 percent of the junior class. Each of this year's inductees had a cumulative grade point average of at least 4.8 on a 5.0 scale.

Initiates from our area include Paula K. Burke of Evergreen Park, William J. Sluis of Midlothian, Patricia J. Dymowski of Oak Forest, Jeffrey S. Miller of Palos Heights, Kelly M. Karas of Palos Hills, Mary L. Monahan of Palos Park, Patricia H. Blatzer of Worth, Shirley A. Connelly and Mary H. Kennedy of Beverly, and Tara L. Rores of Mt. Greenwood.

Xavier Elects Two Trustees

Illinois State Senator Patrick J. O'Malley (R-18) and Chicago Department of Health Commissioner Sheila Lyne, RSM, have recently been elected to serve on the Saint Xavier University Board of Trustees.

O'Malley, elected in 1992 to represent the 18th District, is a practicing attorney with extensive business experience. As a strong advocate for education, O'Malley is working for changes in the school-aid formula to return a greater share of state education dollars to his district. He is vice-chairman of the Senate Education Committee and a member of the Senate Insurance, Pensions and Licensed Activities Committee, Senate Revenue Committee and the Citizens' Assembly's Council on Economic Development.

A graduate of the John Marshall Law School, O'Malley is an active member in community groups including the Palos Fire Protection District, Southwest Cooperative Foundation and the Illinois Vietnam Veterans Leadership Program. He is also affiliated with the Chicago, Illinois State and Southwest Bar Associations.

Sister Sheila Lyne, a member of the Religious Sisters of Mercy in the Province of Chicago and a 1960 alumnus of Saint Xavier University, is also a leader in the fields of health and education. As commissioner of the Chicago Department of Health, Sister Lyne was the recipient of the first "Excellence in Public Service" award sponsored by Crain's City and State, NORBIC and Motorola.

Sister Lyne currently serves on a number of boards including the Mercy Health Care Corporation, American National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago, Mercy Health Care and Rehabilitation Centers, DePaul University and Project Alivio. In addition to a master's degree in psychiatric nursing from Saint Xavier University, Sister Lyne has also earned an M.B.A. from the University of Chicago.

Both O'Malley and Sister Lyne have strong ties to Saint Xavier University. O'Malley has served on the Presidents Advisory Board for SXU since 1991. Sister Lyne was the recipient of the Shield of Saint Xavier Award in 1992 and was awarded an honorary degree from the University in 1986.

"These two pillars of our community are an essential part of who we are as Saint Xavier University," President Dr. Ronald Champagne said. "They are joining a board of very distinguished business and community leaders with a special focus of advancing the University's mission. I am confident their strong leadership abilities will help guide our university into the 21st century."

Standard Bank and Trust Co., a full-service financial institution with five locations in the southwestern suburbs, is promoting gifts, as well as high rates, for qualifying deposits. An opening deposit to a new checking account or Now account entitles the customer to a free commemorative million-dollar beach towel. This towel, featuring Standard's 'Lucky Leprechaun' mascot, is also available for a deposit of $1,000 or more to a new or existing interest-bearing account, such as savings, money market, or certificate. The offer is limited to one gift per account or family, while supplies last. Funds must remain on deposit for a period of six months.

Standard Bank is also among very few financial institutions offering a current rate of three and one-half percent on their variable rate regular savings account. Based on daily compounding, the annual percentage yield (APY) calculates to 3.562%. Banners at branch locations in Oak Lawn, Palos Park, Orland Park, and Hickory Hills display the savings rate and yield. Discussing the million-dollar towel promotion in front of the lawn sign at the main office in Evergreen Park are bank officers Laura Shallow, Mary Kay Geary and Lee Zagrakalls.

Drag Racing Charged

A motorcycle drag race ended with a cyclist and a 12-year-old boy hospitalized in critical condition, according to Hickory Hills police. Alex Lassandrello, 12, of Hickory Hills and Donald O. Moser, 19, of Chicago Ridge were listed in critical condition at Christ Hospital. The accident occurred at 2:16 p.m. on Monday. Witnesses claim that the cyclists, who were driving south in the 9600 block of Roberts Road, appeared to be speeding and driving erratically before the accident.

Hickory Hills Police Sgt. Lawrence Barre said he was told that a witness was driving her car in the center southbound lane. Two of the motorcyclists were pacing her in the curb lane while Moser was behind her. Moser accelerated around the right-hand side of her car and cut in front of her.

Lassandrello, who was riding a bicycle, was in the lane trying to cross Roberts Road when he was struck.

Two cyclists Louis Emlund, 18, of Chicago Ridge and Martin Rogers, 18, of Oak Lawn, in addition to Moser, have been charged with drag racing.

Turn Over a New Leaf

Our families, our friends, our homes, our cars — over the years, they all change.

Our careers change, too. What we do for a living today isn't often what we were doing for a living five or ten years ago, or what we'll be doing five or ten years from now.

Change is the nature of our lives. But it doesn't have to catch us unaware. We can prepare for change and make it happen on our own terms.

Moraine Valley Community College helps thousands of adults turn over a new leaf in their careers — and their lives — by providing the outstanding higher education programs they need to keep up with our changing world.

Because when change is ready for you, you need to be ready for change.

BERNADETTE PETERS (inset) has been voted Chicago's Actress of the Year by the Sarah Siddons Society for her starring role in Neil Simon's classic comedy "The Goodbye Girl." Miss Peters will accept her award at a gala dinner and dance at a date to be announced soon.... "City of Angels," a hilarious play about a novelist writing a screenplay about a private eye, opens next Wednesday at the Drury Lane Oakbrook Terrace. The mood of "City of Angels" is captured in its stage design, which is half living color, the other half a film noir-in-progress with black and white sets and costumes. The musical selection that opens the show, "Prologue" Theme From City of Angels," features orchestra, scat vocals, and world-weary voice of Stone, which plunges the audience into the realm of 1940s detective movies.... "Oliver!" the enchanting musical adaptation of Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist," will steal the hearts and imaginations of Candlelight Dinner Playhouse audiences when the play begins previews on Aug. 18, officially opening Aug. 25.

BE FAKE, BE SMOOTH.... Bob Slrott was pink-slipped from Channel Five and his "First Thing in the Morning" co-anchor post with Allison Rosati when station management felt the morning news and information program needed a more "serious approach to the news." Slrott's often irreverent style was not in keeping with other morning news programs which approach the overnight events in a straightforward clone-like style of reporting. "First Thing in the Morning," which airs from 6 a.m. until 7 a.m. on Channel Five, was in our opinion a fresh approach to starting off each day and a light and lively mood in keeping with the time of the day. Longtime viewers of the program, like this columnist/reporter, were keenly aware of the chemistry that existed between Bob Slrott and Allison Rosati. When either Slrott or Rosati were on vacation or on assignment, the station would insert one of their talking-heads into the slot and the mix was a disaster. Now that Slrott has been ashcanned for not following orders and delivering the news in a monotone of one news story after another in what produces a mind "whiteout," especially at 6 a.m. when most people are still shaking the cobwebs out of their brain, the station's management has inserted Warner Saunders into Slrott's old chair. Even though Saunders is a seasoned news veterans, "First Thing in the Morning" is like a ship without an anchor. Saunders' off-the-wall remarks usually fall flat and even he seems uncomfortable in the morning setting. Meanwhile, the folks over at Fox-TV, Channel 32, have to be jumping for joy over the Bob Slrott axe job. The station just started a new morning news program which is about as exciting as watching grass grow. One news story after another, pedestrian weather segments, with only Bruce Wolf, the sports commentator, offering a break from the "flatline" approach to the news. Instead of filing for unemployment, maybe Slrott and his wife Carrie Cochran, a former TV news personality, can link-up with a cable station and bring some lively, not "Be Fake, Be Smooth," approach to the morning news which is much more digestible while wolfing down a cup of java and a danish before facing the ordeals of work or getting the tykes off to school than the newly revised "First Thing in the Morning."

MITCHELL

LICHENSTEIN, WINSTON CHAO and MAY CHIN (inset) starring in "The Wedding Banquet" is currently slated to open Aug. 27 at Loews Fine Arts Theatre. The movie is about a young man who decides to fake a marriage to a nice Taiwanese girl just to please his parents. All is going along smoothly until the young man's parents decide to visit America and attend the wedding.... "So I Married an Axe Murderer," a TriStar Pictures release, is set to open at movie houses all over the Chicago area tomorrow.

DASHES TO DEADLINE.... The International Kennel Club of Chicago's 23rd annual fall dog show and obedience trials will be held on October 17 at McCormick Place North.... An Adler Planetarium visitor (inset) uses a starfinder to locate a group of stars in one of the hands-on modules of "Night Visions," a new temporary exhibit on view through June, 1994.... C. Everett Koop, MD and former Surgeon General, will present the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago's 12th annual James C. Hemphill Lecture on Sept. 4 at Thorne Hall, 375 E. Chicago Ave. Dr. Koop's topic will be "The Coming Revolution in Medical Education."

Abilities Expo Comes To Rosemont

Abilities Expo '93, coming to the Rosemont/O'Hare Expo Center, Friday until Sunday, Aug. 6th to 8th, will give the estimated 500,000 Chicago area residents with disabilities and their families a unique opportunity to see products and services that may improve their lifestyle. This is the first time that Abilities Expo, the largest public show in the country devoted to meeting the needs of people with disabilities, has been held in the Chicago area.

The exhibits give persons who have a difficult time visiting vendors to 'comparison shop,' a rare opportunity to try and compare a variety of equipment in a single location. Mayor Daley's office for people with disabilities and the Easter Seal Society of Metropolitan Chicago are co-sponsors.

Over 200 exhibitors will display state-of-the-art wheelchairs, vans, computer adaptive hardware and software, lifts, communication devices, recreation equipment, toys and clothing. Services will include personal care, rehabilitation and non-profit agencies.

A hands-on demonstration of how computers can be adapted for professional, personal and educational use by persons with disabilities will be held during the show at the "Take Control Adaptive Technology Fair."

Free workshops are to focus on ADA issues, rebuilding paralyzed muscles, personal safety and use of assistance dogs.

Exhibits of special interest include speech output communication devices that provide a 'voice' for persons who cannot speak; barrier-free ceiling lifts; new exterior lifts for cars to help store and transport a manual wheelchair; toys for children, tailored to their individual needs; sports equipment, including a water ski and tennis court chair, to allow people with disabilities to participate in favorite sports.

A section of the exhibit area will feature products and services designed to help building owners and operators comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) which requires public facilities and businesses to be accessible to people with disabilities.

Health care and other professionals who provide services to people with disabilities are also urged to attend the 1993 Abilities Expo. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Aug. 6th; 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Aug. 7th and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Aug. 8th. Admission is $4 with children under 12 admitted free. For information and travel directions call the Rosemont/O'Hare Expo Center at (708) 692-2222 or Mayor's Office TT/TDD (312) 744-4964.

Beverly Heckler Is Charged

William J. Kelly, chairman of PAC for Middle America, an anti-tax group, was escorted from a Monday luncheon meeting where he had jumped up and heckled President Bill Clinton.

Kelly interrupted Clinton's speech to business and union officials at the Chicago Sheraton Hotel and Towers, accusing the President of betraying the middle class by reneging on a campaign promise to cut taxes. "It's a Democratic-controlled Congress," Kelly shouted, "why don't you take leadership."

It's your responsibility. You promised the middle class a tax cut."

Clinton responded that Democrats do not control Congress, as the Republicans have enough votes, 41, to filibuster most bills.

The President added that he resented being interrupted. "This is not your meeting, sir. Most people have better manners than to interrupt somebody making a speech."

He added that one of the things wrong with this country is that there's not enough civility in how we treat one another.

Following his removal from the hotel ballroom, Kelly passed out leaflets identifying himself as a resident of the 19th Ward and head of PAC for Middle America.

On Monday night, Kelly was arrested at his home by Secret Service agents and was charged in a criminal complaint which alleges "he (Kelly) did wilfully and knowingly enter and remain in a cordoned off and restricted area of a building where the President of the United States was visiting."

The federal law, a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of up to $500 and/or six months in prison, permits the Secret Service to cordon off an area and secure it, barring admittance to those not invited.

According to a Secret Service affidavit, Kelly was turned away by agents at an escalator leading to the cordoned off area in the hotel. Reportedly, Kelly then returned to the hotel lobby, stole a name tag for an invited guest and gained entrance to the ballroom.

Kelly appeared before a federal magistrate on Tuesday and was released on a personal recognizance bond.

A preliminary hearing was set for Monday, Aug. 16th.

Fall Registration

St. Albert the Great School is offering registration all through the summer between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. This registration is for preschool and kindergarten through 8th grade. St. Albert offers a needed alternative for parents working outside the home. The extended day program is open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. offering care for children in one location.

The kindergarten alternative offers extended day from 6 to 11:40 a.m.; kindergarten from 11:40 a.m. to 2:15 p.m.; and extended day from 2:15 to 6 p.m., all at an hourly rate.

Preschool is offered to children who are or will be three years old by Sept. 1st and will not be five until after Sept. 1st. These children are eligible to register. We also require that the children be toilet-trained. Our preschool program, under the guidance of a qualified teacher and staff, will offer activities through which children develop abilities to solve problems and think about new ideas, enhance self-image, improve motor skills and muscle development, respect individual differences, enjoy life and learn about the environment.

We are offering the following program schedule: 3 year olds (Tuesday, Thursday) from 8:15 to 11 a.m. for $45 a month; 4 year olds (Monday, Wednesday, Friday) from 8:15 to 11 a.m. for $65 a month; 4 year olds (Monday through Friday) from 8:15 to 11 a.m. for $110 a month.

We would like to begin an afternoon preschool, if the need warrants it.

For further information, stop in at the school office between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. or call the school office at (708) 424-7757.

What Was Happening...

25 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK IN THE COMMUNITY

A request for re-hearing on his application for a building permit to erect a Jack-In-the-Box drive-through restaurant at 103rd and Cicero Ave. has been made by Thomas Arato of River Forest, representing an estate which owns the property in question. When the matter came up before the Oak Lawn at its last meeting, it was shelved while plans were discussed to condemn the land and buy it for parking space for the Arena Shopping Center.

Working with such precision that it took only 90 seconds to complete their mission, two men on Friday night smashed the glass in the front door of the Oak Lawn Gun Store, entered and broke open a display case and then made off with 10 handguns and three pairs of binoculars. Police estimated the value of the loot in excess of $1,000.

Sgt. Vernon L. Anderson, who retired on July 1st after 22 years with the Oak Lawn Police Department, was honored on Monday night by the Oak Lawn Police Club. He was presented a plaque bearing a gold star with his badge number and other gifts during ceremonies at Banana's Steak House at 9401 Cicero Ave.

With their win over Service Electric on Thursday night, Premo's Drive-In now has a full two-game lead with four games to go in the Oak Lawn Park District softball league. Service Electric, Dewey's Lounge, Turner's Tap and Permacore are now fighting for the remaining three places left in the round robin playoffs, with Prep and Pro, and Pop Tops still having an outside shot at the playoffs.

Miss Susan M. Bohling of Oak Lawn has been named to the Dean's List at Butler University for the second semester of the 1967-68 college year.

Maureen Bruke, age 9, of Oak Lawn, won the Illinois State Strutting Championship (9-10 age group) and received the Governor Shapiro Trophy. Maureen is a student at Lucella's School of Twirling and a member of "The Silhouettes" majorette parade corps. She attends St. Gerald School and is in the fifth grade.

Joel J. Brauer, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Norman E. Brauer of Melvina, has been placed on the Dean's Honor list for the spring term at Concordia Senior College, Fort Wayne, Indiana.

An Oak Lawn resident is back home this week telling of her harrowing experiences as the result of a boat collision in Lake Michigan. Susan McGaw, 18, was injured July 5th when a cabin cruiser in which she was riding collided with a sightseeing boat about a quarter of a mile south of the mouth of the Chicago River.

The Columbus Manor Fire Dept. has completed plans for the biggest picnic ever held by that community. With fun and entertainment featured for the full day and night of Sunday, Aug. 8th, the picnic will be held at Justice Grove, Archer and Kean Av. Many neighboring Fire Depts. are cooperating. Columbus Manor Firemen challenged the Oak Lawn Fire Dept. to a softball game and were promptly accepted. Among other entertainment featured will be music and dancing, a water fight between another fire dept. and Columbus Manor, a tug of war, bingo, several games, special prizes and special races.

The game between Oak Lawn and Fernwood, to have been played at Fernwood last Sunday, was rained out. This Sunday Oak Lawn will play the Orland Park Boosters at Orland Park.

YMCA Has A Speakers Bureau

Tax Levy Hearings

Cook County Assessor Thomas C. Hynes is urging Gov. Jim Edgar to sign House Bill 2080 which would require all taxing districts in Cook County to hold public hearings on their tax levies during the first week of December. The purpose of the legislation, which has passed both the State House and State Senate, is to allow the public and the media to more directly focus on property tax increases by holding taxing district levy meetings on a specific day of the year.

Hynes wrote Edgar seeking the governor's signature on this bill which establishes "Citizens Awareness Tax Week." Taxing bodies regardless of the levy they would be seeking would have to hold a public meeting at a certain time every year. For example, park districts would hold their hearings on the first Sunday in December, elementary schools on the first Monday, and high schools on the first Tuesday.

"By knowing when hearings will be held each year, interested taxpayers can plan which hearings to attend and taxpayer groups can organize to express their members' views on spending levels," Hynes said.

Illinois currently has about 6,000 local taxing units in more than 36 categories, said Hynes, and the current "Truth in Taxation" law requires them to hold hearings only if they plan to increase their levies by more than 5 percent. Although the date for filing levies with county clerks has been standardized, the last Tuesday in December, differences in fiscal years and other considerations result in public meetings and hearings being held at various times, often with little public notice. As a result, it is difficult for the public to gain a picture of how much property tax levies overall will grow in the next year. It also is difficult for citizens to have a meaningful opportunity to voice their opinions and hold their elected representatives accountable for spending decisions.

Hynes' proposal is to institute a "Citizens Awareness Tax Week" during which all taxing units would hold hearings before finalizing levies. Under the proposal, all taxing units will be required to hold public hearings on proposed levies during the first week in December. The objective of the tax week is to make taxing units more accountable for their spending decisions. The concept of "truth in taxation" will be reinforced.

Given the large number of taxing unit types, the hearing schedule will require major users of the property tax to hold hearings on separate days. For example, on the first Sunday in December, park districts will hold hearings; on the first Monday in December, all school districts, except for high school districts, will hold hearings; on the first Tuesday in December, high school districts will hold hearings; on the first Wednesday in December, townships and road districts will hold hearings; on the first Thursday in December, all municipalities will hold hearings; on the first Friday in December, all counties will hold hearings; and on the first Saturday of December, all other taxing districts will hold hearings.

By knowing when hearings will be held each year, interested taxpayers can plan which hearings they want to attend, and taxpayer groups can organize their members' views on spending levels. Better media coverage of levy increases and hearings can be anticipated, which will heighten public awareness of local government spending.

House Bill 2080 sponsors include Rep. Thomas Dart (D-28), Sen. Bruce Farley (D-17) and Sen. Patrick O'Malley (R-18).

The original proposal, which covered all Illinois counties, was amended by the State Senate to apply only to Cook County.

Southwest Suburbs Best Kept Secret Holds Opening

Preservatives. A bad word in the food industry. Yet preservation of natural beauty is highly valued by homebuyers, and therefore, real estate developers. George Thrush, president of The Thrush Companies, knows this. In fact, it was the uniqueness of the estate-like setting at Edgewater Walk that convinced him to restore this project by converting apartments to condominiums. The Grand Opening of The Condominium Towers of Edgewater Walk is slated for August 7 and 8, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

With a track record of successful development and redevelopment projects throughout Chicago, Thrush has a knack for seeing what others often miss. In Edgewater Walk, he saw the potential for a luxury condo complex set in an nature preserve setting unparalleled in the southern suburbs.

Originally conceived as a condominium complex in the early 70's, the developer was forced, due to cost overruns, to rent out units as they were built. Finally, the property was foreclosed, taken over by the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC), and sold to Thrush at a sizeable discount.

Formerly an estate created with the considerable wealth of the John Boyers family after WWI, Edgewater Walk became the family's summer retreat. Boyers discovered the creek, dammed it to create a spring-fed lake, and planted numerous oaks. Further improvements were made by the original developer who added sand beaches, tennis courts and a health club.

"Two things make this project special," explains Thrush. "One is the quality of residents there now—many of them 'empty nesters' who have found an ideal environment for their lifestyle. Mature buyers don't want to sacrifice space, privacy or quality," Thrush added, noting that each of the units is open and spacious, with only two residences on each floor.

"Second, there's no other luxury condo development in the south suburbs with this type of naturalistic setting. Where else can you enjoy a view of towering oaks, expanses of green grass, crystal lake and singing birds, all from your sixth-floor bedroom window? Nowhere!"

Numerous on-site amenities include a private health club with sauna and 22 exercise machines; recreation room; swimming and fishing along a sandy lakefront beach; trails for jogging, biking or walking; tennis, volleyball and basketball courts; and a softball field.

Each 1200 sq. ft. residence features two bedrooms and two full baths (one is a whirlpool) in a unique "see through" layout, with a 25-foot balcony off the living room and smaller balcony off the master bedroom. The open floor plan allows for natural light throughout the home and provides expansive views of forest preserve or the lake.

Adjacent to Edgewater Walk is the National Golf Course and Preserve, which is open to the public, and there are numerous other golf courses nearby. Commuters are within a five-minute drive of the RTA station, and less than 2 miles from I-57 and I-80 access. The outdoor World Music Theater in Tinley Park features big-name entertainment from spring through fall.

"With special introductory offers for current residents, including the grand opening purchase incentives of up to $2500 in free upgrades, they can own a condominium for about the same payment they're making for rent," Mara Bogojevich, sales director, pointed out. A recent survey of current residents indicated a high level of satisfaction and strong interest in making the switch from renter to homeowner. "Prices start at $85,000, making Edgewater Walk an ideal investment for any buyer."

"And," she added, "with the on-going conversion of additional buildings as units are sold, the condominiums will only appreciate in value." In fact, she noted that more than half of the units in the first building have already been sold to residents.

"Many renters have lived here six or seven years; they feel comfortable here. It's a neighborhood with a wonderful blend of mature adults and young families who all treasure the natural beauty of the grounds."

"Tinley Park is a small, friendly community of single family residential neighborhoods and a few multi-family developments," said Bogojevich. "Edgewater Walk fits right in with the kind of 'small town' living residents enjoy."

For more information about The Condominium Towers of Edgewater Walk, contact Mara Bogojevich at (708) 532-3160. Or visit the community for a tour of models, open daily from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Take Rt. 57 south to 167th Street, go west a mile past Central Avenue to the entrance on the southside of 167th.

'Bank At School' Program Told

The First National Bank of Chicago announced the launching of its "Bank At School" program, specifically designed to meet the banking needs of Chicago area college students.

"We have one of the most comprehensive programs among banks in the Chicago metropolitan area to meet the special needs of college students," said Jerry Goldstein, who heads First Chicago's branches downtown and on the city's south side. "This is a time when young adults are on their own and need to begin investigating the services we can provide."

The "Bank At School" program, offered at all First Chicago branches, offers a variety of services for eligible college students:

- First Advantage Checking Account. The First Advantage checking account provides students with a zero minimum balance requirement and no monthly charge when the student writes ten or fewer checks per month.

- Savings Account. Students are able to open a zero minimum balance savings account; saving accounts with balances of $200 or more will earn interest.

- First Chicago ATM Banking Card. The First Chicago ATM Banking Card allows students who qualify to make use of the bank's more than 300 ATMs throughout the Chicago area as well as make purchases wherever VISA and Mastercard are accepted, including Jewel food stores, Amoco, and Mobil gas stations.

- First Chicago Credit Card. Students are eligible to apply for a First Chicago Mastercard or Visa with no annual fee and a low variable annual percentage rate (currently 15.9 percent).

- Student loans. A full range of student loans are available for both graduate and undergraduate students.

The Bank At School program is available to all students 18 years or older. A valid student identification and a $10 opening deposit is required to open an account.

The First National Bank of Chicago, the tenth largest bank in the country, has more than 70 branches throughout the Chicago metropolitan area providing leading edge banking products and services to retail customers. Its branches in the downtown area and in the city's south and south suburban communities are located at One First National Plaza; 35 W. Wacker Dr.; Dearborn Station; 4730 W. 79th St.; 4363 S. Archer; 8340 S. Kedzie; 6245 S. Western Ave.; in Little Village, Pilsen, Burbank, Oak Lawn, Orland Park, Worth and Lansing.

Flood Relief Drive Is Successful

A flood relief drive organized by the Cook County Sheriff's Office collected more than 250,000 pounds of canned food, bottled water and other supplies for Illinois victims of Mississippi River flooding, according to Sheriff Michael F. Sheahan.

"This tremendous outpouring of generosity has exceeded all expectations. It's been a great success," Sheahan said of the drive, which began July 17th.

The supplies were loaded into semi-trailer trucks July 23rd for delivery to distribution centers in the downstate communities of Quincy, Jerseyville, Hardin, East Carondelet and Alton, among others. The supplies are being distributed to residents in the Illinois counties of Jersey, Calhoun, Madison, Green, Pike, Adams, St. Clair and Hancock.

The drive drew contributions from hundreds of Cook County residents as well as more than 80 corporate donors, who provided everything from trucks to transport the donations to water, food and even a truckload of medical supplies that included latex medical gloves, bandages, and miscellaneous first-aid supplies.

More than $2,600 in donations was also collected through the Sheriff's Flood Relief Fund established by Chicago's Amalgamated Bank. The fund will remain open for donations at Post Office Box 94408, Chicago Illinois 60690-4408.

The six-day relief drive was held at Cook County Courthouses in Skokie, Rolling Meadows, Maywood, Bridgeview and Markham; and in Chicago at 31st and California and at the Richard J. Daley Center Plaza downtown.

Celebrating Nature At Wilderness Day In Woods

Wilderness Day '93, on Sunday, Aug. 8th, from 12 noon to 8 p.m., at Pulaski Woods West in the Palos area, will mark the second annual county-wide celebration of nature and the beauty of The Forest Preserve District of Cook County. Recreation, education and restoration will be the theme for the festival. This free event, organized by the forest preserve district, The Palos Restoration Project, and Save the Prairie Society, features outdoor activities, demonstrations and exhibits for the entire family.

"We hope that people will take home with them a greater awareness and appreciation of the forest preserves and for all natural areas," said Cook County Board President Richard Phelan. "We believe that with a strong appreciation, people are more likely to make the effort to preserve and maintain these areas so future generations can experience their treasures."

"Wilderness Day is also an excellent forum for providing visitors with new information that can be implemented to better serve and protect the environment. This year's program is greatly expanded from the one that attracted over 4,000 visitors last summer and promises to be just as much fun as it will be enlightening," Phelan added.

Forest preserve district naturalists will lead guided nature walks highlighting special features of the Palos Preserves. Representatives from several restoration and environmental groups will be on hand to familiarize visitors with many of the ongoing conservation efforts, which 13,000 volunteers in Cook County assisted with in the forest preserve district.

A golf course operator will discuss how his grounds became an environmentally better place with the reduction of pesticides and the addition of prairie plants and birdhouses.

Special guest speakers will also be on hand to address the significance of conservation and restoration. These include Dr. Robert Betz, a nationally acclaimed authority on prairie restoration and preservation; Victoria Spale of Save the Prairie Society; John Sheerin of The Palos Restoration Project; Joseph Nevius General Superintendent of the forest preserve district, Phelan, and others.

Visitors can relax on the picnic grounds while enjoying refreshments, including vegetarian food, and folk music performed by The Paul Barile Band, Christine Gaylord, John Haugland, Kevin Hutton and George Warren. There will also be exhibits featuring environmental and nature-related arts and crafts. In a "Living History" area, a Boy Scout troop from Lisle, will build a teepee. Later in the day a Native American cultural performance will feature ritual singing and dancing along with storytelling as part of a bonfire activity program.

Children can experience a variety of activities all day at The Kiddie Corral. Live animal shows feature Big Red, a red-tailed hawk and Van Gogh, the great-horned owl. Children can also enjoy The Hody Coyote Puppet Show and the Forest Preserve District of Cook County canine unit demonstration. Parents might want to take a stroll along Bullfrog Lake and watch a demonstration of flat-water and white water canoeing.

JOINT PAIN AND MUSCLE BALANCE

If you've developed symptoms that make you think you have arthritis, it would be wise to have an examination to see if the muscles in the affected area are out of balance.

Muscles help keep a joint stable and assist it through its normal range of motion. But if the muscles on one side of the joint are weak, this puts a strain on the joint. It may also cause arthritic-like symptoms.

The doctor of chiropractic will test the muscles to determine their balance and strength. He will also evaluate nerve patterns and may take an x-ray to study the joint structure involved. Perhaps some laboratory procedures will also be needed.

If the problem is in the muscles around the joint, treatment can be given to strengthen and return them to proper balance. Once this is achieved, the arthritic-like pain and discomfort may be greatly relieved or eliminated.

If you have any health questions please feel free to call our office.

State's Tax Multiplier Is Explained

Cook County has been issued a final property assessment equalization factor of 2.0897, according to Sam McGaw, acting director of the Illinois Department of Revenue (IDOR).

The property assessment equalization factor, often called the "multiplier," is the method used to achieve uniform property assessments among counties as required by law. This equalization is particularly important because some of the state's 6,600 local taxing districts overlap into two or more counties (e.g. school districts, junior college districts, fire protection districts). If there was no equalization among counties, substantial inequities among taxpayers with comparable properties would result.

Under a law passed in 1975, property in Illinois should be assessed at one-third of its market value. Farm property is assessed differently, with farm homesites and dwellings subject to regular assessing and equalization procedures, but with farmland assessed at one-third of its agriculture economic value. Farm land is not subject to the state equalization factor.

Assessments in Cook County are at 15.95 percent of market value, based on sales of properties in 1989, 1990 and 1991. The equalization factor currently being assigned is for 1992 taxes, payable in 1993. Last year's equalization factor for the county was 2.0523. The final assessment equalization factor was issued after a public hearing on the tentative factor. The tentative factor issued in June 1993 was 2.0897.

The equalization factor is determined annually for each county by comparing the price of individual properties sold over the past three years to the assessed value placed on those properties by the county supervisor of assessments/county assessor.

If this three-year average level of assessment is one-third of the market value, the equalization factor will be one. If the average level of assessment is greater than one-third of market value, the equalization factor will be less than one, and if the average level of assessment is less than one-third of market value, the equalization factor will be greater than one.

A change in the equalization factor does not mean total property tax bills will increase or decrease. Tax bills are determined by local taxing bodies when they request money each year to provide services to local citizens. If the amount requested by local taxing districts is not greater than the amount received in the previous year, then total property taxes will not increase even if assessments increase.

The assessed value of an individual property determines what portion of the tax burden a specific taxpayer will assume. That individual's portion of tax responsibility is not changed by the multiplier.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

If Sen. Carol Moseley Braun really wants to deal a blow to racism and its institutions, she would do well to aim her fire not at the symbols of the past but at the liberal hypocrisy of the present.

If she was as much a student of history and opponent of racism as she says, she would introduce legislation to repeal the racist law that is the Davis Bacon Act, a relic of the infamous Jim Crow era. In the 1920s, blacks made up the majority of unskilled construction workers in the South. The law to require all private contractors on federally funded projects to pay "prevailing wages," that is, union scale, was designed to price these workers out of jobs, something which works to this day.

If racism, and not liberal paternalism, has been the main impediment to black progress, how does she explain that in 1910, 71 percent of blacks over 9 years of age were employed compared with 51 percent of whites. In 1910 there were no civil rights laws. There was also no minimum wage. Around 1950, the percentage of black teenagers unemployed was perhaps a fifth of what it reached by the 1970s.

Walter Williams, a black professor of economics at Temple University, noted that as recently as 1954 the employment rate of minority youth exceeded that of white youth. But since 1954 the minimum wage has been successfully raised by Congress, pricing the least skilled workers in our society out of the entry-level job market.

While liberals such as Sen. Braun support the minimum wage law and the Davis Bacon Act, they opposed such programs as enterprise zones designed to bring entrepreneurship and jobs to the inner city.

They opposed full funding of Housing Secretary Jack Kemp's "Homeownership and Opportunity for People Everywhere" (HOPE) which would allow public housing residents to eventually own the buildings they live in. HOPE rests on the common-sense idea that what people own they do not burn. Ownership conveys responsibility. It creates powerful incentives for a family to maintain their home and work for decent and safe neighborhoods.

Democratic Rep. Maxine Waters of California, who represents the riot-torn areas of L.A., and was all over the media as the prime Bush-basher, said at the time of the vote that low-income people "aren't ready for home ownership." Democratic Rep. Barney Frank of Massachusetts claimed that poor Americans are "not demanding to be empowered."

Ironically, it is the Jesse Helms' of the Congress and not the Moseley-Brauns who are saying, power to the people. It is the liberal Democrats who don't want the po' folk straying off their plantation.

Sincerely,
Daniel John Sobieski

Lightning Safety Tips

It is not uncommon, during the summer, for the rain to roll in quickly and unexpectedly. Unfortunately, with the rain usually comes dangerous lightning. While the possibility of rain should not necessarily limit your activities, people should be aware of some general safety tips if they are caught in a storm, said Cook County Board President Richard Phelan.

According to Phelan, the Forest Preserve District of Cook County recommends the following life-saving safety tips when lightning strikes.

- Seek the closest shelter immediately; many of the Forest Preserve District picnic groves have shelters.
- Avoid standing under tall trees;
- If you are on a body of water, get off immediately; if you are near water, move away;
- DO NOT hold anything which may conduct lightning such as an umbrella, golf club or fishing rod; you should drop these items as soon as lightning begins;
- If shelter is not available, then people should lie down and make themselves as inconspicuous as possible; lightning tends to strike tall objects which act as a conductor.

For more information, contact the Forest Preserve District's Conservation Department at 708-771-1330 (for hearing/speech impaired TDD 708-771-1190).

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

A new state law requires juries to be selected from driver's license lists as well as voter registration lists. This greatly expands the pool for jury selection in Chicago and Cook County.

Though we were successful in registering a record 380,000 new voters in suburban Cook County last year, we found that some prospective voters declined their right to register because they were concerned about being called for jury duty. This new law should remove that hurdle and encourage more people to participate fully in our democracy. People who are already registered voters will benefit from an expansion of the juror pool because they will not be called as often for jury duty.

I urge Cook County residents who may not have registered because of the old jury selection process to exercise their rights as citizens.

Suburban Cook County residents can register to vote at their village or town hall or at any of our five suburban satellite offices in the courthouses at Bridgeview, Markham, Maywood, Rolling Meadows and Skokie. They can also register at our downtown Chicago office at 118 N. Clark, Chicago, Room 402. Chicago residents can register at all Chicago Public Libraries or at the Chicago Board of Elections, 121 N. LaSalle, 3rd floor.

Registering to vote and serving on a jury are two of the most important duties of citizenship. I hope that this new law will encourage more Cook County residents to participate in these vital responsibilities of democracy.

Sincerely,

David Orr

Cook County Clerk

Cal-Sag Bridge Closing

The Pulaski Avenue bridge over the Cal-Sag Channel is scheduled to close once again. It was reported by Cook County Highway Supervisor, Don DeCero, that the bridge will be closed on Friday, Aug. 6th, for one day only for a concrete pour.

Tax Delay Voted

The Cook County Board of Commissioners decided to delay collection of the County's 3/4 cent sales tax on big ticket items such as automobiles, boats and planes until Dec. 1, 1994, announced Board President Richard Phelan.

The Governor has refused to collect the tax saying it would pose administrative problems for the State. Phelan says the State Department of Revenue already collects a use tax for the City of Chicago and would have kept two percent of the revenue raised to pay for the cost of administration.

The use tax is estimated to generate $50 million a year—$50 million which would have been abated to provide relief to property taxpayers.

"The Governor had an opportunity to save Cook County taxpayers $50 million a year in immediate property tax relief. Even though the homeowners of Cook County have been denied this abatement, the 1994 levy will remain the same as it was in 1992 and 1993," Phelan said. "I have made deeper budget cuts and instituted innovative and efficient programs to offset the $50 million loss in revenue."

Phelan says refusal to collect the tax also presents a problem for Cook County, auto and boat dealers. "My goal is to ensure a competitive playing field for Cook County dealers. If the tax is collected directly from dealers in Cook County, but not from dealers in collar counties, Cook County dealers are placed at an economic disadvantage."

"The sales tax was designed to shift the burden off the property tax and onto the more fair sales tax. We will return to the General Assembly in the fall to try to convince the Governor to do the right thing," Phelan said.

Meeting

Michael C. Nave Chapter 1344, National Association of Retired Federal Employees (NARFE) will hold their next regular meeting at Surma's Restaurant, 175th St. and Dixie Highway, Homewood, on Tuesday, Aug. 10th. A social hour at 11:30 a.m. is followed by luncheon at 12:15 p.m. Reservations can be made by calling (708) 385-9057 or (708) 339-8683.

Tax Payment Hours

The Cook County Treasurer's Office, which has completed the mailing of all 1.5 million second installment real estate tax bills, has announced extended hours to accommodate property owners who wish to pay their property tax in person.

Cook County Treasurer Edward J. Rosewell said that effective Monday, Aug. 23rd, the daily office hours will be 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at 118 N. Clark Street in Chicago, and five suburban offices at 16501 S. Kedzie, Markham; 1500 Maybrook Square, Maywood; 5600 Old Orchard Rd., Skokie; 10200 S. 76th Ave., Bridgeview; and 2121 Euclid Ave., Rolling Meadows.

Rosewell said that all six of his offices will be open Saturday, Aug. 28th, for the payment of real estate taxes from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The penalty date for the payment of the second installment is Wednesday, Sept. 1st.

Rosewell urged property owners to make their payments by mail to avoid long lines. Taxes paid after the penalty date will be subject to 1.5% per month penalty, except for farm land which is assessed at 1% per month.

Any Cook County property owner who has not received a bill should contact his office at (312) 443-5100 or make a personal visit to any one of the six offices and a duplicate bill will be issued.

The Treasurer emphasized that it is the responsibility of the taxpayer to ensure that the bill is paid by the penalty.

Evergreen Park Mayor Tony Vacco, CEO of the village for 25 years, is to be honored on Tuesday & Wednesday, Aug. 10th & 11th, at the United Home Owners annual Mayor's Golf Tournament. Golf is at Evergreen Country Club with tee-off both days from 6 a.m. to 1 p.m. Call (312) 238-6680 for tee-off times. United Home Owners President Jeff Layhe says, "Call now for tee-off times. They are being filled fast."

The golf dinner-dance, including awards, is at the Martinique with cocktails at 7 p.m. followed by dinner at 8 p.m. For dinner reservations, call (708) 422-8000. "This is one of the best attended golf outings in the entire Chicagoland area," Layhe said, "Don't miss out."

The tally sheet is still being compiled but all indications are that last weekend's Ridge Fest '93 was a huge success. The Laser Light Show, on Saturday and Sunday was, as advertised, 'spectacular,' especially on Sunday when the 'bugs' were eliminated and the display was "awesome" according to viewers.

Without a considerable area fenced off for fireworks, more rides, more food and beverage booths, more room for the crowds to maneuver, contributed to the enjoyment of all. "Fireworks are fine, but the cost of the display and especially escalating insurance costs, they go up each year, and the all too real possibility that someone could be seriously injured, may contribute to the end of such pyrotechnics," said Tokar. He added, "the versatility and sharpness of the laser beams, with no danger of injury or the possibility of fire, may be the future of outdoor displays."

All of us one time or another have criticized the U.S. Postal Service. But, if we took time to analyze the immensity of their work, we wouldn't be so quick to complain.

How many times have we heard, "The check is in the mail," (which it wasn't); then blamed the postal service.

Debra Hawkins, communications programs specialist of the Postal Service, calls attention to the fact that few organizations touch the lives of every American as much as the U.S. Postal Service. According to Hawkins, on an average day nearly 570 billion pieces of mail are entrusted to the service. Six days a week, rain or shine, letter carriers deliver mail to businesses and homes all across the nation.

Few people know that since 1982 the Postal Service has been self supporting. It is not immune to competition from the communications marketplace, so must stay in the right price range and continue efficient delivery.

The USPS has gone into automation to cut costs. Hawkins says that it costs $42 to manually sort 1,000 pieces of mail, $19 per thousand using mechanized equipment and only $3 per thousand using automation.

Hawkins concludes, "Did you know that we will deliver a letter from the Virgin Islands to the bottom of the Grand Canyon, where we deliver by mule, forward it north to the Arctic Circle for just 29¢. We also deliver by boat to ships steaming along the Detroit River; by boat along the Louisiana Bayou, and by bush pilot to the outback of Alaska."

Yes. The reason for all misunderstanding is a 'lack of an understanding.'

John J. McNamara, Worth Township Democratic Committeeman, will hold his third annual golf outing at Old Oak Country Club, 143rd and Parker Rd., Lockport, on Thursday, Aug. 12th.

A former state representative from Oak Lawn McNamara is now director of satellite operations for the Cook County Recorder of Deeds.

Joyce Conti is the outing committee chairman and is handling ticket sales. More information may be obtained by calling (708) 422-9300.

ALL POINTS salutes Steven Seweryn of Chicago Ridge and Steve Shemanski of Palos Park who were recently presented with 'Outstanding Employee' awards for their work in the Cook County Department of Public Health. Seweryn is the communicable disease coordinator while Shemanski is assistant to the director of environmental health.

"It is our employees who make the system work. We need to constantly remind ourselves that they provide a vital public service to all residents," said Cook County Board President Richard J. Phelan.

Award recipients were nominated and judged by their co-workers based on criteria which included special activities, actions which deserve recognition and specific ways in which the employee goes beyond the call of duty.

Zoning Problem

Full disclosure of ownership of all parcels of land involved in all applications for a zoning change will now be required. This is the result of an amendment to the zoning code sponsored by Commissioner Carl R. Hansen (R-Mt. Prospect) and approved by the Cook County Board of Commissioners on Aug. 3rd.

"There has been a significant problem in this area," said Hansen. "In many instances it was not possible to determine who actually owned the property. This made it very difficult for the villages and for the County Board to ensure avoidance of conflicts of interest as well as attempts by applicants to circumvent other restrictions."
